BRITISH EMPTY CELLS IN INDIA AS 'WAR' ENDS

Gandhi Orders Land to Cease Revolt.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

NEW DELHI, March 5.—Peace settled over India tonight as the half naked little "holy man" ordered the first nonviolent revolution in history to cease. Simultaneously hundreds of prisons scattered over the length and breadth of this sweating continent opened their portals and 25,000 cells emptied their inmates—mostly young men and women, who thought they were freeing their country by languishing in its jails.

Some observers say the final terms of the armistice, which were agreed upon this morning, gives Mahatma Gandhi practically none of the things he demanded in his famoug ultimatum of eleven points which he sent to Viceroy Lord Irwin before he began his famous march to the sea to make salt a year ago. Nor does it concede, they add, any of the main points which he asked for last September, when he declined to halt his civil disobedience movement unless the proposed round table conference left him a way open to demand "complete independence."

Gandhi Says He's Satisfied.

More than one of his younger followers, just out of jail, called it a "complete surrender," and a spokesman of the Indian government did not conceal his satisfaction with the terms under which it was able to terminate the revolution which threatened British domination in India.

Gandhi himself, though, is satisfied. "I am a man of peace, after all, and now I wish for peace," he said. "It is not only peace that comes with the truce. The continuation of that truce depends upon the granting of self-government."

As the text of the peace pact was being distributed today Gandhi addressed an appeal to his countrymen to support the agreement and afford him the opportunity of attaining his goal of independence without bloodshed.

Provisions of Pact.

The agreement, which establishes a basis for negotiations to be continued at a new round table conference, was published both here and in London today. The principal provisions are:

1. Abandonment of the civil disobedience campaign.
2. Abandonment of the boycott as a political weapon.
3. Release of prisoners held for nonviolent offenses.
4. Recognition of right of salt area residents to make their own salt.
5. Picketing of nonaggressive nature to be permitted.
6. Repressive ordinances issued during civil disobedience campaign to be withdrawn.
7. Where property confiscated for taxes has been sold to a third party the transaction is to be regarded as final so far as the government is concerned.

British Goods Protected.

8. Sale and purchase of British goods is not to be interfered with.
9. Abandonment of Nationalist demands for an inquiry into alleged police excesses.
10. Return of unsold confiscated property.
11. Participation of the Nationalists in a second round table conference on the principles of federation, central responsibility, and financial and military safeguards.

The pact, political experts insist, reveals a "give and take" policy between John Bull and Mother India.

Sipping his supper of hot goat's milk and oranges served him by a barefoot daughter of an English admiral, Gandhi tonight explained why he had agreed to end the revolution, reiterating emphatically that his goal still remained for complete independence, despite attaining what he termed "a provisional agreement."

Gandhi Explains Stand.

In a one hour interview, which ended only when Gandhi rushed away to lead evening prayers on the front lawn of the home of Dr. Ansari, the "holy man," who threw over noncooperation for coöperation almost the first time in his long life, outlined the reasons for a provisional truce and what he intended to achieve by it.

If Great Britain or the rest of the world thought that the terms of the accord meant surrender by Gandhi, his interview leaves no doubt that he still stands for complete independence, and that he still insists that Britain must turn over India to Indian hands

DEAD ARLENE'S MORALS UNDER DEFENSE FIRE

2 Witnesses Tell of Elopement.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Valparaiso, Ind., March 5.—[Special.]—In an effort to save Virgil Kirkland, on trial for the rape and murder of Arlene Draves, his attorneys today brought in evidence intended to reflect on the morals of the dead girl.

When court adjourned this evening the defense had practically concluded its evidence with the exception of Kirkland's own story. His attorneys announced tonight that the young defendant, who has sat unmoved throughout the trial, would take the stand tomorrow morning as the final witness in his own behalf.

New Autopsy Findings Given.

Secrets discovered when a committee of four medical experts exhumed a casket in the dreary rural cemetery at Reynolds, Ind., and performed a second autopsy on Arlene's body, were brought out in the crowded courtroom by the first defense witness called this forenoon. The witnes was Dr. Joseph Springer of Chicago.

As casually and impersonally as if he were addressing a medical clinic, the suave Chicago expert leaned back in the witness chair and discussed the autopsy evidence which, he averred, established the conclusion that the 18-year-old Arlene had ceased to be a virgin a considerable time before the night she died. Dr. Springer was one of the two defense experts at the autopsy, the other being Dr. Herman O. Seipel of Valparaiso.

State Objection Overruled.

Prosecutor John Underwood offered strenuous objection to the morality phases of Dr. Springer's testimony, but was overruled by Judge Grant Crumpacker. The court ruled that such evidence was not immaterial in the case, as Mr. Underwood contended.

Arlene's three sisters, seated well in front of the packed courtroom, bowed their heads and concealed their tears as Dr. Springer unfolded the evidence of the autopsy, as interpreted by him and Dr. Seipel. The state's medical experts, Dr. E. S. Jones of Hammond and Dr. George Bicknell of East Chicago, were not called.

Two Testify of Elopement.

Six other defense witnesses were called today. Two of them swore that two weeks before her death Arlene had eloped with Kirkland and would have married him but for an illness, while a third witness declared Kirkland had given Arlene money and suggested she purchase the frock in which she was laid in her casket.

Dr. Springer, who identified himself as city physician of Chicago and former coroner's physician of Cook county, was on the stand more than two hours. Answering a hypothetical question put by Defense Attorney Ronald Oldham, he declared Arlene's death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage alone, not to a combination of the cerebral injury and the shock of ravishment.

Mr. Underwood, who had objected to Dr. Springer assisting in the second autopsy, subjected the witness to a grueling cross-examination, but failed to shake his testimony. The prosecutor was more successful in questioning Dr. Seipel and there was laughter at some of the answers of the Valparaiso physician.

Contradicts Coroner's Report.

Dr. Springer's testimony on direct examination was brief. Flatly contradicting the coroner's report and the testimony of the coroner's physician who performed the original autopsy on Arlene, the Chicago expert declared the second post-mortem disclosed none of the ruptures of delicate membranes that Dr. Burcham had described and which the state attributed to the ravishment.

Mr. Oldham conducted the direct examination and Mr. Underwood the cross-examination. At times the prosecutor and the witness clashed.

MR. UNDERWOOD—You testified that the wounds on the head were caused by a powerful for and that the cerebral hemorrhage alone could have caused death?

A.—I did.

Q.—Could a person toppling over on a concrete floor after being struck a blow in the jaw have suffered the cerebral hemorrhage described?

A.—O, yes, indeed.

Q.—Assume that the hypothetical girl was knocked down by a blow on the jaw. Couldn't you then assume that the blow caused the subsequent cerebral hemorrhage and hence caused

Rondout Has a Near Rival in Train Robbery

Rondout, Ill., is hardly more than a railroad crossing somewhat to the northwest of Lake Forest. But it is celebrated in that a few years ago it was the scene of a $4,000,000 train robbery.

Now, the town of Russell, Ill., lies on the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad just beyond Rondout. And it may be considered that the citizens of Russell have not forgotten the Rondout robbery even though the relation of the United States mail to the village of Russell is hardly more spectacular than a pouch tossed from the flank of a flying express train or a pouch snatched from the Russell mail hook by the same express.

Townsfolk Are Prepared.

The active citizenry of Russell, being thus prepared by the experience of its neighbor Rondout for roberry of the mails, there was a snap to attention yesterday when a stranger in a black sedan drew up. Strangers in black sedans are always worthy of a glance of suspicion. But they are doubly sure of suspicion in the region of Rondout with its history of a $4,000,000 robbery and the region of Russell, its neighbor.

The stranger, however, was an employé of the railroad. It was his business to lay a few torpedoes along the rails and also to set a flare which should blaze up when struck by a passing train. The purpose of all this was to test the attention of engineers; to determine whether an engineer always pulls up his train when passing over torpedos or merely loafs along until he thinks it is safe to let her out again.

But when the people of Russell saw the mysterious preoccupation of the stranger along the tracks their suspicions mounted. There was an oiling up of shotguns and preparations for alarming the countryside.

Explosions Halt Train.

Along about 9 o'clock last night there came a train. There was a series of explosions. The vicinity of the train was illuminated by the burst of flame from a flare. The train stopped. There was a quick investigation. The engineer was reassured and went on. But the townspeople were not so easily reassured.

During the interval of the train's pause telephone calls had been made to Sheriff Steve Robinson of Kenosha county, Wis., just over the state line. Witnesses had seen the black sedan speed north.

He was evidently driving with all expedition, for in a very brief time he saw, coming north, a black sedan. He drew his own car across the road, stepped out, leaned a machine gun across his rear bumper and waited. The sedan drew up.

"Hands up," sang the sheriff, "and get out on the road."

Three men climbed out of the sedan. They were Lester Tiffany, sheriff of Lake county, Illinois, and his two deputies, Eugene Palermo and Frank Hayes.

TRIBUNE WRITER WILL 'COVER' SOVIET RUSSIA; ARRIVES IN MOSCOW

Henry Wales, Paris correspondent of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, is in Moscow, capital of Russia. Mr. Wales has obtained a passport from the soviet government which will permit him to travel in all parts of the country. Before leaving Paris he wrote the following letter concerning his plans:

"Paris, Jan. 31, 1931.

"Dear Editor: Your cable received and I am preparing to leave here about Tuesday for Moscow. I shall take good note of your instructions and will write, as I did on my other trip, exactly three years ago, just what I see and just what I find. I expect to send nearly everything by mail, but have arranged with the Northern Telegraph company for dispatches, if spot news comes up for cabling occasionally.

"I shall write you my itinerary and plans when I get to Moscow and ascertain what facilities for travel are open, and when exactly I can make the various trips which would seem productive. Then I will go out into eastern Russia and Siberia for the communal farms stories you suggested as being O. K., and also to see how the soviet organization is carrying on there.

"I have had a first shot of typhoid and para-typhoid and am going to the hospital tonight until Monday for an injection of smallpox serum and a couple of other injections. Have got some flat silk underwear that bugs can't keep a foothold in, and a spirit stove, too.

"Well, will write you in detail next week from Moscow. Sincerely,

"HENRY WALES."

Mr. Wales' first story will appear in THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Schoolgirls Sold to Rich Men; 3 Held

Los Angeles, Cal., March 5.—[Special.]—An alleged auction ring in which young girls, some of them high school students, were virtually sold to wealthy bidders, for week-end and apartment parties, at rates scaling from $200 to above $1,000, was revealed here tonight with the arrest of two men and a woman.

Those held are William H. Jobelman, former press agent for Alexander Pantages and a witness in the theater magnate's rape trial; Olive Clark Day, 24 years old, pretty brunette, believed to be Jobelman's wife, and John P. Mills, affluent real estate dealer of this city. Miss Day gained publicity in 1922 when she sued Herbert Rawlinson, screen star, for alleged attack, a suit which was dismissed a year later. Mills is said to be married and the father of two daughters.

Act on Secret Information.

The investigation, which disclosed what officials assert was tantamount to enslaving girls and auctioning them off to moneyed patrons, was directed by District Attorney Buron Fitts.

Discovery of the asserted "Love Market" and its operations is said by District Attorney Fitts to have been made after the complaint of a mother following a startling confession made to her by a daughter.

In a luxuriously equipped studio in Hollywood, Jobelman and Miss Day established themselves, according to Fitts, and began operations with the names of a few young girls who were placed "on call" as companions for wealthy clients of the studio.

Those clients Fitts says, include some of the best known men of wealth in the city, and their names also were card-indexed with notations as their possible desires in types of beauty and the probable wealth of the client.

Files of Girls and Patrons.

Files of all the girls listed and all the indexes of the wealthy clients of the asserted love market have been seized by Chief Investigator Matthews, and a thorough investigation of each and all names begun by a large detail of investigators.

With the increase in the popularity of the market, Fitts says that he has evidence that Jobelmann constantly made contacts with young girls—16, 17 and 18, but not above 20 years of age—and induced the girls to have interviews with Miss Day for prospective employment.

Once a girl had signified her willingness to list her name at the studio, Fitts asserts that her measurements, complexion, age, color of eyes—whether a blonde, brunette or auburn haired—and all other personal details, including her innocence or "experience" were taken and listed for the files.

Special Accommodations Found.

Although many asserted dates with wealthy clients were arranged for the young girls at downtown hotels, Fitts says that the studio is equipped with a luxurious bedroom.

Near the head of the bed, according to investigators, is a secret door through which one may enter noiselessly, and about the room are peepholes through which the occupant for the time may be seen. Other records seized at the studio "love market" Fitts says indicate that close books were kept on all the girls to show how much money they obtained from their engagements, and the amount of money they returned to the studio.

Records seized in the apartment show entries ranging from $200 to more than $1,000 which Mathews asserted represented fees. In some occasions, District Attorney Fitts said, the girls accompanied their patrons on week-end parties to mountain or seaside resorts in Southern California.

PLAN AROUSES DIXIE; ROBINSON LEADS DRY FIGHT

Wet North Applauds Chairman's Views.

6 Million War Chest

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—A $6,000,000 campaign chest will be sought by the Democrats in their effort to return to power in 1932.

Plans for raising this sum were approved today by the national committee. It will be used in wiping out the present $500,000 deficit and for the presidential campaign next year.

The committee gave unanimous approval to a proposal for a commercial concern to raise the money. A preliminary goal of $1,000,000 was set.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—From a stormy session of the Democratic national committee on the prohibition question today there emerged the probability of a wet plank in the Democratic national platform next year.

SENATOR J. T. ROBINSON.

The sentiment of the managing body of the party, with all states represented, appeared to be overwhelmingly opposed to further effort to impose total abstinence upon the whole country by statute.

Only the south evinced opposition to consideration of National Chairman John J. Raskob's proposal of a new amendment, which would be the twentieth, exempting from the eighteenth amendment any state choosing by popular vote to restore the manufacture, transportation and sale of intoxicating liquors within its borders.

Jeer Prophets of Woe.

Half a dozen southern committeemen uttered warnings that the espousal of modification of national prohibition would alienate the south and wreck the party, but the northerners and westerners jeered the prophets of woe.

No action was taken on Mr. Raskob's suggested platform of party principles, embodying not only modification of prohibition, but immunity baths for trusts, tariff regulation by life term commissioners, a five day week in industry, and other novel proposals.

The chairman gave notice at the opening of the morning session that he would ask for action on his proposals, not at this time, but at the next meeting of the committee, next December or January.

Hailed as Roosevelt Victory.

This announcement was hailed as a victory by the supporters of Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and the southerners, who had assailed the reputed intention of the chairman to ask the committee at this meeting to recommend his platform to the consideration of the national convention. Roosevelt, according to his partisans, has gained strength in the dry south for his candidacy for the nomination as a result of his bold challenge of the Raskob program.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, in an impassioned speech, denounced the national chairman for injecting the prohibition issue into the meeting and denounced the Raskob platform as a departure from the true faith of the Jeffersonians. Supported by other southerners, he denied the authority of the national committee to recommend policies to the national convention.

When all of the fireworks of this character had been touched off, Mr. Raskob arose and read from the party manual the provision that the national committee is empowered to "recommend policies and procedure" to the national convention.

Seated on the platform beneath a portrait of Thomas Jefferson were Al Smith, titular leader of the party, and James M. Cox, Democratic candidate for President in 1920. Mr. Smith, in a brief speech, upheld the action of the chairman in submitting his views to the party, but he refrained from any mention of prohibition.

Mr. Cox appealed to the north and the south to cultivate an appreciation of the attitude of each other on the prohibition question, his argument, in effect, supporting the Raskob plan for state option, with reference to the continuation of prohibition.

Mr. Raskob, whose resignation has been demanded for months by southerners denominating him the "chamberlain of the pope," was the calm and unperturbed center of the storm loosed by his utterances. He is a little man with a burning eye and a chin of determination, with just the suggestion of a double chin.

Raskob Uses Up 5,000 Words.

Mr. Raskob used up 5,000 words and an hour and three-quarters of time in reading to the national committee the platform which he would like to have his party adopt. And prohibition was the first issue he mentioned. He said the time had arrived to follow the advice of Jefferson to the party to retrace its steps whenever it should wander from Democratic principles.

SENATOR CAMERON MORRISON.

"Prohibition," said the chairman, as the ninety men and women of the committee came to eager attention, "this problem will undoubtedly be one of the outstanding issues in the next campaign and my recommendation is that the 18th amendment be not repealed, but that the Democratic party advocate a new amendment which will provide that nothing in the 18th amendment shall prevent any state from directing and controlling absolutely, without interference by the federal government, the manufacture, transportation and sale of intoxicating liquors within its own borders, provided that the plan under which it proposes to do this shall first have been submitted to the people of that state and approved by a majority of them in a state-wide referendum; and provided further, that this new amendment to the constitution shall not be effective unless and until it is ratified, not by the legislatures of three-fourths of the states, but by conventions of the people in three-fourths of the states."

No Return of Saloon.

That there might be no misunderstanding of his proposal, Mr. Raskob repeated it, word for word, and wound up by saying:

"This plan prevents the return of the saloon.

"Under this plan, if the state of New York worked out a liquor control plan similar to the Swedish system and that plan was submitted to and approved by a referendum of the people of the state of New York, then New York state would handle its own liquor problem, but the 18th amendment still would be in full force and effect with respect to the other forty-seven states. If, later, the commonwealth of Massachusetts adopted a different plan of liquor control, which was approved by its people, thereafter that commonwealth would be handling its own liquor problem.

How to Protect Dry States.

"It is felt by many of our people that our southern states desire to remain dry. Under the plan I propose, even if all of the states except the southern states and a few others should, in the course of ten or fifteen years, adopt different schemes of liquor control, these states could still remain dry and would have the full cooperation and help of the federal government in patrolling their water boundaries and assisting them in protecting their land boundaries and thus having their sovereignty respected as guaranteed under the constitution. This plan squares absolutely with the Jeffersonian principle of state rights and, as previously stated, another strong factor in its favor is that it guarantees that the saloon cannot return, for the reason that it will be impossible to induce a majority of the people in any state to vote in favor of a liquor control plan for their state that permits the return of the saloon.

"To me it seems impossible to call ourselves Democrats and lovers of liberty and yet be unwilling to extend to the people of these United States the opportunity in this proposed new amendment and to abide by the decision if a majority of the people in thirty-six out of our forty-eight states should vote in favor of it.

"There is great confusion whenever the liquor question is discussed because the terms 'wet' and 'dry' are never defined. In order that the Democratic party will not be called 'wet' or 'dry' I should like to christen this plan as the 'home rule plan' because it is neither a wet nor a dry plan, but a plan under which the people of this country, through their respective states, may exercise for themselves the right of self-determination."

When he concluded, Mr. Raskob invited discussion. The first to take the floor was Senator Cordell Hull of Tennessee, who challenged what he regarded as an undertaking on the part of the national chairman to "formulate the articles of party faith." He appealed for harmony, which he held impossible if the prohibition question were to be projected into the discussion.

Robinson Unlimbers for Fray.

Next Senator Robinson of Arkansas climbed upon the platform and unlimbered for the fray. Unusual interest attached to what he might say because of the fact that he is reckoned a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President. His friends view him as a possible compromise between wet and dry elements in the party.

"It must be apparent to every one here that a crisis has been precipitated in the affairs of the Democratic party," the senator began. "I would be lacking in frankness if I refrained from the declaration that, in my judgment, this crisis has been recklessly and unnecessarily precipitated."

Whereas the drys applauded vigorously.

"In all the history of our party, there never has been a time when it occupied a stronger position in the confidence and affection of the masses of the people than it did at the hour when this assembly met," Mr. Robinson proceeded. "Some one has said that Herbert Hoover, a Republican President of the United States, has rendered more assistance to the Democratic party in the two years of his administration than any other human agency. Now, I fear that our beloved chairman has paid him back and rendered assistance to the Republican party.

"The national committee is an administrative body. Its duty is to carry out the mandate of the national convention. It must be recognized that for the national committee to instruct the national convention regarding platform declarations or party policy is to invite what all good Democrats desire to avoid, dissension and division.

"You cannot paint upon the banner of the Democratic party the skull and crossbones of an outlaw trade and expect the Democratic party to accept it without resistance.

Petticoats and Prohibition Enliven Democratic Meeting

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—Special.]—Petticoats and prohibition came in for vigorous discussion this afternoon when the wet and dry issue split the Democratic love feast into a geographic fight over the 18th amendment.

MRS. MARY T. NORTON. [Acme Photo.]

And women from every state in the Union sat and clapped their convictions, sometimes wet, sometimes dry, but always definite and excited.

At last, in the thick of the controversy, the women of one group had a spokesman of their own. Congresswoman Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, angered by Senator Robinson's dry speech, rushed to the platform and explained her presence there in these words:

"I had no thought of projecting myself into this discussion. But I am amazed at the political speech of Senator Robinson which has injected trouble into this meeting."

The feminine wets cheered.

"I believe in ideals, of course I believe in ideals," the congresswoman went on, "but we want to win an election."

"And we are going to win in 1932, but not by bringing up a discussion such as was brought up today. Senator Robinson has asked whether you believe the womanhood of this country will ever go against prohibition. Senator Robinson," she looked straight at the senator from Arkansas, "I want to say to you that the womanhood of America will be the strongest factor in bringing about the repeal of the 18th amendment. No class of voters has greater cause to know what the 18th amendment has done to the morals of young people.

"We want a change. I am voicing, not my sentiments alone, but those of every decent, right thinking woman in the country."

Committeewomen from some of the states above the Mason and Dixon line nodded marcels in agreement. Mrs. Charles J. Sharp, committeewoman from Alabama, and several of her southern sisters, let out little ejaculations of surprise and contradiction.

"I seconded the nomination of Senator Robinson for Vice President down at the Houston convention," the speaker recalled. "Did he rise then and object?" Soprano hisses rebuked her.

"Has he had a change in political thought since then? I am inclined to think he has." Soprano laughs approved her.

Turning then to Chairman Raskob, whom Senator Robinson had been belaboring, Mrs. Norton said: "Mr. Chairman, I never was so proud of being a Democrat as I am today. And I never was so proud of you as I am."

MRS. NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS. [Acme Photo.]

But later the viewpoint of the southern woman was given by Watt T. Brown, national committeeman from Alabama, who pleaded with the Democratic party not to make prohibition a 1932 campaign issue. And when he declared that "the women of the south are for prohibition and always will be for prohibition," he was applauded by the women delegates from the south.

Somewhere in between the vehement extremes of Mrs. Norton and Mr. Watt was the speech of Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, former governor of Wyoming, and present vice chairman of the national Democratic committee. Mrs. Ross, once a dry, is growing moist if not wet. Her speech, however, did not declare for either stand, but urged her party not to sidestep nor straddle.

Both Parties Are Divided.

"This is a subject on which both of the parties are divided; the Republicans as much as the Democrats. The only hope the Republicans have is in the lack of wisdom of those who head the Democratic party.

"It was the part of unwisdom and imprudence to inject in this meeting a controversy involving the widest and most divergent differences of opinion."

"Do you think," thundered the senator, as he waved his arms about, "that the women will rally to the plan to put the government in the liquor business?"

"Yes," came a feminine voice from the body of committee members. There was a roar of laughter from the northerners and westerners, in which even some of the southern drys joined.

The senator took strong exception to Mr. Raskob's proposal that the trade commission be empowered to pass on corporation mergers in advance.

Mr. Robinson finishes in a vehement peroration accompanied by wind mill flourishes. The drys applaud. Now another southerner comes forward. He is the new senator from North Carolina, Cameron Morrison, who is also national committeeman. Soon he is going strong in denunciation of Mr. Raskob. He is so worked up that his whitening locks quiver on either side of their center parting.

There was some hissing of the senator at one juncture and a voice called out: "What have you got in your locker?"

The only other voice raised against the Raskob program was that of Watt Brown, committeeman for Alabama. Then Al Smith was called upon.

Then Al Smith Speaks.

"I got a brand new idea of democracy today," said Al, in that barking voice. "I had no idea that anybody at a Democratic gathering would be jumped on for expressing his individual views."

With reference to the heated remarks of Senators Robinson and Morrison, Mr. Smith thought the trouble was that "our legislators have been sitting up too late at night in attendance on congress."

"Now, all this talk about influencing the national convention is just the bunk," rasped Al, and the committee, which was being put in a good humor, laughed uproariously. "I made the statement days ago that neither this committee nor any other agency could take away the prerogative of the national convention to state the party principles."

To the accusations of the southerners that the Raskob proposals had divided the party, Mr. Smith retorted that "nothing that has occurred here today could give greater comfort to Mr. Hoover and his associates than the speech of the senator from Arkansas." He said he wasn't sure he was in favor of all of the Raskob platform, but he thought it an outrage to "jump on the chairman for expressing his opinions."

Mr. Smith finished with the committeemen arising and applauding.

Then came Mr. Cox. He admired Mr. Raskob for speaking his mind. Nor did he doubt the sincerity of Senator Robinson. Mr. Cox knew that Mr Robinson reflected the opinion of the south on prohibition.

Mr. Cox paused, visibly laboring under stress of emotion, and then cried:

"I am not a wet, but I am opposed to gangsters and gang rule and I want to send this question back to the states for solution. In some parts of the north you will find government paralyzed by the corrupting influence of gangsters and racketeers. Our government stands today helpless, shackled by the chains of hypocrisy.

Crammed with Suggestions.

"We must consider public opinion in the south and in the north on this question. But if we are to be influenced by expediency in settling this question, it is not that this committee thinks or the national convention thinks, but what the people think that will decide."

Mr. Raskob's platform recommendations were crammed with suggestions that will be debated for months to come. Those who have been saying that Mr. Raskob is endeavoring to make the Democratic party a rich man's party, thought they found plenty of substantiation in his speech.

"Consumption requires production," he said, "production requires labor, labor receives wages. These wages are used for consumption, so that capital and labor are dependent on each other and their interests are identical."

If a utility company is gouging the consumers, the thing to do, said Mr. Raskob, is to curb that utility company, not to attack all utilities, any more than the exposure of crookedness in one bank warrants destruction of the banking system.

On the question of farm relief, the chairman dealt in generalities, saying that the solution requires "the adoption of sound legislative methods."

Mr. Raskob called for action on the development of old age and unemployment insurance.

Immunity for Big Business.

Of outstanding interest was the Raskob proposal of immunity baths for big business.

"In line with our liberal policies," he said, "and in order to free business from unnecessary handicaps and thus enable it to expand and occupy a stronger position in world commerce, I recommend that the federal trade commission be empowered to hold public hearings whenever leaders of industry desire to present reasons why certain combinations in industry are desirable and necessary for our future welfare.

"If, in the opinion of a majority of the federal trade commissioners, facts developed indicate that a given combination or merger is not inimical to public interest and does not violate the spirit of the Sherman law in the matter of restraint of trade or controlling prices, then the federal trade commission should be empowered to issue a certificate which will grant immunity from criminal prosecution to those individuals forming the merger."

The chairman clearly viewed the Democratic party as committed to the principle of the protective tariff, though it must be an equitable tariff. He would take the tariff out of politics by committing its regulation to a bi-partisan commission of members serving for life.

Mr. Raskob concluded with an enthusiastic advocacy of the five day week, which he thought would increase consumption on the part of people with more leisure.

MUELLER QUITS POLICE TRIAL AS CROWD WATCHES

Packed galleries were listening attentively to the trial of Capt. Joseph Palczynski, suspended commander of the West Chicago avenue police, before the civil service commission yesterday when suddenly there was a sensation. The chief prosecutor, Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller, picked up his books and abandoned the trial. And then, a few minutes later, the spectators were disappointed when the expected details of a sergeant's love affair were kept from them.

C. J. MUELLER. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The civil service commission, with Maj. Carlos Ames presiding, had moved to the city council chambers to conduct the trials of sixteen policemen against whom action was instigated by Assistant State's Attorney Mueller and the members of the special grand jury who have been investigating the police department for two months. Most of the special grand jurors were present.

Spectators Are Disappointed.

Capt. Palczynski's case came first, but most of the spectators were awaiting with greatest interest the hearing of the case of Sergt. Jack Herdegen. The charge against Herdegen is conduct unbecoming a policeman, in that he lived for two years with one woman while he was married to another.

Miss Bernice Shaw was on hand, ready to testify against the sergeant, her former sweetheart, who she declares bought his promotion with $1,500 advanced by Jack Zuta. The commission, however, decided not to take oral testimony in the case, but to base their conclusions on the written record of the testimony of Herdegen and Miss Shaw before the special grand jury.

The jury record given to the commission included a series of love letters written to Miss Shaw by Herdegen and Miss Shaw's testimony about alleged graft collections by the sergeant. The letters were part of the evidence which the trial audience had been hoping to hear.

Mueller Quits Trial.

The explosion that resulted in the departure of Prosecutor Mueller came during the trial of Capt. Palczynski, who is charged technically with neglect of and inattention to duty. Actually the case grew out of the fact that the captain permitted three men arrested on a rape charge to be prosecuted for disorderly conduct and freed.

Mr. Mueller and Assistant State's Attorney Charles E. Lounsbury appeared as prosecutors at the hearing at the invitation of Acting Police Commissioner Alcock. The hostilities began with a clash between Prosecutor Mueller and Assistant Corporation Counsel Francis J. Vurpillat, whose regular duty it is to prosecute policemen before the commission when it acts as trial board.

Clashes with City Attorney.

Mr. Mueller had made several objections to testimony introduced by the Palczynski defense when Vurpillat said to him:

"Who do you think you are—delaying our work with all these objections? Do you think you are running this board? You're an upstart."

"I'm objecting to this evidence as I have every legal right to do," Mueller retorted. "And I'm going to keep right on objecting."

Later Capt. Palczynski's attorneys, Charles Dougherty and John H. Johntry, introduced an affidavit from the young woman whose case led to the charge against the captain. She is Miss Pearl Haller of Wausau, Wis. The defense said the affidavit showed that the charge against the captain was groundless because in the affidavit Miss Haller stated that she had not been attacked by the three men accused. The young woman had refused to return to Chicago for questioning.

Mueller Makes Objection.

Prosecutor Mueller objected that the introduction of the affidavit was not legal—that Miss Haller was not available for cross-examination.

At this point Maj. Ames declared that he believed that it was the duty of the commission to hear anything offered by a city employé in his own defense. He said the commission was not bound by the strict rules of evidence that prevail in courts. He accepted the affidavit.

"That's enough," said Mueller. "I bid you a fond adieu." He gathered his books and walked out.

At the suggestion of J. A. Farmar, foreman of the special grand jury, Assistant State's Attorney Lounsbury remained and carried on the prosecution.

Palczynski Takes Stand.

Previously Capt. Palczynski had been called to the stand by his attorneys after the policemen who arrested the three alleged attackers of Miss Haller had placed on the captain the responsibility for not following through the rape charge.

Capt. Palczynski testified that he had questioned Miss Haller and the three men and that the young woman refused to sign a complaint.

"I was satisfied they were all in a drunken brawl," he said, and added he would do the same thing again under the same circumstances.

The cases of Capt. Palczynski and Sergt. Herdegen were taken under advisement by the trial board. Lieut. Daniel O'Hara, who was before the board with Capt. Palczynski, was exonerated of any wrongdoing. Charges against Policeman John J. Hogan were dismissed. The trials of the other twelve policemen will continue tomorrow.

PRINCE OF WALES IN BUENOS AIRES; SUFFERS IN HEAT

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

BUENOS AIRES, March 5.—The prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, arrived here today. It was the most oppressive day of the longest and hottest heat wave Buenos Aires has suffered in many years, but the streets were crowded, especially with women and girls, who braved the suffocating heat to get a view of the royal visitors. The prince of Wales was slightly affected by the heat, but his brother did not show that he was bothered.

Argentina's reception to the princes was more formal and official than that of any other country which they have visited on their South American tour. The prince visited President Uriburu, and half an hour later the president returned the visit at the British embassy. He entertained them this evening at a big state banquet which was attended by the diplomatic corps, cabinet officers and other high government authorities and their wives.

American cigarets are being smoked exclusively by the prince of Wales and Prince George. Although they are touring South America in support of British manufactures, with the slogan "British goods are best," one of ninety-six pieces of baggage carried by the party is a big satchel filled with widely advertised American cigarets, from which the princes' cigaret cases are filled several times daily. They both smoke incessantly from the time they awake until they retire shortly before dawn.

SON KILLS SELF IN GRIEF OVER TEACHER'S DEATH

Grieving over the death of his father, Charles De Witt Huxley, retired public school principal, who was killed by a State street car at Delaware place on Dec. 12, Paul Huxley, 38 years old, shot and killed himself late yesterday in his home at 1352 North La Salle street.

The son was with his father when he was killed. For almost three months he brooded over the tragedy despite the efforts of his sister, Mabel Sykes, loop photographer, and his brother, Norman, to console him. Last week he journeyed to Philadelphia to see his mother, Mrs. Henrietta Huxley. Apparently the visit was in the nature of a farewell, police believe. Huxley returned Sunday.

GOV. RITCHIE ASKED BY MARYLAND HOUSE TO SEEK PRESIDENCY

Annapolis, Md., March 5.—(AP)—A resolution urging Gov. Albert C. Ritchie to become a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President was adopted unanimously today by the house of delegates and sent to the senate.

GOV. ALBERT C. RITCHIE. [H. & E. Photo.]

The senate is expected to approve it tomorrow. The small Republican minority voted with the Democrats in the house and agreed not to oppose the resolution in the senate.

"In the person of Albert C. Ritchie," said the resolution, introduced by Alexander Goodman of Baltimore, "Maryland has the outstanding champion of the . . . rights of free people and free states in a free country."

"He exemplifies in the greatest measure the quality of man to serve the needs of the nation as President," it was added.

Gov. Ritchie, long an outspoken foe of the 18th amendment, prevented introduction of such a resolution at the state Democratic convention last September.

THOSE OVERALLS SENATE STUDIED TO GO ON BUTTON

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—The worn, stained, and much patched overalls that were twice displayed in the senate to show the plight of the country's depression victims are to be recalled in celluloid on a campaign button. Senator Thomas, Democrat, Oklahoma, today had the garment photographed. He announced the picture would be placed on a button of generous size to be circulated everywhere. "Paramount Issue of 1932" will be inscribed thereon.

SEIZE TWO WITH LIQUOR.

Frank Marlow and Sam Scaloni were seized with an automobile containing six cases of Canadian whisky at the Adams street side of the Union station yesterday by Dan Vaccarelli, special prohibition agent. They were held in bonds of $2,500 each by United States Commissioner Walker.

BINGA INDICTED; CHARGE $250,000 TAKEN AT BANK

Colored Banker Is Named with Four Others.

Jesse Binga, colored banker and former president of the Binga State bank at State and 35th streets, was indicted by the grand jury yesterday on charges of embezzling between $250,000 and $300,000 of the bank's funds. Four other colored employés of the bank, which was closed some months ago, were also named in the series of five true bills voted on charges of conspiracy.

Miss Ines V. Canty, secretary to Binga; Thomas R. Webb, director of the bank; Harry Scott, chauffeur to Binga, and William Curtis, bank guard, were the others named in the true bills. Binga's bond on the embezzlement indictment, which was promptly returned in court, was fixed at $10,000 by Chief Justice John P. McGoorty, and detectives were sent out to arrest the banker.

Charge Real Estate Speculation.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers and Leonard M. Rice, who presented the evidence to the grand jury, charge that Binga used the funds of his bank to speculate in real estate.

The bank was closed on July 21, 1930, by the state auditor.

Attorney Edward H. Morris was appointed as receiver of the bank, which was organized as a state bank in 1920. The bank at the time it was closed was capitalized at $200,000 and had deposits of $1,280,000.

Took Funds Without Security.

Prosecutor Ayers said that in going over the records of the bank it was discovered that Binga took funds from the institution without ample security. It is also charged that he put up as security notes of his employés, who had no financial responsibility. He also used them as "dummies," it is alleged, to put through some of his real estate transactions.

KILLED BY OWN GUN.

Galesburg, Ill., March 5.—[Special.]—James Clark, 75, farmer, was accidentally killed yesterday when his shotgun caught in a fence. Neighbors found his body.

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

Tucson, Ariz., March 5.—The Hon. Mr. Hatlin's official finish in Washington was kind of harrowing. On the day his last session was to end, he was having a grand time scolding Al Smith and Raskob when he suddenly got an attack of laryngitis and had to stop talking and go home and go to bed.

The Alabama politician has represented his state six years in the house and eleven years in the senate. That is a pretty good record, but there are those who maintain that his voice went back on him seventeen years too late. RING LARDNER.

Kills His Brother-in-Law; Shooting Held "Justified"

Herrin, Ill., March 5.—(AP)—A coroner's verdict of "justified shooting" was rendered in the shooting of John Morello, 35, a baker of Hurst, by his brother-in-law, Domenic Margherio, while the men were riding in an automobile with their wives early today.

Chops at Tree, Pole Falls and Fatally Injures Him

South Bend, Ind., March 5.—[Special.]—John H. Layman, 55, was the victim of a fatal accident here today when a tree he was chopping down fell unexpectedly, striking telephone wires, which pulled down a telephone pole. The pole struck Layman on the head, killing him instantly.

ATTACK MORALS OF DEAD ARLENE IN MURDER CASE

Mr. Underwood's face flushed and he rose from his chair, drawing close to the witness. Dr. Springer drummed his fingers on the arm of his chair.

Q.—You enumerated sixteen different injuries on the girl's body. Now do you contend that all of those were incurred in the fall on the porch? A.—I said there were sixteen injuries.

Fall Cause of All?

Q.—Yes. I counted the number of bruises and other injuries mentioned by you and I want to know whether you think they were all caused by the fall on the porch? A.—O, no, sir.

The judge, who was following the examination closely, leaned over the bench and put a question.

Q.—What could have caused the bruises on the jaw? A.—Well, being of lighter texture, I would say the blow on the jaw resulted from the fall.

Mr. Underwood broke in.

Says Teeth Caused Bruise.

Q.—Are you trying to say that a girl falling on the right side of her head suffered bruises on her lower left jaw? A.—I have seen hundreds of such cases. The bruise is caused by the gnashing of the teeth.

"My teeth aren't down there," the prosecutor said, feeling his own jaw. "Now tell me, didn't those marks on the jaw come from a fist?"

"No," answered the doctor.

"Take the witness," Mr. Underwood snapped, sitting down abruptly.

Attorney Oldham launched into the question of Arlene's morals. Kirkland, who had been slouching in his chair, sat erect. Spectators leaned forward and the dead girl's sisters, Mrs. Lillian Clemens, Elsie, and Carolyn Draves, covered their eyes. Dr. Springer reached over and began to toy with a desk calendar on the judge's bench.

Asks if She's Virgin.

Q.—When you mentioned the autopsy, you didn't want the jury to infer that Arlene was a virgin, did you, doctor?

Mr. Underwood—I object. The girl's virginity is not an issue here. She's in her grave. She can't come here to defend her honor.

Judge Crumpacker reflected a moment, his hand on his forehead. "Well, I'm not so sure," he said. "I believe I'll have to overrule you, Mr. Underwood."

Q.—Have you an opinion, based on the findings of the autopsy, as to the girl's virginity? A.—I have. She was not.

Arlene's sisters were weeping now. Her brothers, sitting beside the girls, stared straight ahead with lips compressed. Mr. Oldham went on.

"Excess of Alcohol."

Q.—What else did your examination disclose? A.—That she was suffering from an excess of alcohol shortly before death.

After further cross-examination Dr. Springer was dismissed. Stepping from the stand the bald, elderly, and sharp eyed surgeon glanced first at the jury and then towards the bench.

"Thank you, judge," he said, and walked out.

Dr. Seipel, big, broad shouldered, and carefully dressed, was the next witness called. Answering the identical questions put to Dr. Springer, he concurred in saying that Arlene's death was due to head injuries alone and that the internal ruptures described by Dr. Burcham were nonexistent.

"Take the witness," said Attorney Oldham, when the doctor had answered the question in ten words.

Underwood Cross-Examines.

Mr. Underwood—You said on direct examination that death was due to brain injury? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Was there anything in the question regarding a brain injury? A.—I understood him—that is—I thought something was said about the head.

Q.—Did you talk to Dr. Orlando F. Scott in the library; was he coaching you? A.—No, sir, I wouldn't allow any one to coach me.

The witness apparently was becoming flustered. Mr. Underwood shot his questions faster.

Q.—What internal inquries did you find? You said you discovered only one mark of internal injury? A.—Yes, and in my opinion that was antemortem.

Quizzed on "Ante-Mortem."

Q.—What do you mean—ante-mortem? A.—I mean after death. That is—yes, ante-mortem.

Dr. Seipel's face flushed. The spectators tittered as Mr. Underwood shot his next question.

Q.—Don't you know, doctor, that the term is post-mortem, not ante-mortem? A.—Yes, I guess you're right, of course.

Q.—Doctor, where is the cerebellum. A.—It's in the back of the head.

Q.—What? Don't you know that the cerebellum is in the front of the head? Where did you go to school? A.—Well—I don't understand! I went to medical school four years.

Gary Youth Next Witness.

"Sit up straight and speak louder, Mr. Thiel," the judge admonished him. The lawyer sat up.

The questioning developed that Hood had been in the Gary restaurant of Nick Christoff a few days after Arlene's death and overheard the restaurant owner say he knew nothing of the case. Christoff, on the stand for the prosecution, had sworn he saw Kirkland come into the restaurant the night of the girl's death with blood stained hands.

On cross-examination Mr. Underwood brought out that the witness heard Christoff say something about Kirkland's stained hands.

The next witness, Irene McQuarry, a clerk in a Gary department store, was summoned to prove that Kirkland had bought Arlene a pair of gloves two days before her death. The witness recalled seeing Arlene in the store with an escort, but could not identify Kirkland or recall who had paid for the gloves.

Tells About Frock Purchase.

Martin Beier, a heavy set youth of 20, who played football with Kirkland on the Gary High school team, was called to prove that the defendant purchased the frock used for Arlene's shroud. He told the jury that Kirkland, Arlene, and himself had motored to downtown Gary the day before her death.

Q.—Where had you been? A.—We were over to Arlene's house in my dad's car. Then we drove downtown to 7th and Broadway.

Q.—You stopped at a dress shop? A.—Yes, Babe went in and tried on a dress. It was black, with white trimmings. She came out and told Virgil she thought it would be a hot number. Virgil gave her $10 and she got the dress.

Beier's memory failed him on the cross-examination.

Doesn't Remember Purse.

Q.—Isn't it a fact that Arlene's brother, Ed, gave her the money for the very purpose of buying that dress, and that she put it in her purse and gave the purse to Virgil? Answer if you know. A.—I don't know. I don't remember a purse.

Evan Madera, a tall, tanned young man, who, with his wife, was a guest at the Gary liquor revel during which Arlene died, told the jury he had mixed most of the alcohol cocktails and served the wine. Mr. Thiel questioned him exhaustively on the quantity of liquor Arlene drank. He said he saw her take one glass of wine and one cocktail.

Q.—How tall was the glass she drank from? A.—About six or eight inches. Big enough to hold a pint.

Q.—How many of those did you have? More than one? Two? Three? More than four? A.—I don't know.

Admits He Was Drunk.

Q.—You got pretty drunk? A.—I guess so.

It was Madera's wife, Ethel, a pretty girl of 19 years, who told of the party in honor of Arlene's engagement to Kirkland two weeks before her death and of the elopement to Valparaiso, the plan being balked when Arlene reconsidered her promise to marry.

Q.—How long have you known Virgil Kirkland? A.—About five years. I used to see him now and then with Arlene. She never came over to my house though.

Q.—Did you see her two weeks before her death at a party? A.—Yes. She and Virgil were going to get married and we had the party in Henry Shirk's apartment. There were four or five couples.

Q.—What happened? A.—We went to Valpo. Virgil was going to get the license, but Arlene finally decided not to. She was sick that night.

Elden Cook, a Gary youth, and James A. Patterson, law partner of Mr. Thiel, also were called. Cook testified that the reputation of a state witness, Fred Phillips, was "bad." Mr. Patterson declared that on the day following Arlene's death, he was in Texas, thereby contradicting the restaurant owner, Christoff, who has sworn he saw Mr. Patterson on legal business that day.

Porch Floor Is of Wood.

A development today was the discovery by defense attorneys that the porch floor on which Arlene fell, described by Mr. Underwood and one state witness as made of concrete, is in fact a wooden floor. Since every hypothetical question put to doctors in the case has included that erroneous assumption of a concrete floor, observers thought the defense might move for a mistrial.

Barratt O'Hara of defense counsel indicated he would be content to let the error stand, leaving Prosecutor Underwood to correct it if he cared to. Mr. O'Hara said a mistrial motion would be of no advantage to Kirkland but intimated the error might, in his opinion, have a bearing should Kirkland be convicted and appeal to the Supreme court.

BONDS OF $145,000 SET AS DILLON IS HELD TO GRAND JURY

Edward (Toddy) Dillon, 24 years old, was held to the grand jury yesterday in $145,000 bonds on five charges of robbery. Judge Frank Padden in the Felony court picked out the five strongest cases against Dillon for grand jury action. He ordered the forty or more other robbery victims to appear at the trial as corroborative evidence.

Dillon, who was arrested last week in the lobby of the Erlanger theater while attending the performance with a schoolgirl, daughter of well to do parents, seemed amused by the proceedings in court. He smiled while Attorney W. W. O'Brien did the talking in his behalf. The attorney, who was retained by Dillon's mother from St. Louis, waived any preliminary trial in the Felony court.

Former Judge Joseph L. McCarthy was among those appearing in court yesterday to complain against Dillon. The former judge and his wife were held up on Jan. 27 as they were nearing their home at 4730 Magnolia avenue.

STORM EXPECTED TO BRING SNOW TO CITY TODAY

A storm which loosed heavy snows over the Rockies and the western plains as far south as Oklahoma and Texas was moving eastward last night and is scheduled to arrive in Chicago, but in chastened form, today.

The official forecast is that snow is probable today and that tomorrow will be partly cloudy. No great change in temperature is expected. According to Forecaster W. P. Day, there is some uncertainty about the arrival of the snow; it may miss Chicago and sweep farther to the south.

The fall yesterday in the Rockies interrupted highway traffic and the air service. In western Nebraska an eight inch blanket was reported and farmers welcomed the mositure after an almost snowless winter. The snow was followed by rapidly lowering temperatures in Colorado, Montana, and Wyoming. At Evanston, Wyo., the reading was zero.

In many parts of the south unusually low temperatures were recorded. Four miles west of Jacksonville, Fla., the mercury fell to 31 degrees, while Miami's low was 46. The indications were that Florida would be warmer today.

CYCLONE RAGES ON BRITISH ISLE IN INDIAN OCEAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CAPE TOWN, South Africa, March 5.—A message from Port Louis, Mauritius, today said the most devastating cyclone in 25 years had been raging there since 10 o'clock last night.

Loss of life has not been determined, but property damage is enormous, and it is feared all crops were ruined. The steamers Clangraham and Sangate Castle were ashore in the harbor.

The cyclone, the message said, was accompanied by torrential rains. Banks and business houses have closed down, and all electric communications are interrupted.

Mauritius is a British island colony in the Indian ocean, 600 miles east of Madagascar. The population of Port Louis is about 50,000.

75 IN PERIL AS BREAKWATER ON ISLAND GIVES WAY

HALIFAX, N. S., March 5.—(AP)—Marine and fisheries officials today were investigating a report that a section of the breakwater at Devil's island had given way in the southeast gale still blowing, and the lives of seventy-five residents were in peril. Devil's island, at the mouth of the Halifax harbor, is inhabited mainly by operators of the twin lighthouses.

ATLANTIC COAST STORM IS ABATING; TUGBOAT WRECKED

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—The north Atlantic coast had more normal weather today as Wednesday's storm passed on into Nova Scotia. Locally, incoming liners reported hurricanes which made them overdue and the tide continued high, showing 6.7 above low mean water, more than a foot over the prediction of the United States coast and geodetic survey.

The only serious marine accident reported was the sinking of the tug Roger C. Sullivan, out of New York, which was driven on a ledge in a snowstorm at 4 a. m. off Massachusetts. The captain and a crew of twelve took to lifeboats and safely reached the Hen and Chickens lightship.

Aid for Helpless Steamer.

HALIFAX, N. S., March 5.—(AP)—Aid was speeding through the north Atlantic tonight to the British steamer Rosalind, lying helpess half way between St. John's, N. F., and this port. The vessel, which has 35 passengers, lost her propeller in a squall. She was bound from St. John's to Halifax.

ARRESTED AS A ROBBER.

Willard Payne, colored, 7217 Bennett avenue, was arrested yesterday on a charge of robbery. The complainant, Walter Donohue, 7328 Greenwood avenue, who was held up on Jan. 24, pointed out Payne to a police squad.

GALPIN REVEALED FIELD CHIEF FOR THOMPSON RACE

Takes Charge of Work at Mount Clemens.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Homer K. Galpin, according to persistent and well confirmed reports, is to do the heavy, practical work of the Thompson mayoralty campaign. Emil C. Wetten, an attorney, is slated for the title of chairman of the campaign committee, but the business of lining up hostile ward leaders, forming alliances, and distributing funds, it is understood, will be done by Galpin behind the scenes.

HOMER K. GALPIN. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

The first report of this development came from Washington during Thompson's recent visit to the capital. Galpin was seen there at that time and was quoted as saying that he was in the campaign to the finish. The next report came from Mount Clemens, Mich., where Thompson is being treated for rheumatism. Galpin was there and was taking charge of the organization work.

Here Just Before Primary.

These facts are supported by general knowledge among politicians that Thompson wanted Galpin to take charge of his primary battle and that Galpin refused and went to his summer home in Florida. He did not leave there until, in response to urgent pleas from Thompson, he returned to handle his old ward, the 27th, which gave Thompson a 9 to 1 majority over Judge Lyle.

Thompson's actual lead in this comparatively small ward was 8,600, the largest he received anywhere except in the colored wards. This is said to have pleased Thompson so much that he renewed his insistence that he must have the services of Galpin for the election campaign.

After more than two years of voluntary exile that began when Frank J. Loesch, special prosecutor, started trying to get him before a grand jury to tell about the Thompson campaign funds, Galpin is said to have agreed to handle the campaign from behind the scenes while Attorney Wetten is directing the public meetings and similar affairs.

Plan Separate Headquarters.

The Thompson headquarters rooms in the Hotel Sherman have been retained and Wetten will be in charge there with Galpin holding forth in other rooms on another floor.

But this arrangement has not been reached with entire amicability, it is reported. William J. Balmer, commissioner of public service, who was chairman during the primary campaign, is said to have resented being replaced by Wetten, who is a newcomer in the Thompson fold.

Balmer also is reported irritated by the Thompson welcome given to William H. Reid, committeeman of the Sixteenth ward, who refused to line up actively in the early stages of the primary and came back home only after the victory was assured. Balmer is committeeman of the Seventeenth ward, which adjoins Reid's, and he is said to have charged that while he, Balmer, was busy at headquarters, Reid tried to pull both wards over to Lyle.

Balmer to Replace Wolfe?

A rumor supplementing these reports is that as a solace for his injured feelings Balmer has been promised the post of commissioner of public works now held by Richard W. Wolfe. One version of this is that both Wolfe and Thompson have had enough of each other and that the change will be made before April 7, but the more credited form of the gossip is that Balmer has been promised the place if Thompson wins.

With the informal opening of their main campaign headquarters on the bank floor of the Ashland block at Clark and Randolph streets, the Democrats were operating in five places in the loop in support of A. J. Cermak. The total will be cut down to four soon, but already there is talk that new branches may be required during the campaign.

The primary headquarters on the fourth floor of the Sherman will be transferred to the Ashland block soon, but that still leaves the business men's committee, headed by Col. A. A. Sprague, in the Hotel La Salle, the Republican independent headquarters in the City Hall Square building, and the county committee headquarters in the mezzanine floor of the Sherman.

Bundesen Withdraws Name.

The election board has received the formal withdrawal from the mayoralty lists of the name of Coroner Bundesen, which was filed without his authority, and also the withdrawal of the name of Charles C. Roe, which was filed under the "Citizens' Nonpartisan" label. In announcing his withdrawal Roe said that an independent Republican organization he heads will be with Cermak.

Attorneys for the Democratic organization are examining several other independent mayoralty certificates filed with the election board and a court attack probably will be made upon those still on file after next Monday, the last day for withdrawal.

BRIDGE MURDER JURY IS LOCKED UP FOR NIGHT

Reed Hits Camera Man in Courtroom.

BULLETIN.

Kansas City, Mo., March 5.—(AP)—Court proceedings were enlivened late tonight when former Senator Reed objected after a newspaper photographer took a courtroom picture of Mrs. Bennett, J. Francis O'Sullivan, defense attorney, and Mr. Reed. Witnesses said the ex-senator struck the photographer, George Cauthen, with his fist. Cauthen did not strike back.

Kansas City, Mo., March 5.—(AP)—The jury considering the fate of Mrs. Myrtle A. Bennett, charged with the murder of her wealthy husband after a bridge game argument, was locked up late tonight until 9 a. m. tomorrow after each of the twelve men told the trial judge they could not reach an early verdict.

At 10 o'clock the twelve men requested and received a plat of the fashionable south side apartment in which John G. Bennett, wealthy perfume salesman, was killed. Later the jury told the judge early agreement appeared unlikely.

Mrs. Bennett remained in the courtroom, sitting at the table of her counsel and conversing in low tones with friends.

Arguments Are Made.

The case went to the jury after attorneys variously pictured the comely 38 year old widow as a killer, who acted after a card table argument, and as an unwitting figure in a tragic accident.

In closing argument James G. Page, county prosecutor, declared Bennett died after evidence showed "the defendant slipping up on him to shoot him in the back."

Previously Judge Ralph S. Latshaw, in his instructions, had ruled a verdict of second degree murder, with a minimum sentence of ten years' imprisonment was the most severe penalty possible. The prosecution had charged first degree murder.

"We will punish this woman so other women will not get mad and kill their husbands," Page cried.

Statement Ruled Out.

Former Senator James A. Reed, defense counsel, objected, and the court ordered the jury to disregard the statement.

"The jury will not punish this woman as a lesson to any one," Judge Latshaw said.

J. Francis O'Sullivan, defense attorney, supported Mrs. Bennett's testimony yesterday that her husband was slain in the accidental discharge of his revolver. She said she had obtained the weapon at his request so he could placed it in his traveling bag as he prepared for a sales trip.

Pleads for Acquittal.

O'Sullivan, who was a friend of the slain man, in pleading for an acquittal said: "I am here doing what, from years of acquaintance with him, I know John Bennett would want me to do. If he were here today he would order me to protect the wife he loved and to give solace to the old mother-in-law he loved. Bennett was a fine fellow who occasionally lost his temper."

Former Senator Reed delivered the final plea for the defense in a 55 minute speech that brought tears to the eyes of the defendant. The courtroom was packed, spectators crowding the aisles and the space inside the railing.

"If you are going to give her one ounce of penalty, give her the limit under the law," he said. "If you penalize her you will destroy her."

Waukegan Man Held Up; Robber Takes His Clothes

Raymond Pearson, 1027 Pacific avenue, Waukegan, while delivering packages for the cleaning and dyeing concern which employs him, was met last night by a robber who compelled him to drive to the lake front. When Pearson was next heard from he was telephoning from a residence, into which he was smuggled by a male member of the household, to tell the police that the robber had taken his watch, $50, and all his raiment.

'LUMBER' LEAKS; OFFICERS SEIZE $70,000 IN RUM

Indianapolis, Ind., March 5.—[Special.]—Betrayed by leaking bottles, 14,094 safe and sound bottles of the "real stuff" came to Indianapolis today as prisoners of the federal government.

The liquor, valued at $70,470 and described by federal prohibition agents as genuine bottled in bond, was seized as Evansville in a freight car labeled "lumber." It was said the liquor had been sent from a distillery in Vancouver, B. C., and was bound in a roundabout way for Cicero, Ill.

About half the freight car was filled with two by fours and other lumber, but the remainder was crowded with 1,132 burlap sacks, each containing twelve pints. Authorities were attracted to the car when the "lumber was found leaking."

AWARDED $7,500 IN SUIT AGAINST UNION OFFICIALS

Robert Madden, 834 East 65th street, a heating contractor, was awarded damages of $7,500 from Charles M. Rau and Martin J. Durkin, officials of the Steamfitters' Protective association, by a jury in Superior Judge Kavanagh's court yesterday. Madden had sued for $50,000, alleging that the two labor union officials had conspired to ruin his business by calling a strike of all his workmen. Rau and Durkin denied the charges. Attorney George Sullivan, representing the complainant, said mandamus proceedings will be started to compel the defendants to supply Madden with workmen.

LAWYERS AGREE TO GO ON WITH TRIAL OF WHITE

Two of State Witnesses Still Missing.

As a result of an agreement reached by the prosecutors and defense counsel at a heated secret session in Judge Joseph Sabath's Criminal court it was decided yesterday to go on with the trial of William J. ["Three Fingered Jack"] White, despite the fact that several important state witnesses are missing.

Judge Sabath, it was reported, told the attorneys for both sides that he wants no more disputes such as occurred on Wednesday, when the trial was suddenly adjourned after charges and counter charges of jury fixing and witness tampering.

Offers to Concede Testimony.

Attorney W. W. O'Brien, chief counsel for White, who is being tried a second time for the murder of Policeman Edward Pflaume of Forest Park because the Supreme court reversed the original conviction, agreed to concede certain testimony if the state is unable to find its missing witnesses. The judge, however, said that he wanted these witnesses produced if it is possible.

The selection of the last four jurors to complete the jury was delayed because of the secret session. The judge, however, said that the jury must be completed today and testimony started on Monday.

Two Witnesses Found.

Two of the witnesses who were believed by the prosecution to have been missing were accounted for yesterday. They are Harry Morris, golf professional, and Joseph Schaeffer, both of McHenry. They are expected to help the prosecution in its effort to prove that White participated in the McHenry bank robbery a few weeks before the Pflaume killing. Hilding Hansen and John Joyce, whom the state had expected to identify White in two robberies, were still missing.

The prosecution was reported last evening to have found another witness against White in another bank robbery. Prosecutor Ditchburne, however, refused to discuss the report.

400 Offer Blood to Save Life of Young Mother

Four hundred men and women called at or telephoned to the county hospital yesterday offering blood for transfusion to save the life of a young mother, Mrs. Gwendolyn Bailey, 19 years old, 1951 Fremont street. Mrs. Bailey on Dec. 27 gave birth to a girl and illness developed. A transfusion was resorted to on Feb. 3, and another on Feb. 16. A third transfusion may be attempted today, doctors said.

FORMER MAGISTRATE ADMITS THEFT; SAYS HE'LL REPAY MONEY

JAMES M. FERON.

James M. Feron, former police magistrate of Oak Park, entered a plea of guilty to petty larceny yesterday after he had been virtually assured that he will be released on probation if he makes restitution of $15,408 to the village. He was before Judge John Prystalski in the Criminal court on a charge of embezzling the village funds while he was an official.

A delegation from the village board of Oak Park appeared in court and announced that probation would not be opposed if restitution was made. Attorney Michael L. Carmody, in behalf of Feron, said his client would pay back "every cent" within two weeks and final disposition of the case was continued to March 19.

The deficit in the former magistrate's accounts was discovered last spring following his mysterious disappearance. He was not found for many months and was finally recognized in a south side theater. He contended then that the village might have a civil suit against him, but denied any criminal responsibility.

THREE CHICAGO GUNMEN IN N. Y. FOR DEPORTATION

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Three Chicago gangsters arrived in New York today, but they were under armed guard and are merely en route to their native Italy under orders from Secretary of Labor William N. Doak. As "undesirables" they will be deported to Italy on the first boat scheduled to sail, which will be Saturday.

Each of the men had been arrested and convicted of crimes in Illinois, but instead of being sent to prison they were ordered out of the country. One of them is described as Frank Covell, alias Frank Kelly, who had charge of a gang of government revenue stamp counterfeiters, according to the Chicago police. The others are Giuseppe di Santis and Nick Bernardi, both of whom were convicted of operating houses of prostitution in Cicero, Ill., and with rum running. All of them were linked with the Al Capone forces.

The men are accompanied by four armed guards, who hustled them directly to Ellis island. They represent three of the more than 700 undesirables who have been marked for deportation since Secretary Doak began his drive against undesirable residents last year.

ARREST BANDITS ABOUT TO ROB FOURTH VICTIM

A series of three oil station holdups which began at 7:50 o'clock last night ended exactly one hour later, when the bandits, about to perpetrate a fourth robbery, were seized by a radio warned police squad.

The prisoners identified themselves as Dan Serritella, 17 years old, 1350 Elburn avenue; Anthony Rufo, 18, of 1125 Lyttle street, and Frank Domino, 17, of 3343 Grenshaw street.

Shortly before 8 o'clock the youths held up Everett Kerver, attendant at the oil station at 4400 North Western avenue, and took $25. A police radio message gave 248 as the first three numbers of the bandit car. Next the trio took $25 from Fred Brown, station attendant at 4620 North Western avenue, and followed with a $26 robbery of Frank Janas at Diversey and Central Park avenues.

Lieut. Andy Barry and Sergts. Nicholas Reidy and Gordon McKune, warned by the radio alarm, sighted the robbers' car pulling into an oil station at Kedzie and Wabansia avenues. The arrest followed. Chief of Detectives Norton praised the squad for the arrest.

After 10 Years Ex-Wife Jails Him for Alimony

After ten years, Mason Spaulding, a motion picture operator, was in the County jail last night for his failure to pay alimony to his former wife, Mrs. Helen Spaulding divorced him in April of 1921 and was awarded $10 a week alimony. Spaulding left Chicago without making the first payment. Yesterday Mrs. Spaulding was passing through the county building when she saw her former husband. She summoned a bailiff. Spaulding was taken upstairs to Superior Judge Harry A. Lewis who imposed a sentence of six months for contempt of court. Spaulding's alimony bill is $5,160.

Mrs. Jan Joseph Chiapusso, wife of the concert pianist and his assistant on the faculty of the Bush Conservatory of Music, yesterday filed suit for divorce, alleging cruelty. Before their marriage in Marshalltown, Ia., in June, 1928, Mrs. Chiapusso had concluded an extensive tour of the concert stage of Europe. She appeared under her maiden name, Lois Lynn Rogers, which she retained professionally after her marriage. On her return to this country she enrolled for further work under Chiapusso, and was married to him while still his pupil. Mrs. Chiapusso has removed to the Newberry hotel from their former home at 739 Briar place.

SMOOT SEES NO TAX INCREASE BY NEXT CONGRESS

Economic Recovery Will Prevent It, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—Indications of an economic recovery which will extend so steadily that it will be unnecessary for congress to increase taxes at the next session, are seen by Senator Reed Smoot [Rep., Utah], chairman of the senate finance committee, he said today.

He said he now saw a treasury deficit of some 500 million dollars for the present fiscal year, but added that if conditions continued to be better, the deficit could be adjusted without resort to increased taxation.

"What this country needs most now," Senator Smoot said, "is normal buying by the population. They have been holding off and deferring their purchases, while waiting for the bottom in prices to be reached.

"People are also making their purchases last longer. By that I mean that their replacements have been held up. But now the time has arrived when replacements must be made, and when the pendulum has once begun to swing, more buying will be stimulated and better times will prevail.

"I do not think it will be necessary to raise taxes at the next session of congress. Of course, this all depends upon how much business recovers and makes revenue for the treasury under the present tax rates. But I think we are in for better times."

U. S. HELP URGED IN DEVELOPING CHICAGO HARBOR

Many Plans Presented to Army Engineers.

Expenditure of millions of dollars by the federal government in the development of canal and harbor facilities in the Calumet district, which will be a terminus of the lakes to gulf waterway, was urged yesterday before the special army board of engineers engaged in a survey of the proposed improvements.

The board, headed by Col. E. M. Markham of Cleveland, divisional engineer, listened for three hours to spokesmen for 200 city officials and representatives of industrial, shipping and civic groups at a public hearing held in the naval reserve armory at Randolph street and Lake Michigan. Each of a dozen speakers advocated immediate and extensive federal aid in solving the harbor problems of the Chicago region.

Recommendations to Congress.

Col. Markham announced at the close of the hearing that the board expects to send its recommendations to Washington next November in time for them to form the basis for legislation at the regular session of congress, convening in December.

The army survey was undertaken last October following the enactment of a bill providing for it. The bill was sponsored by Representative Morton D. Hull [Rep., Ill.]. Studies are being made into the feasibility of widening and deepening the Calumet, Grand Calumet, and Little Calumet rivers and the Sag channel and of developing harbors in Lake Calumet, Wolf lake, and along the shore line of Lake Michigan.

"We want to find out how many and which of these improvements justify federal aid and which should come first," said Col. Markham. "It must be shown that any proposed federal improvement will benefit waterborne commerce through greater convenience, increased volume, or reduced charges."

Col. Weeks Heads Staff.

Col. W. C. Weeks, resident Chicago engineer, is in charge of the staff making the survey. Other board members who were present at the hearing were Col. A. G. Caples and Col. G. R. Spalding.

Speaking for the Chicago Association of Commerce, of which he is president, Col. Robert Isham Randolph stressed the necessity of opening the Sag channel as of major importance so as to give passage to barges carrying cargoes from Lake Michigan to the Illinois waterway. The channel now is too narrow and shallow for navigation. It should be at least 200 feet wide and 9 feet deep, he said.

Ald William A. Rowan [10th], a member of the city council harbors committee, emphasized the fact that the whole Chicago region would mutually benefit from waterway development in the Calumet district. Because of the open bridge problem, he said, the loop interests no longer want shipping in the Chicago river and its logical development should be to the south. He pictures there a vast industrial development as a part of a greater Chicago.

Putnam Proposes Five Plans.

Five specific plans were recommended by Maj. Rufus Putnam, former army engineer and now consulting engineer for the Grand Calumet River Improvement association. He urged nine foot channels for each of the Calumet rivers and the Sag canal and improvement of the Indiana Harbor ship canal. Spokesmen for several other Calumet groups made pleas for the individual improvements desired for their communities.

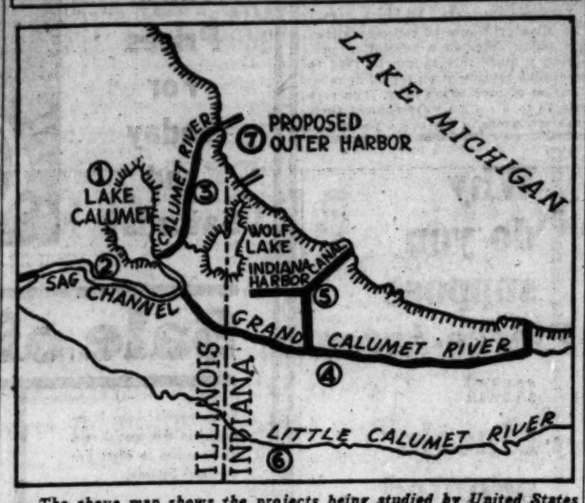
Benjamin F. Kleeman, attorney for the council harbors committee, urged the importance of Lake Calumet as an inland industrial harbor. He recounted the futile attempts by different Chicago city administrations to make a start on the harbor and expressed the hope that the federal government would consider it among the first of the projects it would promote.

Other Speakers Listed.

Among the other speakers were Charles A. Livingston of the Illinois Manufacturers association; Theodore Brent of the Mississippi Valley association; Commissioner of Public Works Richard W. Wolfe, and representatives of several railroad and shipping companies.

Col. Markham stated that the board of engineers will remain in Chicago several days to study the supplemental reports and maps presented at the hearing and will return here periodically to direct the work of its own staff. A great mass of data already has been gathered, he said, and definite progress has been made. The board's recommendations, however, will not be made public until they have been approved by the chief of engineers of the war department at Washington, D. C.

Federal Aid for Harbor Plans Sought



The above map shows the projects being studied by United States engineers for development of waterway facilities in the Calumet region. They are (1) Lake Calumet harbor, (2) Widening and deepening of Sag channel of sanitary district canal, (3) Widening and deepening of Calumet river, (4) Widening and deepening of Grand Calumet river, (5) Widening and deepening of Indiana Harbor ship canal, (6) Widening and deepening of Little Calumet river, (7) Proposed outer harbor.

HOOVER WILL GO TO ASHEVILLE ON VISIT TO ILL SON

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—President Hoover plans to leave Washington Saturday night for Asheville, N. C., to visit his son, Herbert Hoover Jr., who has been ill several months.

Under present plans the President will spend only one day with his son, leaving Asheville Sunday night and returning here Monday morning. It will be his first visit to his son, who has been at Asheville several months. Mrs. Hoover is expected to accompany him.

The White House, in making the announcement, said the plans were contingent upon the chief executive completing a mass of work which piled up during the last days of congress. Indications were, however, this would be done.

Herbert Hoover Jr. is making rapid progress toward recovery, the White House said.

DENY A. P. MOORE PROMISED FUND BEFORE WEDDING

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 5.—(AP)—Denial of knowledge of any prenuptial agreement between Alexander P. Moore and Lillian Russell, actress, was made today by defense witnesses at the hearing of the suit by Mrs. Dorothy Russell Calvit to break the will of her stepfather, former ambassador to Spain.

Witnesses for Mrs. Calvit previously had testified of such an agreement whereby Moore was to leave his stepdaughter half of his estate. She was left $1,000 out of an estate of $600,000.

Attorney John S. Weller, who said he had known Moore since 1899 and had drawn wills for him since the death of his wife, quoted Moore as once having said regarding Mrs. Calvit: "I owe her nothing. She has talent and should work and, besides, she is married."

MISSING CAPONE TAX WITNESS FOUND BY U. S.

La Cava Before Jury; Alterie Makes Bond.

CRIMINAL COURT.

Anthony Barthouses, Nick Malliviers, and Jerry Jaros, robbery, sentenced to 1 to 20 years each in the penitentiary by Judge Ross C. Hall.

Louis La Cava, long sought missing link in the development of an income tax case against Al Capone, head man on the public enemy roster, has been apprehended by a federal agent and brought back to Chicago on a forthwith grand jury subpoena.

This was learned yesterday when La Cava spent several hours in the grand jury chambers while his attorney combed the federal building searching for him. La Cava's predecessor as a grand jury witness in the Capone case was Louis Alterie, who was locked up on Wednesday on a charge of perjury growing out of his testimony in connection with Capone's Cicero gambling enterprises.

La Cava, it has been reported, is regarded by the federal investigators as a key witness necessary to the perfection of an income tax case against Capone.

Checks Tell of Profits.

Books, papers, and canceled checks seized by detectives led by John Stege, then deputy chief, in 1926, during a raid on a gambling house at 4738 West 22d street, indicated that millions of dollars had been reaped by the Cicero gambling combine headed by Capone. La Cava's name figured prominently in the records, and one canceled check, in the amount of $17,320, was made out to him and signed by Fred Ries.

Fred Ries was the Capone gambling house cashier who took the stand for the government in the trial of Jack Guzik, chief lieutenant of Capone, and testified that the average net monthly profits of the Cicero temples of chance were from $25,000 to $30,000. Ries named Al Capone, Ralph Capone, Jack Guzik, and Frank Nitti, the latter three having been sentenced to the penitentiary for income tax evasion, as the owners of the gambling houses.

Report Pope Before Jury.

The name of Frankie Pope also appeared in the records of the gambling houses raided by Stege's men. Pope was reported to have testified before the grand jury last week in connection with Capone's unreported income.

La Cava, according to police, has been away from Chicago for several years, like Alterie, who went into seclusion on his ranch in Riland, Colo., to escape the vengeance of rival gangsters. Where the federal government located La Cava was not disclosed. A. P. Madden, head of the intelligence unit, revenue bureau, which has charge of income tax fraud cases, would not admit that La Cava had been seized.

Alterie, the pal of the late Dean O'Banion, who once issued a public challenge to meet the slayers of his chieftain at State and Madison streets and shoot it out, spent yesterday in the United States marshal's lockup before gaining his release at 5 p. m. on a $15,000 bond fixed by United States Commission Walker on the perjury charge pending a hearing on March 12.

Alterie was charged with perjuring himself in denying to the grand jurors that he owned an interest in a gambling house at 4835 West 22d street, Cicero.

Wins Patten $100

MRS. GEORGIANNA JUUL.

Mrs. Georgiana Juul, Evanston policewoman, was given the $100 James A. Patten award for the best police work in the Evanston department for February. The award was made for the arrest Feb. 10 of Warren Thompson and Charles Simpson, who have since been held to the grand jury in bonds of $20,000 each for the alleged raping of two girls. The girls reported the attacks to Mrs. Juul and the latter found and arrested the young men.

COUNTERFEIT RING IS ROUNDED UP AT DUQUOIN, ILLINOIS

Duquoin, Ill., March 5.—[Special.]—Through the efforts of Chief of Police Lloyd E. Pyle of Duquoin and his force of assistants, a money counterfeiting ring has been broken up and the principals arrested.

The four men arrested were Oscar Oriof, 31, of Staunton, Ill.; Elmer Buck and John Bailey of Duquoin, and Willie Lloyd, whose residence is not known. Benjamin Hartsock and Charles Bradley, both of Duquoin, were arrested on a charge of passing counterfeit money.

At request of the police, C. J. Haubner of the United States secret service came from St. Louis and assisted in the arrest of the men.

Oriof appears to be the master mind of the gang. He signed a statement telling of making and passing counterfeit money. Several months ago Oriof was released from prison at Angola, La. Since then, according to his statement, he has operated in Marshall, Tex.; Little Rock, Ark.; St. Louis, Mo.; and Paducah, Ky. He declared money he and his associates passed here was made in St. Louis.

Mine Workers' Offices at Springfield Closed

Springfield, Ill., March 5.—(AP)—Provisional offices of district 12 of the United Mine Workers of America here, placed in operation by President John L. Lewis when he revoked the charter of the district in 1929, were closed today. Officials said the offices would remain closed.

COUNCIL SCORES POLICE HEAD FOR RAIDING CHURCH

Philadelphia, Pa., March 5.—(AP)—Recent activities of police raiding squads and Director of Public Safety Lemuel S. Schofield drew sharp criticism in the city council today. The criticism was evoked by information that the raiders had visited St. Peter's Protestant Episcopal church in Germantown to investigate an anonymous report liquor was being carried into the parish house.

No liquor was found in the church or parish house, but Capt. Reuben Reynolds, who led the investigators, said an empty carton, which had contained 24 pint bottles, was found near a cellar window. The officer said he believed the carton had been used by a bootlegger who utilized the church premises as a place to hide liquor.

The Rev. Dr. A. P. Van Meter, secretary of the Episcopal diocese of Pennsylvania, said the question of a protest against the action of the police would be taken up with church authorities.

"The sanctity of the home should be preserved and certainly that of the church," Dr. Van Meter asserted. "The police should have very good evidence before they take such an action. It is evident, however, that they were not in possession of any definite facts."

MERCHANT KILLS HIMSELF.

Brownfield, Ill., March 5.—[Special.]—D. A. King, dry goods merchant, member of a prominent pioneer family of Pope county, committed suicide today by hanging himself in a barn.

VICE OFFICER BROKE HER ARM, GIRL TESTIFIES

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Molly Rosenblatt, pasty faced girl born in the Ukraine and raised on the streets of New York, testified before the Seabury investigation today that a plain clothes man had broken her arm when he arrested her in 1929.

The plain clothes man accused is James T. Brady. Brady and Patrolman Robert E. Morris, his partner, have already been shown to have banked a small fortune over a period of four years.

The girl testified that Brady and Morris had arrested her on charges of prostitution.

Miss Rosenblatt said that her doorbell rang and she answered. When her door was opened a few inches, she declared, Brady reached through and grabbed her arm.

"I tried to fight him off and he bent my arm back of me until I heard the bone snap," she said. "Then I fell on the floor."

Under arrest, she was taken to the prison ward at the Harlem hospital, and remained there five weeks. Later she was sent to the reformatory.

WILL EXHUME BODY OF BOY.

Nashville, Ind., March 5.—[Special.]—The body of Perry Roberts, 16, will be exhumed here and an autopsy held to determine the cause of death, authorities here said today. The boy died several weeks ago and cause was given as pneumonia. The father today expressed belief death was due to injuries suffered in a fight at Clark church.

BRITISH EMPTY CELLS IN INDIA AS "WAR" ENDS

Gandhi Orders Nation to Cease Revolt.

within a very reasonable future or a revolution will be launched again.

"I must confess," he said, as he drank his milk out of a prison jug which he took from jail, "what seems to have been yielded by the English at the London conference is not half enough. If the all-India Nationalist congress succeeds in making its position acceptable at the next conference, then I can claim the fruits of my effort for complete independtnce. The goal of the congress remains complete independence. It is India's birthright as it is of any nation worthy the name. India cannot be satisfied with anything less."

Miss Slade, the English admiral's daughter, kept tiptoeing in on bare feet to serve the "holy man's" food and drink as the talk progressed.

Warns of Possible "Explosion."

It was the first time in his life that Gandhi has broken his silence regarding the Indian states and the medieval rule maintained by their autocratic princes. He made it clear that compatriotic India as now ruled by the British, could never federate with the Indian states under the present conditions prevailing in most of them.

"Undiluted autocracy, however benevolent it may be, and an undiluted democracy, is an incompatible mixture which is bound to result in explosion," Gandhi warned, adding that if the princes refused to listen to the appeal, "they would make the position of the all-India congress untenable and even most awkward."

Only with the greatest restraint had his party in the past refrained from mixing in the affairs of state, he explained.

"I hope now the princes will not shut their ears to the plea on behalf of the states and their peoples," he went on.

"India Not a Sickly Child."

Safeguards in the interests of India may be purely illusory, although he admitted they could also be helpful to a young country.

"We do not consider India a sickly child requiring outside help and props," the Nationalist chieftain said. "The implication in inviting our congress to enter a round table conference is that it will not be deterred by any consideration save that of incapacity from pressing for fullest freedom."

He willingly offered the olive branch to the British, whom only a week ago, he confided, he did not trust.

"If India is to come into her own through conference and consultation, the good will and active help of Englishmen are absolutely essential," he continued.

"I should like to appeal also to the people of the great American republic. I know this struggle, based as it is upon truth and nonviolence from which, alas, we votaries have on occasion undoubtedly strayed, has fired the imagination of Americans and excited their curiosity. From curiosity they have progressed to tangible help, and sympathy. On behalf of the congress and myself, I can say we are truly grateful.

"I venture to suggest that if India reaches her goal of liberty through truth and nonviolence she will have made no small contribution to the world of peace for which all the nations are thirsting. She then would have rendered some slight return for the help other nations like America have freely given her."

The mahatma expressed regret that among his "fellow prisoners," who were being released, that those convicted of violence through political motives were not freed, too.

"No Victory for Either Side."

"If I could have justly secured their release in preference to my own I would have done it," he declared. "I promise that many of them will be released soon through the good will of the government.

"Neither side can claim victory. The congress never bid for victory. The congress has a definite goal to reach—self-government—and there is no question of victory until the goal has been reached."

Gandhi will remain here until Saturday to work out his plans for the round table conference as well as to attempt to settle the Hindu-Moslem question. He is the one Hindu in India that all the Mohammedans trust and he has convoked the leading Musulmans to meet him tomorrow.

"We will not go into any conference until we have settled our own disputes," he remarked.

Commons Cheers Peace Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 5.—Capt. W. Wedgwood Benn, secretary of state for India, was loudly cheered in the house of commons today when he proclaimed that peace had been attained in India through the peace pact signed by Viceroy Lord Irwin and Mahatma Gandhi. It was announced that the next step will be to complete arrangements for a new round table conference and to decide whether it will be held in London or in India.

A BUSINESS WOMAN SETTLES $10,000 ON DIVORCED HUSBAND

Cleveland, O., March 5.—[Special.]—A pretty young wife, who has enjoyed remarkable success in business, testified at her divorce hearing in common pleas court that she paid her husband $10,000 in an out of court settlement of his property rights.

The wife, Mrs. Pearl F. Brach, secretary and treasurer of an automobile sales company, owns real estate, stock and personal property with a reputed total value of approximately $250,000.

She charged her husband lacked ambition and also that he was guilty of extreme cruelty.

"I have paid my husband $10,000 to settle his dower rights and want to regain my freedom and devote the remainder of my life to business," she told the court. "I have worked since the day we were married and think my husband is a handicap."

Judge Silbert granted the divorce.

This coffee is known by the company it keeps!

THE preference of Chicago's internationally famed hostesses for Manor House Coffee is of more than ordinary significance. Their means enable them to command the world's best. Their cultured taste disregards mere cost. Yet McLaughlin's Manor House Coffee, preferred by those who would not be satisfied with anything less than the finest, is priced at only a few pennies more than ordinary blends.

Mrs. John Alden Carpenter

One of the greatest names in American decorating today. Fearlessly original, blessed with a heaven-born sense of artistry, this woman's every touch sings out with startling beauty.

"I would rather let a man select my hats than let the cook select my coffee," declares this expert in creating atmospheres. "For coffee is such a personal thing. It can absolutely spoil or perfect the meal for everybody. I find Manor House so perfectly blended that it achieves a sympathetic spirit with every mood and with every moment. Never has this wonderful Manor House spirit failed me, for never has the Manor House quality varied in richness or in freshness."

Mrs. Clement Studebaker, III

This accomplished young woman loves to cook, and has a gift for charming color effects . . . yellow table decorations in a dining room of dark brown and crimson!

"When I entertain I like to do the decorative dishes myself, and often cook the entire meal," she says. "Naturally I'm fussy about the coffee—I wouldn't think of trusting this grand finale to any but the finest blend. And that's Manor House. Nothing else seems to create the same atmosphere of contentment—or is so unvarying in flavor, year in and year out.

"Men especially love Manor House. Just the other night a guest said to his wife, 'Why in the world can't we have coffee like this?' And I know there would be immediate masculine protest in my family if any but this cheering coffee came to breakfast."

Mrs. Wm. Prescott Hunt, Jr.

You who have an affection for the fragrant memories of other days, come down into the bustle of the near north side, push the button of a half-century-old residence, and enter into another age. Then you will meet Mrs. William Prescott Hunt, delightful descendant of one of Chicago's most distinguished pioneers.

"I would not think of offering my guests any blend less perfect than Manor House," declares Mrs. Hunt. "And besides, the success of my dinners or luncheons would suffer, I am sure. For the very spirit of hospitality seems to center in the coffee. And, since I serve only Manor House, I know that the most critical connoisseurs among my guests will settle back in contentment.

"Another unusual quality about Manor House—it is always the same. In all these years, we have never had one disappointing package, and it is such a satisfaction to be sure of good coffee every time."

Tune in W.G.N every Sunday night, 7 to 8 o'clock, for the Manor House Dramatizations of the Grand Operas with stars singing the principal arias.

CYNTHIA MOSLEY BAPTIZES PARTY AMID FIST FIGHTS

Sir Oswald Forced to Stay Abed, Ill.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 5.—Lady Cynthia Mosley, member of parliament and granddaughter of the late Levi Leiter of Chicago, tonight faced a barrage of lively interruptions and an uproar as she officially baptized the new political party of her husband, Sir Oswald Mosley.

Sir Oswald was unable to officiate because he was ill, but every member of the huge audience received a letter from him apologizing for his absence and explaining his party's policy. Lady Cynthia proved herself an eloquent substitute.

Speaks with Gestures.

Gowned in black, this tall and good looking wife of the millionaire Socialist talked with gestures, sweeping her arms in great circles as she portrayed the failures of the present Labor government.

At times the meeting developed into fist fights between hecklers and stewards. Shouts of "Get a few more thugs, Cynthia!" and "You cannot smash the Labor party that way!" arose during the disorders.

"You have betrayed socialism, Lady Cynthia!" one heckler yelled.

"Don't you dare say that!" she cried. "If it comes to betraying socialism, go to the Labor party benches. Don't say my husband and I did it! If you had sat in the house of commons during the last eighteen months, you would be on the platform with me."

Hurls Defiance at Foes.

Sir Oswald's wife thereupon hurled defiance at Conservatives, Liberals, and Laborites alike.

She declared her severance from the Labor party was one of "the most beastly, heartbreaking things" she had ever done. This was greeted with cries of "Sob stuff," to which Lady Cynthia retorted: "It's not so; it may be to you, but it was reality to me."

Several men were removed from the hall during her speech. The hall was so packed that two overflow meetings were held in the street.

Mosley's Disciple Resigns.

W. J. Brown, another supporter of the Mosley group in the house of commons, resigned tonight from the Labor party. He is the fifth member to resign recently as a protest against the government's economic policy.

Lord Arnold tonight announced his resignation as paymaster general in MacDonald's cabinet. In a letter he gave ill health as his reason.

MRS. MERCEDES PEINE. MRS. VIRGINIA P. WAIBEL.
[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Want Property

A legal battle for the possession of a $3,000 automobile and $5,407 worth of household furnishings belonging to the late Adolphus G. Peine, clothing manufacturer, was waged yesterday before Acting Probate Judge Harold J. Taylor. The contestants are Mr. Peine's second wife and his two children by a former marriage, Jack R. Peine and Mrs. Virginia Peine Waibel.

Mr. Peine, who was vice president of Alfred Decker & Cohn company, clothing manufacturers, died on Dec. 15, 1929. His will left his widow one-third of his estate of $350,000 and divided the remainder among his two children by his first marriage and his daughter, Patricia, by his second wife.

Mrs. Waibel and her brother contend that the automobile and home furnishings should be divided with the rest of the estate, while Mrs. Peine contends that these personal belongings were given to her by her husband as a gift. After four hours of arguments Judge Taylor took the case under advisement.

ROBBED OF AUTO BY BANDITS.

Albert Fabbri, 4741 North Paulina street, president of the Northwestern Steel Products company, was robbed of his automobile last night by two Negro bandits who stopped him at Oakley boulevard and Lake street.

Hoover Will Address Pan American Union April 14

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—President Hoover will make a short address at the Pan-American union on April 14 as part of the celebration of Pan-American day.

COUP BY PERU'S ARMY OUSTS 5 DAY NAVAL RULE

Sanchez Cerro Hailed Hero; New Junta Out.

LIMA, Peru, March 5.—(AP)—The fourth revolutionary government within seven months dominated the Peruvian central administration tonight after a series of hectic events which came so fast their interpretation was difficult.

For a time it appeared Provisional President Luis M. Sanchez Cerro might be restored to the office from which he was forced by a naval ultimatum Sunday, but this possibility faded somewhat a short time later.

Troops loyal to Sanchez Cerro and commanded by one of his most trusted officers, Lieut. Col. Gustave Jimenez, took over the government house and ousted the three man junta which was installed five days ago, but it was understood the revolt first opened in a different unit, the Seventh infantry.

Troops March Into Lima.

Lieut. Col. Ruben del Castillo formerly commanded this regiment, but was removed from the post and also displace as military chief of the port of Callao on Feb. 20 as his men met reverses in attempting to quell a rebellion in Callao. The uprising later was suppressed with the aid of airplanes.

Today Del Castillo went to the barracks of the Seventh and again became their chief. These troops occupied positions about the government house, where the provisional junta was meeting, and soon they were joined by Col. Jimenez with other troops. Jimenez had taken these units aboard the steamers Rimac and Apurimac to quell a rebellion at Arequipa last week, but the movement was held up by the navy and the men were not landed until today.

After debarking at Callao they marched to Lima and, while some units were left to occupy bridges across the Rimac river, Jimenez and the others went on to the government house. Other Lima troops supported them.

Junta Leaves Quietly.

The junta was in session when Jimenez entered the presidential office. The members, Dr. Ricardo Leonico Elias, chief justice; Col. Manuel Ruiz Bravo, chief of the army general staff, and Capt. Alejandro Vinces, commander in chief of the navy, did not oppose the coup and left quietly.

Col. Jimenez issued a manifesto saying a transitory junta would be organized to serve until the country could be returned to constitutional government, as promised by Sanchez Cerro when he gained power by a revolution at Arequipa last August. Col. Roberto Lopez was designated to open negotiations with the southern revolutionaries at Arequipa and the northerners at Piura, in the hope of establishing permanent peace.

When word of the coup spread hasty demonstrations were organized to acclaim Jimenez. Other citizens conveyed Sanchez Cerro to the government house. Sanchez Cerro entered amid a host of vivas for both him and Jimenez. Sanchez Cerro returned to the Country club after about an hour in the building and Jimenez went ahead with his plans for a government.

Striking Spanish Students Riot to Close Classes

MADRID, Spain, March 5.—(AP)—Fist fighting broke out today at San Carlos Medical school between students on strike and others opposing the strike. While classes have not been suspended officially because of the strike, the striking students attempted to impede others who were still attending lectures.

WAGES OF MILLION BRITISH RAILWAY MEN REDUCED

LONDON, March 5.—(AP)—Blanket reductions affecting upward of a million railroad workers in the British isles were recommended tonight by the railway national wage board after hearing arguments from both the carriers and the men.

Employers had sought a reduction, but the unionized workers countered with a demand for increases which would bring the basic average wage to about $15 a week. The reduction decreed roughly approximates 2.5 per cent in all classes of railway clerks and workmen, with an additional equal reduction applied to those drawing more than $9.60 a week or, in the case of clerks, about $500.

The board was the court of last appeal and the sole escape from the reductions lies in the possibility of a strike. This is regarded as highly improbable. Both the carriers and the workers will be asked to accept the agreement and it is believed they will do so.

LEGION EXPLAINS UNIVERSAL DRAFT DEFENSE POLICY

O'Neil Talks at Meeting of War Board.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—The national defense program of the United States should contemplate, in addition to a universal military draft, government control over essential industries, government price fixing, and government limitation of profits.

Such a program, National Commander Ralph T. O'Neil of the American Legion told the war policies commission today, would enable America to achieve a state of wartime effectiveness within a few weeks, instead of blundering along for nearly two years, as it did in 1917-18.

He called such a program "a peace measure, a preparedness measure, and a measure of elemental justice."

Legion for Equal Service.

"The motto of the Legion," he said, "is equal service by all and special privilege for none."

Such a program, he argued, would discourage war; it would make war unattractive to the stay-at-home profiteer because the incentive of extraordinary profits would be removed; and foreign nations would hesitate to seek trouble with a nation determined and prepared to throw its every resource into the contest.

Commander O'Neil, Thomas Kirby, representing the disabled American veterans, and Paul C. Wolman, national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, were the first witnesses to appear before the commission at its first open hearing.

Congress Creates Commission.

Created by act of the last congress, the commission consists of Secretaries Hurley [war], chairman; Adams [navy], Hyde [agriculture], Lamont [commerce], Doak [labor], Attorney General Mitchell, Senators Reed [Rep., Pa.], Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.], Robinson [Dem., Ark.], Swanson [Dem., Va.], Representatives Hadley [Rep., Wash.], Holaday [Rep., Ill.], Collins [Dem., Miss.] and McSwain [Dem., S. C.]. Secretaries Hurley and Doak, Senater Vandenberg and the four congressmen were present at today's hearing.

According to the terms of the resolution creating it, the commission is instructed to "study and consider amending the constitution of the United States to provide that private property may be taken by congress for public use during war and methods of equalizing the burdens and to remove the profits of war, together with a study of policies to be pursued in event of war." The following proviso is stipulated: "That said commission shall not consider and shall not report upon the conscription of labor."

War Leaders to Testify.

Bernard Baruch, head of the former war industries board, is to be tomorrow's witness. Gen. John J. Pershing, former commander of the A. E. F., is expected to be a future witness. The commission intends, it was announced, to call as large a number as possible of persons who were in charge of the industrial, supply, and transportation side of the war.

What Commander O'Neil emphasized was the necessity of setting up the machinery for war in time of peace. His plan for controlling business and industry he likened to the control the national government now exercises over a public utility like the railroads, limiting profit and fixing prices.

PHYSICIANS GIVE UP HOPE FOR RECOVERY OF GEN. J. E. STUART

The rugged constitution which carried Brig. Gen. James E. Stuart through three wars was sustaining his life last night after physicians had given up hope of his recovery. His death is expected momentarily, although Dr. Frank Chapman, the attending physician, reported that his condition was the same after 36 hours of coma.

GEN. J. E. STUART. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Gen. Stuart, a former chief postal inspector for the Chicago region, is 89 years old. He served in the civil, Spanish-American and world wars. Two weeks ago he became ill at his home, 3144 Monroe street.

Gen. Stuart was decorated with the lapel rose for his heroism in the civil war. He was born at Forfar, Scotland, on July 8, 1841. In 1851 he came to the United States with his parents. He was active in the Second regiment of the Illinois National Guard from 1895 and was successively captain, major, colonel, and brigadier general, retiring as such in 1906 after 32 years' service.

SALES OF AUTOS STIMULATED BY SOLDIER BONUS

New York, March 5.—(AP)—Dow, Jones & Co. says that automobile sales are beginning to feel the stimulus of soldiers' bonus money.

A canvass of Detroit dealers, the report says, discloses that although the veterans have just begun to receive their loan checks, a considerable number of the former soldiers already have found their way to dealers' show rooms and the used car lots.

Dealers report a growing number of inquiries for both new and used cars.

The canvass disclosed that in some instances actual sales had been made on which down payments were made from bonus money.

PAIR HELD AS ROBBERS.

Carl Schwartz, 26 years old, 1632 Burling street, a former convict, and Carl Pio, 20, of 2920 Sheffield avenue, were held to the grand jury for theft of a car and robbery of a doughnut shop by Judge Francis Allegretti in the Boys' court yesterday.

ILLINOIS VETS PAID $1,100,000 IN BONUS LOANS

With the mailing yesterday of $400,000 in bonus loan checks, approximately $1,100,000 has been sent to Illinois veterans of the World war since Saturday, it was announced last night by William Weldon, chief disbursement officer at Hines, headquarters of the veterans' bureau in the Chicago region. The bureau has $150,000 on hand for further requirements, and has requested $2,000,000 more from the treasury department at Washington.

According to Mr. Weldon there has been a sharp drop in the number of personal applications for loans. Only 250 men appeared at Hines yesterday. The mails, however, carry a heavy volume of applications. Apparently the needy veterans have been taken care of, Mr. Weldon said, and most of them have already received checks. With the aid of two voucher machines the mailing of checks has been virtually doubled. About 1,500 checks were sent out yestersay, he said, with the aid of the machines. In all, 6,000 checks have been mailed.

Police Hunt High School Girl, Missing Four Days

The Fillmore street police were asked yesterday to search for Dorothy Matosoff, 16 years old, a student at the John Marshall High school, who disappeared from her home at 3234 Polk street last Sunday. Report of her absence was made by Miss Mary Matosoff, 22 years old, secretary to Thomas J. Terrell, alderman-elect of the 29th ward. "I am afraid she was lured away from home by a man," Miss Matosoff told detectives. The missing girl is about 5 feet tall and weighs 103 pounds.

For any coffee to secure a one-time trial in the American home is not difficult; it may require merely a special price, or a sensationally worded advertisement.

But to win a permanent place on the family shopping list is a different matter. Year-round acceptance hinges altogether on satisfying flavor.

It is significant that year after year more people drink Maxwell House than any other fine blend.

Likewise, reflecting popular demand, more grocers stock Maxwell House than any other coffee in the world.

Why not try this rare and mellow coffee tomorrow, and taste for yourself why its flavor has won such leadership!

THE VETO OF MUSCLE SHOALS.

President Hoover vetoed the Muscle Shoals bill of Senator Norris and gave his reasons. He found that it proposed a wasteful use of public money and that it indorsed and applied a bad policy of government. He relied upon government engineers for proof that electric power could not be made, with the investment required, at the costs of private production. He stood by the principle that it is not the business of the federal government to enter into competition with its citizens. He suggested that the government dispose of the plant, a war baby, to the states of Alabama and Tennessee, and thus eject this perennial nuisance from political action.

The veto was a stand against the state capitalism and collectivism which has radical support in the senate and which has been having its own way in congress. The veto was sustained and the semi-collectivists took a repulse. The road to nationalization of production was blocked for the time being, but Mr. Hoover has not been without responsibility for the advances made along it. He gave the radicals encouragement until he saw that association with them was impossible because their conditions could not be met. He was satisfied that the Boulder dam enterprise was within the nature of federal government. After that had been accepted and money given it, Muscle Shoals was a logical successor.

The very active politicians who got $165,000,000 for Boulder dam said that the power trust was trying to stop them. Muscle Shoals was, proved in kinship when Mr. Norris and the radicals found the same opposition. Boulder dam was to provide water supply and electric power for California cities, Muscle Shoals to provide fertilizer and electric power. The acceptance of the one makes the veto of the other equivocal unless it indicates that Mr. Hoover has reached the limit and is returning to doctrines which were thought to be natural to him when he was elected.

MUSSOLINI'S THANKS.

Italy has come to terms on naval limitation with France and Great Britain. Before the details of the agreement were announced Premier Mussolini issued a statement through the Associated Press that must have been intended for American consumption. Substantially half of it was devoted to thanking the United States and Mr. Hoover for their part in bringing about the London agreement and, later, in helping adjust the differences between France and Italy. The London treaty provided that Great Britain's building program might be increased if the Mediterranean powers chose to build in excess of quotas tentatively agreed upon; and if Great Britain increased her expenditures, ours, too, would be increased in proportion. Only a most careful scrutiny of the terms can disclose whether the desire of our administration for a settlement led to ill-advised concessions.

This much is known: Italy's national finances are not in the best of shape. Italy has been seeking a loan in this country. If reports are to be believed, the state department has frowned upon the proposed borrowings, perhaps with a view to forcing Italy to consent to some kind of naval agreement with France. Mr. Mussolini's emphasis upon the rôle of the United States in bringing about the understanding with France may be interpreted, then, as a reminder to the state department that the time has come to give approval to a loan to Italy. American investors should be on their guard.

It does not follow necessarily that the agreement with France is injurious to our interests; and it does not follow, either, that the agreement conforms to our interest. Political considerations in this country and fiscal considerations in Italy have no doubt played their part in achieving the result, but they ought not to influence American opinion in judging the treaty on its merits. Our own security is the only objective which need be kept in mind in examining the terms of the Franco-Italian understanding.

SENATOR THOMAS AND THE MAN IN OVERALLS.

One lively senator, Thomas of Oklahoma, with his system full of humanity and words, got into the works in the closing hours of the Seventy-first congress and stopped them. Mr. Thomas required, as the price of taking himself away as an obstruction, the adoption of a resolution for an investigation of the oil business in behalf of the small companies and the common man in overalls. As he stopped the passage of other bills he displayed the overalls to which he referred, a pair of patched ones from the oil fields.

In consequence of this evangelism for the common man in overalls the passage of the immigration restriction bill was prevented. Mr. Thomas, having the floor, talked until the time of congress ran out, and the bill reducing immigration by ninety per cent for a period of two years failed, although it needed only a chance at a vote. The bill would have reduced the influx of labor, even from American countries outside the quota, by limiting the number of visas permitted. It would have relieved the country until a recovery of employment from the pressure of foreign labor at the ports. It had been opposed by the alien considerations which so frequently affect American welfare in congress, which are so often found in political action when national interest is at stake, but it had come through to the last vote needed when Mr. Thomas stopped it. This was his personal and peculiar gift to the man in overalls.

UNIFORMED SLACKERS.

Once more the Christie tank has been put through its paces with results that were altogether gratifying to the infantry specialists who were assigned to observe the tests. The ordnance officers were critical. They found the machine somewhat lacking in stability. If their opinion is allowed to dominate, the search for a perfect tank may well continue indefinitely and the American army meanwhile will know little more about tanks and their uses than can be learned from textbooks.

There is no such thing as a perfect machine for any purpose. Machines are improved through trial and error. Because of the stubborn resistance of the ordnance officers the American army has had almost no opportunity to learn either what a modern tank can do or what it ought to be able to do. The adoption of some kind of machine with which practical field exercises can be conducted should lead to improvements in design and capacity which are now undreamed of even by the mechanical geniuses of the ordnance service.

The infantry knows that it must have tanks and practice with tanks if thousands of lives are not to be sacrificed needlessly in another war. The desires of the infantry appear selfish in contrast to the detachment from all personal interest on the part of the ordnance service. The ordnance corps, of course, can afford to wait. Its uniformed slackers will never have to storm a machine gun nest or advance unprotected against enemy positions. No bullets will penetrate the bellies of ordnance majors and colonels.

Indeed, their detachment from all interest in the matter is so complete that their organization ought to be disbanded. If the fighting men themselves are allowed to specify, test, and choose their weapons, the job will be better done. The ordnance department, because of self-esteem, bureaucratic hesitation, and lack of direct interest in results achieved, is preventing the American army from keeping up with progress in the military art. The time has come to abolish the service as a menace to life.

"THE STAR-SPANGLED BANNER."

"The Star-Spangled Banner" is now, by act of congress, the national anthem of the United States, as almost every one supposed it was anyway. The melody has character and the arrangements for band and orchestra are impressive. Some effort has been made to make the anthem singable by an untrained voice. The words are directed, of course, to a particular occasion and are therefore somewhat narrower in application than might be desired; but that is a common failing of national anthems. Our hymn is not called the "Baltimorean," as the French hymn is called the "Marseillaise"; and our hymn is no more concerned with a particular event than is the German with its emphasis on the single matter of dominion over the Rhine.

All things considered, the most suitable of our national songs has been granted priority. Oddly enough, the pacifists would have preferred, of all things, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." They were willing to overlook the title because of the evangelical fervor of the tune and the altruism expressed in the lines. America, having paid her debt to Lafayette, is plainly in no need of encouragement by music to undertake further efforts to save the world. That is our weakness and it ought to be stimulated. "The Star-Spangled Banner" is better in this respect, for it is concerned merely with the defense of our own soil from the invader.

"America" was out of the running because title to the tune lies in Great Britain. The fact has caused endless confusion and some humiliation at the banquets of the English Speaking union. It has happened that American bosoms have swelled in the belief that the king was being saved when, in fact, the band was concerning itself merely with rocks and rills. Now that congress has acted, these unfortunate occurrences will not be repeated.

Of course, "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," might have been selected; and fortunately it was not. In the space of one brief stanza our country is apostrophized as a gem, a home, a shrine, and other things. If the metaphor is not mixed, it is at least considerably confused. Moreover, the last phrase of the refrain is, to say the least, somewhat obscure. "Thy banners make tyranny tremble when borne by the red, white and blue" seems to mean something, but what?

Happily this question will remain of minor importance. "The Star-Spangled Banner" is the anthem. And it is a good one.

Editorial of the Day

CHICAGO'S PEACEFUL ELECTIONS.

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

Election days in Chicago are always heralded in advance as pregnant with murder, rapine, and arson. Tremendous precautions are taken. Officials announce that armies of watchers will be at the polls. Through the land run shivers of apprehension for the good citizens of Chicago who are on the verge of decimation by the forces of evil.

Then come election days. And what happens of a sanguinary character? Exactly nothing. A fist fight or two takes place in the vicinity of some polling booth. Somebody takes a poorly aimed shot at somebody, like as not over a disputed grocery bill, and election day with all its perils in Chicago is a thing of the past.

The records of Chicago's election days, we are disposed to believe, will show that election day is the most serene day in the year. At any other time any section of the business district is likely to be sprayed with machine gun bullets, but on election day the gangsters seem to have other business at hand.

We suspect the truth of the matter is that the machine gun is only incidental to the affairs of Chicago's gangsters and on election day the business of electing their friends is much more important than the slaying of their enemies. It is hardly practical to herd voters up to the polling booths with machine guns. The gangsters' rule in Chicago is founded on dollars, not on bullets. Mr. Capone's shotgun bodyguard is not enlisted to protect him from the forces of law and order. Against his dollars the forces of law and order, if there are any such, hurl themselves in vain.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

OH LA LA LA LA LA!

Congress can declare "The Star-Spangled Banner" the official song all it wants to, but, by heck, they're never going to make a free and independent people learn the words.

And in officially recognizing the song they seem to have forgotten the third verse as Francis Scott Key wrote it:

And where is that band who so vauntingly swore
That the havoc of war and the battle's confusion,
A home and a country should leave us no more?
Their blood has washed out their foul footsteps' pollution,
No refuge could save the hireling and slave

Which was certainly twisting the British lion's tail into a doughnut. Maybe congress figured Ramsay MacDonald might get sensitive like Mussolini; and then we'd have to apologize to the Court of St. James every time we sang the national anthem. Safety first! Anyway, they've got so many troubles over there—war debts, the dole, Mahatma Gandhi, all their golf cups lugged off by Bobby Jones, and so on—that we might as well ease up on 'em. And if we don't know the other verses, why bother about this one?

As far as Americans are concerned, the words of each verse of "The Star-Spangled Banner" are—

Oh say, can you see la la la la la la,
La la la la la, etc., etc.

BESIDES murder trials, Al Capone, flu, bootleggers, and a few other things, about the only subject before us here in Chicago is, "Can blue-eyed parents have brown-eyed children?" If they're able to support them and bring 'em up right and keep 'em away from speakeasies, why not?

AND SPEAKING of the Mendelian law that's been invoked in the blue-eyed, brown-eyed children of blue-eyed, brown-eyed, cock-eyed parents, what of it? Suppose there is a Mendelian law? What's the use of waving it around and trying to observe it in the U. S. A. when we don't even pay any attention to the prohibition law?

CHARGES OF INSANITY against a woman out in California were brought by her sister on the grounds that the lady ate with a knife and suffered from a delusion that she was an experienced chauffeur, although she owned no car. The court ruled that the defendant was not insane, and quite right. Any number of people eat with a knife, and as for the lady thinking she was an experienced chauffeur and didn't own a car, why, we know oodles and oodles of people who think they are experienced chauffeurs. And they own cars and drive 'em, too.

"AL CAPONE Gets Name 'Scarface Al' Stricken from Vagrancy Warrant."—The Trib. Ah, Alphonse, you are getting more and more respectable every day; probably you are getting ready to run for mayor or President or something. But grow in grace and dignity and social importance as you will, to us in your own home town you will always and ever remain just dear old Scarface Al.

THEY ALL silently agreed not to mention that horrible thing, prohibition, at the meeting of the national Democratic committee in Washington yesterday, but Mr. Raskob, with his fingers crossed and in a whisper hardly audible more than two blocks away, said that the matter of manufacturing and selling liquor should be left to the several states. And the newspapers promised not to publish his remarks in type more than two inches high. But it's going to leak out; it's just bound to leak out.

You'll be repressed if you don't look out.

ARE HEATERS SAFE?

MRS. J. K. C. writes: Will you write on the unhealthy effects that gas stoves and hot water heaters in kitchens have on housewives and women who are obliged to work where they are used, when they have no chimney attached? I live in a small apartment with this arrangement and I am obliged to breathe that air for a while every day. It is so bad I can taste it.

REPLY:

Our friends in the gas industry would have us believe that no harm can come from the practice you ask about. They have an association, and the association backs a scientific body charged with the duty of discovering the facts and laying down rules. All manufacturers of heating appliances are supposed to be guided by these rules.

Conditions are far better than they were when this method of procedure was adopted. But there is room for further improvement. The number of deaths from monoxide poisoning, except those due to automobile gases, is probably declining at a rate that should satisfy us. It is doubtful if the same is true of the chronic effects of mild, long continued gas poisoning. Those effects are not dramatic. In fact, they are not easily diagnosed. Probably they are seldom suspected. They are headaches, dizziness, languor, pallor, and anemia. Neither doctors nor physiologists have a satisfactory test for the state of oxidation of the blood. There are tests for carbon monoxide in the blood and, perhaps, quantitative tests for carbon dioxide, oxygen, and unburned gas, but they are not simplified to the point where they can be used at the bedside by the ordinary garden variety of physician.

The violent poison to be looked for is carbon monoxide. Carbonic acid is not very poisonous. In fact, as is the case with most poisons, it is useful when the dosage is small. In unburned gas there are some harmful substances that are usually of no practical importance. In the products of combustion of coal, wood, gas, and particularly industrial combustion, occasionally there are fumes of other harmful substances, but this, too, is outside the present subject.

Almost any apparatus leaks or discharges fumes and gases at times. Therefore, the plan of having the fire in one part of the house and the people in the other is safest. Whenever there is any sort of fire within the room there is an element of hazard. This applies to open fires, grates, coal stoves, oil stoves, and gas stoves. If the stove is well built or the open fireplace never smokes, the danger is reduced. If the stove is loosely put together, or of poor material, the danger is enhanced. If it has no stack pipe or chimney the potential harm is still further increased.

It is true that carbonic acid and water, the products of perfect combustion of carbon and hydrogen, are not harmful in small doses. But it is also true that carbonic acid in large doses is harmful, and not even atmospheric moisture is wholly guiltless.

HANDS ARE COLD.

C. W. writes:

1. What would cause hands, which used to be warm, for the last two months to be always cold?

2. Is there any remedy for it?

REPLY.

1. Exposure of the hands to inclement weather is the direct cause. A disturbance of the vasomotor nervous system is probably a contributing cause.

2. Wear loose, warm gloves. I am told that the people of Scotland, for more than fifty years, have treated poor circulation of the hands and feet by giving them paraffin baths. The paraffin used becomes liquid a little below 120 degrees. The temperature is held at about that figure. The same paraffin can be used repeatedly.

FOLLOW DOCTOR'S ADVICE.

L. A. writes: I am 15 years old and have Bright's disease, following an attack of influenza two years ago. I swell badly. My face is swollen in the morning and my legs at night. My physician has given me a diet. Will you please give me a diet and tell me what I should eat and what I can and cannot do?

REPLY.

My advice is that you follow your physician's directions. Get a small book on the subject to help you carry out his directions. We have one that sells for ten cents and a stamped, addressed envelope. As I estimate it, your ox is in the ditch and you had better think and act wisely. It would be unwise for you to have any outsider direct you.

MILK AND WEIGHT GAIN.

Mrs. M. O. G. writes: Will you tell me if double Jersey buttermilk, a pint a day, will help me put on weight?

REPLY.

It may. You should also eat a regular ration of good substantial food, meat, cereals, butter, bread, and vegetables. Regular habits, plenty of sleep, and mental poise are also requisites.

WANTS MARRIAGE ANNULLED.

Chicago, March 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My son is 19 years of age. On Feb. 7, 1931, he and a girl, 18 years old, went to Waukegan and were married.

1. What must I do to annul the marriage?

2. How long does an annulment usually take?

3. Can they live together until the annulment? MRS. M. N.

1. It is not clear that you can secure an annulment.

2. We are not in a position to say.

3. If the marriage is going to be annulled, obviously the young people should not live together.

3. Is it compulsory for a girl to work on Sunday and can she be discharged for refusal to do so if she thinks it would be injurious to her health? P. McG.

1. Yes.

2. It would be a violation of law if she is in one of the employments covered by the act.

3. Depends on the contract of employment.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 6, 1915.

LONDON.—According to the Daily Express it is reported that the Holland-America line steamer Noorderdyk, which was returning to Rotterdam with broken machinery, after having sailed for the United States, has been torpedoed in the English channel. Another German submarine of the U-2 type was sunk in the English channel by a French cruiser, a Paris official communication says. According to the admiralty, six German submarines have been sunk since the beginning of the war.

ROME.—Greece's intervention in the war, it is known today, is inevitable. It possibly will hasten Italy's entrance into the conflict which has been practically decided on.

PARIS.—A German check before Reims is described in a note issued by the war office, which says: North of La Pompelle, on the road from Reims to Chalons, the possession of a little inn at La Ferme Alger had been hotly contested since September. It was taken by the allies after a terrific bombardment and a fierce engagement in which the Germans suffered heavy losses.

LONDON.—Except in the central Beskid pass of the Carpathians the Russians are now on the offensive from the Baltic sea to the Rumanian border. Apparently they have definitely disposed of the German and Austrian attempts to outstrip their extreme wings.

CHICAGO.—Queen Wilhelmina of Holland has called a national convention of women of neutral countries to meet at The Hague in April. The exact date has not been set. Invitation to American women came to Miss Jane Addams as president of the women's peace party and she is in New York selecting the American delegates.

30 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 6, 1901.

LONDON.—Sixteen Irish members of parliament were carried bodily from the house shortly after midnight, six policeman carrying each member in turn, excepting Mr. Flavin, who, being somewhat heavy, required eight. The trouble started when Mr. Balfour applied the closure on the education estimates. The Nationalists shouted, "Gag! Gag!" and refused to leave the house when the division was taken. Force was applied to their removal only after a general free for all fight had been started.

NEW YORK.—Two big failures of Wall street brokers were announced. The largest perhaps, and certainly the one to which most interest attaches, was that of John E. Searles, known all over the country as the organizer of the sugar trust, the American Cotton company, and Methodist Sunday schools. The other was that of Carley, Rosengarten & Carley. Mr. Searles' liabilities are estimated at $2,000,000, and the other firm's at a half million.

CHICAGO.—Formal notice of consolidation with the University of Chicago was issued last night on behalf of Mrs. Emmons Blaine's Chicago institute. With the institute the university receives $1,000,000.

MANILA.—A wagon train and a detachment of the signal corps, together with six Macabebe scouts, were attacked by the insurgents about midway between the towns of Silang and Dasmarinas, in Cavite province. Three Americans were killed and two of the Macabebe scouts were wounded, while one man is missing.

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 6, 1881.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Garfield sent the nominations for his cabinet to the senate and they were confirmed without delay. The new cabinet follows: Secretary of state, James G. Blaine of Maine; secretary of the treasury, William Windom of Minnesota; secretary of war, Robert T. Lincoln of Illinois; secretary of the navy, William H. Hunt of Louisiana; secretary of the interior, Samuel J. Kirkwood of Iowa; postmaster general, Thomas L. James of New York; attorney general, Wayne MacVeagh of Pennsylvania. The executive session at which the nominations were confirmed was quite long and the report became circulated that there was some opposition. Investigation, however, proved that this was untrue.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The White House early this morning was the center of attraction of the many thousands who were here to attend the inauguration. President Garfield, however, did not receive generally and the crowds of sightseers were not admitted. Tonight many members of the Army of the Cumberland called on the President, prominent among whom were Gens. A. D. McCook, W. B. Hogan, T. T. Crittenden, and Ben Lefevre, and Capts. Frank Gross and S. C. Benjamin.

BALTIMORE, Md.—A special train on the Baltimore and Potomac railroad on which ex-President Hayes and his party left Washington for Ohio collided with another train near Severn station about eleven miles from Baltimore. Two persons were killed outright and sixteen others seriously injured. Mr. Hayes' party was severely shaken but none was injured. The former President and his sons were active in assisting the injured.

JUDGE M'KINLAY ON THE KIRKLAND CASE.

Chicago, March 2. — At last what sounds like the truth has come to light in the Virgil Kirkland murder case. While the defense has been using the prohibition law as a smoke screen, many people have been waiting for something more plausible. Now a believable witness states that several weeks before the deed the defendant said that if the murdered girl resisted his advances any longer he would "knock hell out of her." If that is true, we have another one of those Loeb-Leopold types, willful, vicious and cruel, and allowing no consideration for the rights or feelings of others to interfere with the attainment of their desires.

The unselfish or good hearted man very seldom becomes cruel or vicious when drunk. He usually hurts himself rather than others, so far as violent injury is concerned. It is true and proper that drunkenness is no defense to a crime, but some people are getting the habit of charging everything that goes wrong to prohibition. There are enough evils attendant in that law without making it an excuse for all crime.

In that connection, I was interested in the article in Saturday's TRIBUNE by Hugh Curran, headed "Jazz Craze Grips Ireland; Church Voices Protest." He states that the drink habit is steadily displacing the voluntary teetotalism which every girl was wont to observe and that the young people are indulging in fiery illicit whisky. Other evils are described. We have read similar articles about other European countries. There is no prohibition law in those countries, so far as I know, and yet we hear of the same evils among young people as here. It makes us see two sides to that mooted question and wonder if any solution in the form of a law will get very far. We may have to come back to religion and the arduous job [when undertaken personally day after day for years] of training and disciplining children at home.

Again I say, let us not use the prohibition law to excuse all our sins.

DONALD S. MCKINLAY,
Judge of the Municipal Court.

CHEAPER LIQUOR.

Clinton, Ia., March 3.—If liquor was cheaper, better in quality, and easier to get, does THE TRIBUNE or any sane person believe that young people would drink less than now?

[MRS.] KATE HALE.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF A POTATO.

Menominee, Mich., March 1.—The cartoon, "Private Life of a Potato," which appeared in Sunday's TRIBUNE aroused my risibles. Harold Gray may know his onions, but he certainly knows not his potatoes. "Irish ancestry!" Irish nothing. The potato is first, last, and all the time of strictly American descent and none other. It is a native of South America, and is one of the two greatest gifts which America gave to the rest of the world. The other is Indian corn.

The potato was brought to Spain by the Spaniards from the neighborhood of Quito, Ecuador, thence to the Netherlands and Italy early in the 16th century. It was brought to Ireland from Virginia by Sir John Hawkins in 1565. Sir Walter Raleigh brought it into England in 1585, where it was grown in the gardens of the nobles as a luxury. The name Irish potato originated from the fact that it prevented a famine in Ireland some years after its introduction into that country. The finest potato grown is the Idaho russet.

LELA B. MANCHESTER.

US.

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 27.—Chicago Republicans have again cut off their noses to spite THE TRIBUNE. When will THE TRIBUNE learn that any seeker for public office it supports is looked upon with general suspicion and the one they oppose is accepted as the best for the public good? It should realize, therefore, that its vicious attack on Senator Nye, with innuendo, not fact, will do that gentleman more good than harm. Furthermore, Ruth Hanna McCormick makes a very weak Washington correspondent for the W. G. N.

ROY E. BAUR.

NO. 28.

Chicago, March 1.—While walking along the street Saturday afternoon I glanced upon something real nice and green. Stooping down, I saw it was a pea vine just about 3 inches long and with the tentacles ready to climb. I now have it in water. Those who have seen it hardly believed me.

MABEL CARDEN.

THE WELFARE OF THE SOUTH SIDE.

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Our organization wishes to commend THE TRIBUNE on its fair, unbiased common sense stand taken in recommending all the south park bond issues in your editorial of Feb. 21. We believe that by your editorial you have proved that there is at least one powerful downtown factor to whom the people of the south side of Chicago may look for honest and thoughtful recommendations on matters pertaining to civic betterments.

We are hopeful that the cooperative spirit as expressed in this editorial will spread to some of the loop organizations such as the Chicago Association of Commerce and the Civic Federation. The decided manner in which the people rejected the recommendation of these organizations at the polls on election day proves conclusively that if they continue their present short sighted policies they will soon be valueless, not only to the city as a whole but to the very interests they represent.

The South Chicago Chamber of Commerce believes that some day Chicago will be the world's greatest city. The World's Fair, new transportation systems, subways, new rail terminals, new waterway developments, new park improvements, completed outer drive, industrial expansion, all point to its future greatness. The realization of these developments may be best served by cooperation on the part of all civic bodies, whether loop or outlying.

ED H. BUSSE,
President, South Chicago Chamber of Commerce.

ANSWERING "IRATE HUSBAND."

Chicago Feb. 21.—Several years ago Mrs. Ben E. Buttles led the Beverly Hills Woman's club in the beautifying of their Rock Island suburban station.

All the labor, perpetual care of the gardens, and most of the expense was furnished by the Rock Island railroad; but the idea and determination to make their dream a reality was furnished by the Beverly club. They earned and contributed toward this work $3,300.

The Hamilton Park Woman's club and the Englewood Woman's club decided to donate $300 each and enough determination to make our own suburban stations beautiful and blooming in time for the World's Fair. We tried for a year to get the men's business, improvement, Masonic, and Kiwanis organizations to help us, without success. So we brought all the pressure we could to bear on the railroads and finally succeeded in enlisting their cooperation.

The Rock Island railroad has given in labor and money about $2,000 worth of background for our little investment. The New York Central has given about $1,300 worth of background for us on its side of the Englewood station. The Pennsylvania has not promised beautification for its side of the station yet, but we feel confident that it will.

We have planted 7,000 tulip bulbs, 4,000 at Englewood and 1,500 at Hamilton Park, which will bloom this spring. These were paid for by subscriptions from outside our club membership. Of our club funds we have only spent $197 up to date, about 16½ cents per member, and feel as if we surely have obtained full value. We have not given to the railroads, but they have given us these wonderful gifts, because we earnestly desired and diligently sought them.

MRS. J. D. WOMMER,

1932 ELECTION CASTS SHADOW IN LEGISLATURE

Elimination of "Straight" Voting Debated.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—[Special.]—Presidential governorship, legislative, and local elections of 1932 are throwing a shadow over the general assembly. Some Republican senators today, expressing a lively fear that the Democratic landslide of last November might repeat, clamored for the abolition of party circles from the ballot and for the wiping out of "straight" ticket votes.

STATE SENATOR THOS. J. COURTNEY. [Wallinger Photo.]

Senator Arthur A. Huebsch's bill, No. 50, to eliminate party columns and the cross in the circle had the limelight on the eve of the departure of a subcommittee headed by Senator Richard J. Barr [Rep.] tomorrow for the east. The committee will make inquiries at Boston, Mass., and Albany, N. Y., into the effect of expunging party circles. The other researchers with Mr. Barr are Senators Huebsch [Rep.], Brookfield; Victor P. Michel [Rep.], Peoria; Thomas J. Courtney, and R. V. Graham, Cook county Democrats.

Republicans Differ on Issue.

The five investigators were picked following a hearing in the senate elections committee in which the Republicans found themselves in almost violent discord over the party circle issue. Some held if a Democratic landslide should occur in 1932 the voting of "straights" would bury all Republican candidates. Others held to abolish the party circles would kill party solidarity.

The Democrats, meanwhile, listened with their tongues in their cheeks, occasionally interpolating remarks to the effect that in normal years "the party circles and straight votes have been the Republican life belt."

Senator Huebsch, author of the bill—Representative W. G. Thon has a similar bill in the house—openly declared its purpose was protection against landslides.

"We might as well drag the cat out of the bag," said Senator Huebsch. "If Hoover is the nominee, we Republicans might as well get off the ticket. Unless the party circle is abolished and the voting of 'straights' abandoned, a landslide would sweep everybody on the Republican ticket away."

Democrat Sees Merit.

"There's a lot of merit in this," said Senator Courtney, who is Democratic floor leader. "Last time it was advocated, the Republicans opposed it because of the Harding, Coolidge, and Hoover landslides. The Democratic landslide last fall giving James Hamilton Lewis the senatorship by 744,000 seems to have brought a change in mind—now it's a case of rescue the perishing."

"This bill is the way to destroy the Republican party," declared Senator Barr. "What is important is not the saving of a state senator or a sheriff or constable from a possible landslide, but the important thing is to save party solidarity. If you want to make Illinois Democratic, this is the right step.

"The hardest thing we Democrats have had to combat is the party circle," said Courtney. "We may as well call a spade a spade. The circle was a Republican life saver. But last fall the people showed their independence. We are for party solidarity and the two-party system and we want the Republican party to go up or down with the party circle on issues and principles. Why change the system now?"

"I'm opposed to the bill," said Senator A. H. Roberts [Rep.] of Chicago. "The ballot is as big as a horse blanket. To eliminate party circles would increase the inconvenience to voters."

The Barbour bill for nonpartisan elections of mayor, city clerk, and treasurer in Chicago was reported out by the elections committee favorably.

SUES TO REOPEN TAX BOARD HEARINGS FOR 34,000 OBJECTORS

A petition for a mandatory injunction to compel the board of review to reopen its hearings on objections to the 1929 real estate assessments was filed yesterday in the Superior court by Charles Zuker, 5329 Kenmore avenue. Attorney Morris Schaeffer, representing the petitioner, said the suit is also brought on behalf of the 34,000 other taxpayers who filed complaints with the board of review, but were not granted hearings.

The purpose of the petition, the attorney said, is to escape the necessity of filing 34,000 separate mandamus suits against the reviewers. Thirty such suits are now pending before Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor, who will hand down his decision on Monday.

In the event the mandatory injunction is granted it will restrain County Clerk Sweitzer from proceeding with the tax extension, compel him to return the assessment books to the board of review and force the reviewers to hold hearings on all of the complaints before them. The single petition filed yesterday will eliminate the necessity for court hearings on thousands of mandamus petitions.

NEAR LIMIT DATE OF WICKERSHAM FUND ALLOWANCE

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—A month's adjournment was taken today by the Wickersham commission, despite the possibility voiced by members that it may be moneyless before its gigantic survey of crime is completed.

The $250,000 appropriated the commission by congress—regardless of whether it is spent—will expire on July 1, necessitating the abandonment of the extensive commission offices and the release of its clerical force.

More than one member said today that unless the work is pushed to the limit it cannot be completed by that date. Ten reports have been planned, but only one has been finally completed.

"We should have six months after July 1 if a finished job is to be done," said Federal Judge William S. Kenyon. "We should have completed our prohibition report six months sooner."

OFFERS ILLINOIS UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE BILL

Buck's Measure Splits Cost with Employers.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 4.—[Special.]—Provisions for a dole to the jobless, in the form of unemployment insurance, are set up in a bill entered in the Illinois house of representatives today by Representative Otta A. Buck [Rep., Villa Park]. The City club of Elmhurst requested him to present the measure, Mr. Buck said.

The state would become a 50 per cent contributor to the dole, under the terms of the bill, with employers paying the other half. Distribution of the fund would be made through an unemployment insurance board of five members, headed by the director of the state department of labor, and the jobless worker would be paid 50 per cent of his former wage weekly—presumably for the duration of his unemployment.

Extras for Wife, Children.

The dole could not be less than $12 nor more than $25, and additional compensation would be allowed for a wife and children. The worker would not be forced to return to work for pay lower than the prevailing wage nor could he be compelled to break strikes. If the work was to be had at a considerable distance from his home, he would not be obliged to take it.

The bill creates a bureau in the department of labor to administer all dole affairs, to be headed by the director of the department. For this additional office, he would be given $1,000 yearly in addition to his salary.

Four members appointed by the governor would complete the board. Two would be chosen from a list presented by employés' organizations and two from employers' recommendations. They would receive $4,000 annually.

Employers to Be Assessed.

One-half of the dole would be contributed by the state and the remainder, says the bill, "assessed and collected from the employers in the state on the basis of a uniform percentage of the respective payrolls to be fixed by the board. The percentage of the employers' share shall be fixed at the beginning of the fiscal year, according to estimated expenditures of the fund for indemnities, and paid quarter-annually."

If, at the end of the year, the adjustment of premiums paid shows that more money has been paid out than has been collected, ["the employers shall pay the difference immediately,"] the bill states. If the scales tipped the other way, the employers would receive a refund.

After a waiting period of one week, the dole would be payable to the worker for each subsequent week of unemployment at a rate of 50 per cent of his weekly wage, provided he has worked "substantially for the whole of the preceding year."

"If single he would receive from $12 to $25 weekly. If married the unemployed employé shall receive additional indemnity amounting to ten per cent if two or more children under the age of eighteen are dependent upon him."

Speaker Shanahan referred the bill to the insurance committee.

15 Stolen Purses Before Judge; Orders 2 Year Term

Found guilty of purse snatching, Paul Draganski, 40 years old, 4733 Milwaukee avenue, was sentenced to two years in the county jail by Judge Alfred O. Erickson in the Shakespeare avenue court yesterday. As evidence against Draganski, fifteen stolen purses were laid on the judicial bench. Only two were used, however, for imposition of punishment. Judge Erickson ordered Draganski to jail for one year on each of the two cases, the terms to be served consecutively.

3 STATES PLAN IMPROVED ROADS IN CHICAGOLAND

Illinois Engineer Urges Grade Separations.

BY HAL FOUST.

The plans of three states, Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana to develop the highway transportation system of the Chicago metropolitan area were discussed yesterday at the eighth annual meeting of the Chicago Regional Planning association.

Frank T. Sheets, chief engineer of the Illinois highway department, opened the session with a statement that a survey has convinced him that the most urgent need for the relief of congestion in the metropolitan area is the construction of grade separations. Illinois plans to spend $13,000,000 in the vicinity of Chicago this year.

"The wide and multiple roads," he said, "operate with a relatively low efficiency with gate passes rather than by-passes at the intersections of busy routes."

Reports on Other Cities.

Howard R. Olson, highway engineer of the planning association, in an address illustrated with lantern slides, reported on an investigation of various types of grade separations in New York and Detroit. He emphasized that each intersection has peculiarities that must be considered in designing the separation.

William J. Titus, chief engineer of the Indiana highway commission, reported that construction will start within a few days on the Dunes Relief road, a new forty foot highway extending from the Michigan-Indiana line to Gary, paralleling the Dunes highway. The specifications call for grade separations at Indiana route 43, just south of Michigan City, and at Indiana route 49, just south of Dunes park.

"We expect to complete this superhighway this year," Mr. Titus said. "The cost is estimated at $2,200,000. We are also going to spend a million for a viaduct over sixty railroad tracks on U. S. 41 leading into Hammond."

Ready to Shorten U. S. 41.

M. W. Torkelson, director of regional planning for Wisconsin, said Wisconsin is ready to join with Illinois in realigning U. S. 41 to shorten the route between Milwaukee and Chicago.

Mr. Torkelson predicted that Wisconsin during the next two years will close the gaps in the pavement on its through routes.

At a luncheon Robert Kingery, secretary of the planning association, outlined a program for expansion of the state park system. The program was prepared by a commission appointed by Director Cleaveland of the state department of public works. Mr. Kingery said that the state's financial difficulties, growing out of the reassessment in Cook county, would probably permit little to be done with the park system for the next two years.

The afternoon was devoted to a discussion of plans for restoring the rivers of the metropolitan area for recreational purposes. The speakers were Ross A. Woodhull, sanitary district trustee; Charles G. Sauers, superintendent of the Cook county forest preserves, and E. L. Gates, Du Page county highway superintendent.

Samuel Insull Jr., the principal speaker at a banquet in the evening, told of the accessibility of electricity to all parts of the metropolitan area. Elmer T. Stevens was toastmaster.

ACCIDENTS UNDER ANALYSIS REVEAL 3 CHIEF FACTORS

A man walking at a pace of four miles an hour has a danger zone for six feet ahead of him and if a manhole cover should suddenly open within three feet of him he would plunge right in because his "reaction time" would be too short to avoid it.

Sheriff G. E. Cress of Mason City, Ia., made this remark last night in a speech on safety and accident prevention before the Midwest Safety conference at the Stevens hotel.

The rate of speed, the danger zone, and the reaction time were designated by Mr. Cress as the three factors present in virtually every accident outside the home and industry. The danger zone he defined as the space immediately ahead of a moving object. Its limit is the distance within which the object can be brought to a standstill. The reaction time, he said, is the time it takes a person to realize what is happening and to start to do something about it.

Sheriff Cress addressed the closing session of the safety conference, at which Thomas O. Wallace, clerk of the Circuit court, was given the president's medal of the National Safety council for rescuing a Chicago school teacher from drowning in Lake Michigan last summer.

Alcoholism Kills 4 After a Party; Hunt Bootlegger

Wheeling, W. Va., March 5.—(AP)—Four persons were dead today following a party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Schwanenberger, at Bridgeport, O., and county authorities said they were victims of alcoholism. Harry Church, 55, died early today. Mrs. Schwanenberger, her husband, and Samuel Berghoff, 58, were the other victims. They became ill after the party Tuesday night. Coroner J. W. Neal of Belmont County, O., said he had obtained a statement from Schwanenberger before death which may result in the arrest of the person who sold the liquor.

Philadelphian Provided for "Pin Money."

Philadelphia, Pa., March 5.—(AP)—An annuity of $12,000 to supply "pin money" for the "first lady of the land" was provided in the will of Henry G. Freeman Jr., owner of a large parcel of Philadelphia real estate, who died in October, 1917.

This was revealed today when the Fidelity-Philadelphia Trust company, executors and trustees, began an accounting because of the death of a son, William McLain Freeman, survivor of two children, who were life tenants of the residue of Henry Freeman's $2,000,000 estate.

Questions to Be Decided.

Whether Mrs. Herbert Hoover would receive the annuity, should it be acceptable, and whether disposition of the residue to three institutions would be made in accordance with the will of the son, depend upon several questions that the Orphans' court must decide.

The annuity to the "first lady" is to be known as the "Henry G. Freeman Jr. Pin Money Fund" and "shall continue in force so long as this glorious government lasts," the will provides.

Some legal experts believe the annuity to the "first lady" is voided by the rule against perpetuities, because it was ordered to be kept in force forever. Others are of the opinion that it is payable now and until such time as a trust would cease under the law, and still others believe that under a correct interpretation it should not operate until the death of the last annuitant, of which there are many.

White House Not Notified.

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—The White House has not been notified of the Freeman pin money bequest. It was said there no law exists to prevent the first lady from accepting such a bequest if she so chooses.

COUNTY FACES SUSPENSION OF CHARITY WORK

Assembly Act Needed; 1931 Fund Spent.

If the state legislature fails to pass a bill authorizing the Cook county board to issue $2,000,000 in bonds for poor relief, there may be an immediate suspension of the county's charitable activities. This was announced yesterday by President Cermak in calling a special meeting of the commissioners for today.

Earlier in the day Joseph L. Moss, director of the bureau of public welfare, was notified that the bureau's 1931 appropriation of $650,000 was already exhausted and that Mr. Moss would have to assume the responsibility for spending any more of the county's money. Not only was the appropriation spent during the first three months of the fiscal year, but an additional $70,000 had been expended in anticipation of the passage of the bond issue bill, Moss said.

Bill Pending in Assembly.

The proposed measure to provide temporary relief for the poor of the county was introduced in the lower house on Jan. 20 by Representative Joseph H. Donahue of Chicago. It would give the county board the power to issue $2,000,000 in bonds without a referendum, providing the county has already spent $500,000 for the same purpose in the same year.

When Attorney William F. Struckmann, representing the board, returned yesterday morning from Springfield he informed the commissioners that there is no certainty that the bill will be approved.

The bill comes up for a roll call in the house next Tuesday. Since it is an emergency matter a two-thirds vote is necessary for adoption. Even if the measure passes both the house and senate, Attorney Struckmann said, it would be at least two weeks before the bonds could be issued.

Call Commissioners Today.

In the meantime the county would either have to discontinue its help for the poor or else expend money appropriated for other purposes. This is the question which the commissioners have been called to settle at today's meeting.

"If I am called upon for an opinion," Attorney Struckmann said, "it will be that the poor relief must stop at once. There is no other alternative. The law is plain. Under Supreme court decisions the county is prohibited to continue the expenditures for the poor under the guise of an emergency."

Mr. Moss said that the last delivery of supplies for the poor will be made this week. Since the beginning of the fiscal year on Dec. 1 the county has supplied food and clothing to the poor costing $637,102. This includes $306,117 for food; 603,861 quarts of milk at $80,800; 28,200 pairs of shoes at $150,118, and 37,098 tons of coal costing $89,938. Deliveries which have been authorized amount to approximately $90,000.

Brothers Paid $5,000 for Returning $101,555 Gems

Newark, N. J., March 5.—(AP)—A $5,000 reward for the return of $101,555 worth of jewels which Mrs. Edgar F. Luckenbach of Sands Point, Long Island, lost in New York has been given to Goodwin Jarvis, 24 year old plumber's helper, and his brother Martin, of New York, who found them in a taxicab. Detectives had been conducting a nation-wide search for the three pearl necklaces, a pearl stickpin, and two wrist watches which Mrs. Luckenbach left in a taxicab Dec. 19 en route to a Florida train.

AMERICAN FLEET HOLDS 'BATTLE' IN DEAD OF NIGHT

U. S. S. ARKANSAS, March 5.—(AP)—Steaming through the tropical Pacific off the southern coast of Panama, the United States fleet continued its maneuvers today after a mock battle in the night.

Just before sunset yesterday a group of cruisers and destroyers broke formation and left the fleet behind. Late at night they came back at full speed to attack. The outer guards picked them up under a brilliant tropic moon and opened fire with searchlights.

The attackers came on, driving straight for the battleships, which fired blank cartridges and pierced the targets with searchlights. The enemy survived the fire, however, and when the umpire ended the battle all ships turned on their lights and swung into fleet formation.

BUSINESS MAN IS BACKER OF NORTH SIDE BREAD LINE

As more than 2,000 jobless men and more than 200 women and children were fed yesterday in a bread line at 921 North Wells street, it was revealed that a Chicago business man had been financing the breadline daily since early last November.

Kenneth G. Smith of Indian Hill, who is now on a vacation in Florida, is the donor of the bread and butter, meat and coffee dispensed at the North Wells street address. Last fall he went to the Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the Immanuel Baptist church, 2320 South Michigan avenue, who for 46 years has conducted a bread line at the church, and offered to finance a north side bread line.

"Yesterday the two bread lines combined fed 5,000 men and 350 women and children," the Rev. Mr. Myers said in telling of Mr. Smith's gift. "I have not fed so many persons on a single day in the 46 years of my experience with bread lines. Mr. Smith's bread line costs him $1,500 a month, and in addition he contributes $500 toward the expenses of the church's bread line."

COLDS
Break Up in a Jiffy
This Quick Way

Feel Like A New Man Almost Before You Know It

People have found out that newfangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and use what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do one thing well: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with twice the speed of anything else you've ever tried.

When Jack's ashore he's liable to be going several places at once! But there's one thing Navy men can get together on—whether in Hong Kong, Seattle, or Newtown Center: Taste is what they want in their cigarettes—the taste that comes from milder and better tobaccos, and from nothing else! They know their cigarettes, these men of the fleet. That's why Chesterfield is the Navy's choice!

FOR NINETEEN years, our Research Department has kept intimate touch with every new development of Science that could be applied to the manufacture of cigarettes. During this period there has been no development of tested value or importance to the smoker which we have not incorporated into the making of Chesterfield cigarettes.

ROPE FURNISHES MEAGER CLEW IN VICE STRANGLING

Cavalry Knot Employed to Slay Woman.

New York, March 5.—(AP)—The knot in the rope that shut off the life breath of titian haired Vivian Gordon, tonight furnished a promising clew in the quest for her slayers.

At the end of a long and searching examination of the slain woman's seven diaries and the questioning of many witnesses District Attorney Charles B. McLaughlin of the Bronx late today said he had learned the death knot "was such as is used to tie cavalry horses in stables."

Prominent Persons Questioned.

He said the significance of the discovery remained "to be determined." Experts in Columbia university have been examining the rope for several days in an effort to gain from its degree and manner of wear and other minute details possible scraps of information bearing directly upon the killing.

Men listed in "Who's Who" and the "Directory of Directors" were included in the fifty persons to whom detectives turned today in an attempt to catch the stranglers. The fifty names, with addresses and telephone numbers, were found in the fat diaries of the demi-mondaine, alleged blackmailer and friend of Arnold Rothstein.

District Attorney McLaughlin said they were only "potential victims" of Miss Gordon, so he spared them publicity by making their questioning secret.

Grand Jury Continues.

A grand jury continued its investigation into the killing of the red-headed woman, who had been seeking evidence to support her charge she was "framed" on a vice charge in 1923. Just a week ago today her body, with a rope about the neck, was found in Van Cortlandt park.

Among the new witnesses were three employes of the Polo Riding academy in Van Cortlandt park, whose stables adjoin the spot where the body was found.

Referee Samuel Seabury, prober of magistrates' courts, sent a bundle of anonymous letters to police. One of these was said to contain a tip that a narcotic ring feared Miss Gordon would "talk" and that she was believed to be responsible for a $100,000 drug seizure in Philadelphia recently.

AERIAL CHAMBER ASKS HOOVER TO AID PLANE TESTS

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—The need of further engineering development which will furnish the United States with speedier and safer planes was stressed in a statement presented to President Hoover today by a delegation representing the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of America. This chamber includes in its membership 95 per cent of the companies engaged in all parts of the aircraft industry.

Specifically, the aeronautics delegation urged the President to have a special study made of army and navy future aviation needs, so as to enable the aviation industry intelligently to plan its production and concentrate the skill of the national defense services and the industry upon fundamental engineering problems affecting both military and commercial flight. In this connection, attention was called to the fact that great engineering progress had followed in the wake of the five year army and navy air expansion programs, adopted in 1926, which are about to end.

"We respectfully request," the statement concludes, "that legislation be urged at the next session of congress permitting government officials to travel by air whenever, in the judgment of their superiors, such slight additional expenditure is warranted by the saving in time over surface transportation."

Ruth McCormick Here on Way Home to Rockford

No longer a member of congress and protesting that she was "no longer news," Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick paid a hail and farewell visit to Chicago yesterday. She arrived on the Capitol limited from Washington to close her career as a congresswoman, and almost immediately entrained for Rockford and her forthcoming occupation of newspaper publisher. She expects to visit the national capital briefly within the near future, going from there to Mexico to visit her son, John Medill McCormick, over the Easter holidays. After that, she told newspaper men, she intends to plunge into the work of handling her newspaper interests in the Illinois town.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs and colds and bronchial irritations. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist.—(Adv.)

LEGGE DUE TO QUIT TODAY AS CHAIRMAN OF U. S. FARM BOARD

Washington, D. C., March 5.—[Special.]—The resignation of Alexander Legge as chairman of the federal farm board will be announced at the White House tomorrow, it was indicated there late today. While no definite announcement was made, it was said flatly that a statement regarding the Chicago executive would be forthcoming tomorrow. Chairman Legge conferred with the President today and is expected to return tomorrow. No announcement as to who will fill the vacancy made by Mr. Legge's retirement will be forthcoming for some time, it was said.

ALEXANDER LEGGE.

Whether President Hoover has urged Mr. Legge to remain a few months longer was not made known today. At the time of his appointment, in June, 1929, Mr. Legge agreed to serve but one year. The President prevailed upon him to continue during the farm board's efforts to stabilize wheat prices through heavy purchases through stabilization corporations. James C. Stone, vice chairman of the board, is expected to become the chairman when Mr. Legge steps out to return to the presidency of the International Harvester company of Chicago.

90% OF BREW SOLD AS REAL IS NEAR BEER—ALCOCK

Acting Police Commissioner Alcock believes that 90 per cent of the brew sold in Chicago as real beer is only near beer, he told members of the Illinois Vigilance committee at their annual banquet last night in the Y. M. C. A. building, 19 South La Salle street.

Alcock praised Arthur Burrage Farwell, the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the vigilance association, and Melbourne P. Boynton, president of the organization for their reform work.

"Despite the number of unemployed and the fact that the police force is less than half as large as it should be, Chicago has had less crime in 1930 and 1931 than it has had in the last 30 years," the commissioner said.

"Of course, we've had some gang killings, some gambling, a little vice, and a little beer. Some of our men may take a dollar or two now and then from a gambler, but you don't hear about any of them running down an alley to escape from a scoundrel."

Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court expressed regret that modern police methods, made necessary by increases in population, had supplanted the "oldfashioned policeman who knew everybody in the block," and was thus a more effective guardian of public safety and morals.

South Dakota Solons Spurn Easy Divorce Law

Pierre, S. D., March 5.—(AP)—South Dakota will not have an easy divorce law. The state's house of representatives today killed by indefinite postponement a bill which would have reduced from a year to ninety days resident requirements for divorce. The vote was 69 to 30 for postponement.

PASS MICHIGAN AUTOIST 'BREATH TEST' MEASURE

Drivers with Liquor Odor Liable to Arrest.

Lansing, Mich., March 5.—[Special.]—Condemned as "another smell bill" by Representative Robert D. Wardell, Detroit Liberal, the Burhans measure to permit arresting officers to take persons arrested for driving while drunk before physicians to determine their condition, was passed by the Michigan house today.

The bill provides that a drunk driver suspect may be taken before any licensed physician and that the physician's testimony shall be admissible as evidence in court. Drivers accused of being under the influence of drugs are also included within the scope of the measure.

Representative Wardell asked that the affirmative roll call be attached to the bill, after its passage, 52 to 19, declaring that it would "do more than anything so far introduced to arouse the people against prohibition."

Wardell said it would result in officers stopping drivers promiscuously to smell their breaths and, if the odor of intoxicants were noted, whisking them off to doctors to pass on their condition.

11 of 20 Men on Trial for Dry Conspiracy Acquitted

Springfield, Ill., March 5.—(AP)—Eleven of the twenty men on trial in the United States District court for alleged conspiracy to violate the liquor laws were acquitted today when Judge Fitzhenry ordered a verdict in their behalf. The judge said the government had failed to connect them with the alleged conspiracy, which it charged existed from 1927 to 1930. He also denied a motion for a directed verdict on behalf of the J. C. Hubinger Brothers company of Keokuk, Ia., manufacturers of corn products. The government charges the company shipped forty carloads of corn sugar to Springfield to be used by bootleggers in making liquor.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute

SEASONING HAS A BIG PART IN GREEK COOKING

Woman Gives Recipes of Her Native Land.

BY META GIVEN.

You who are following us in our international gastronomic search will, if you are a born gourmet, want to try the Greek recipes that we supply today. These recipes come from Mrs. Helen Paleologos, who was born in Yiliatra, near Athens.

The methods of cooking and seasoning account for many of the differences in the flavor of these foods. In serving lamb, the meat eaten in Greece 365 days in the year, a wedge of lemon is the principal accompaniment and often dry spearmint is added to the lamb before it is cooked. Parsley, onion, lettuce, celery, and tomatoes are also used with lamb. A famous seasoning for meats and salads is the sweet herb, origan, called by the Greeks "rigini." It resembles thyme. The most important fat used in cooking is olive oil. Butter comes next.

Sesame seed, virtually unknown to Americans, is much used by the Greeks. It is sprinkled on the top of their bread and rolls and is used in pastries and in the preparation of a delicious candy.

For Preserving Grapefruit Peel.

Mrs. Paleologos submits an excellent method of preserving grapefruit peel. The thin layer of yellow is grated off the outside of the whole fruit. Then the peel is cut through to the flesh in pieces just the size and shape required to cover one section of fruit. These pieces, pulled away, leave the whole fruit intact. This gives a piece of peel about five inches long, an inch wide in the middle at the widest place and tapering to a point at each end.

These are rolled into tight scrolls, strung on a string, and boiled for about 10 minutes. The water is then discarded, more fresh water is added, and the peel is again boiled 10 minutes, and this is repeated once more. For peel from two grapefruit 1½ pounds of sugar [three cups] and five glasses of water are boiled to a syrup. Then the peel is added and simmered slowly for a half hour, then the gas is turned off for a few minutes, and then the simmering is continued for another half hour. This simmering and resting is continued all day long.

When the peel has finished cooking, one tablespoonful of lemon juice is added and the peel and cyrup are put into a jar to be kept until ready to serve.

Other Recipes Given.

Some other recipes for Greek dishes follow:

TOLMADES.

[LETTUCE COVERED MEAT BALLS]

1 lb. lamb, ground	spearmint leaves
¼ cup raw rice	2 medium onions
3 or 4 sprigs parsley	1 egg
About 1 tsp. dry	Pepper and salt

Put the meat, rice, chopped parsley, and spearmint in a mixing bowl. Add egg and season with pepper and salt. Slice onions very thin. Put them into a saucepan with one-quarter pound of butter and two tablespoons of olive oil and cook slowly until the onions are soft and yellow. Add two tablespoons of this onion and oil mixture to the meat mixture. Leave the rest of the oil and onion in the kettle. Put about one dozen lettuce leaves in a colander and allow hot water to flow over them until they are wilted. Drain the leaves well. Place about two tablespoons of the meat mixture on each lettuce leaf and wrap the leaf around the meat.

Squeeze the meat balls well to remove the water from the lettuce leaves. Put four cups of hot water into the kettle containing the onions and the oil and heat to the boiling point. Then put the lettuce covered ball into this boiling liquid. Cook slowly for about one hour.

Just before serving, beat four eggs thoroughly and add the strained juice of two lemons. Remove about one cup of the juice from the tolmades to cool, then add it slowly to the lemon-egg mixture, shaking and stirring well to obtain a smooth consistency. Pour this egg mixture over the tolmades and shake vigorously to blend the egg mixture with the liquid in the kettle. Cook one minute. The sauce should be very smooth and creamlike and it will be, Mrs. Paleologos says, if the liquid that is taken from the tolmades is cooled before it is added to the raw eggs. Serve at once. Yield: Five servings or fifteen small meat balls.

Chicken Roast in Casserole.

Select a young roasting chicken, clean, and cut into the usual serving pieces. Pepper and salt the chicken. Put one-half cup butter (one-quarter pound) and two tablespoons of olive oil into a large kettle and heat until bubbling hot. Add chicken and cook until nicely browned on all sides. Put three cups of canned tomatoes through a strainer to remove the seeds. Pour the strained tomato and three cups of water over the chicken. Boil slowly until done. The time for boiling a tender chicken is about one hour. When the chicken is done there should be just enough red liquid for gravy to serve with the chicken and an extra two or three spoonfuls to add to the peas and noodles that are so often served with this chicken. Yield: Five servings.

Baked Stuffed Tomatoes.

Wash tomatoes and scoop out the insides carefully. Fill tomatoes with following mixture: Combine one pound of ground lamb with one tablespoon of chopped parsley, one-quarter cup raw rice, one tablespoon dry spearmint leaves, two cloves, chopped garlic, and two medium onions chopped, three-quarters teaspoon salt, and a little pepper. Put stuffed tomato in a pan with two tablespoons butter and two tablespoons olive oil and about one-half cup of water. Cook in a medium oven (370 degrees F.) until done. Cooking requires about one hour. One pound of lamb fills about twelve tomatoes.

Boil either chicken or lamb until done to make a good broth. Take the meat out and leave the broth in the kettle. To each two cups of broth add one-quarter cup of raw rice and cook until rice is done. Remove about one cup of the broth to cool. Beat four eggs for six cups of broth used and to the eggs add the strained juice of two lemons and beat one minute longer. Add the cup of cooled broth, slowly stirring to keep smooth. Then add this lemon-egg mixture to the broth-rice mixture in the kettle and stir just a few times to blend well. Cook for one minute longer. Yield: Six servings.

Lamb Stew with Endive.

2 lbs. shoulder lamb	2 tbsp. olive oil
3 medium onions	Salt
3 cups canned tomatoes	Pepper
2 tbsp. butter	2 heads endive [celery may be used]

Put the oil and butter in the stew kettle and heat until bubbling hot. Add the onions sliced thin and the lamb that has been cut into two inch dice. Cook until the meat is brown and the onion is a redding color. Add salt, pepper, and the tomatoes that have been run through the strainer to remove the seeds. Add three cups of water and boil slowly for about 45 minutes. At this point add two heads of curly endive (or celery) that have been cleaned and thoroughly washed. Cook in an uncovered kettle until the meat and endive are done. Yield: Six servings.

Stuffing for Turkey.

Liver of turkey	2 large sweet potatoes
1 lb. chestnuts	½ lb. English walnuts
¼ lb. pine nuts	½ lb. almonds

Put the liver, peeled sweet potatoes, and the shelled nuts through a meat grinder, using the medium knife so as not to have the mass ground too fine. Add pepper, salt, a stick of cinnamon bark, 20 cloves, and one-quarter pound butter to the ground mixture. Put into a kettle and cook one-half hour, stirring continuously. Have turkey salted and peppered and put stuffing in. Before putting the turkey into the oven run the surface over with lemon juice, salt, pepper, and butter. Bake in the usual way. Have the oven hot at first, about 550 degrees F., for 30 minutes, then reduce the heat to about 350 degrees F. or medium temperature, to finish cooking. The time for cooking depends on age and size of fowl. Young turkeys require about two hours. Larger turkeys require about four hours.

PLAN RESUMPTION OF FRUIT TRADING AT BENTON HARBOR

Benton Harbor, Mich., March 5.—[Special.]—Plans are already under way for resumption of trade in this city's fruit market, which, although active but six months of each year, is conceded to be the world's largest "cash to the grower" wholesale produce exchange.

Over 600 trains of 68 refrigerator cars each would have been required in 1930 to handle all of the commodities that passed through the market if they had been shipped out by rail, according to the estimate of J. G. Boyle, president of the Berrien County Farm Bureau federation. A total population of 40,000,000 persons living within a radius of 500 miles of Benton Harbor had access to the fruits purchased there last year, he says.

"Forty per cent was tree fruit, 35 per cent was grapes, 10 per cent small fruits, 10 per cent vegetables, and 5 per cent melons of the last year's trading." This is Mr. Boyle's statement after studying how farmers were able to engage in the business of the county's fruit shipping center.

Benton Harbor established and financed the market as a civic project which cost $50,000. Boat docks and railway sidings adjacent to the St. Joe river permit both rail and water shipments throughout the active trading months.

Cash paid to growers amounted to $4,225,000 in 1930, the farm bureau leader found. Much of the fruit came by rail and truck to Chicago, while other consignments were handled by boats for buyers located in cities along the west shore of Lake Michigan. Six thousand out of town buyers and 100 local produce men bid on the commodities placed on the market by the growers.

Stability to fruit production in Berrien county as well as in adjacent counties is said to have come with the establishment of the Benton Harbor exchange. A small fee of 10 cents per load is charged growers for selling over the market, while buyers also are charged a small fee by the day or they can rent stalls at a cost of $50 per year.

CABBAGE, OLD AND NEW, FINDS PLACE ON TABLE

New cabbage, old cabbage, parsnips, turnips and peas are competing to catch the eye of the shopper these days on points of appetite as well as price. The cabbage probably combines both of these appeals as satisfactorily as any of the vegetables, according to market information.

Old cabbage coming out of storage is competing for a place on Chicago tables in homes and restaurants with new cabbage coming fresh from fields in Texas. Growers in Wisconsin have been selling carloads for as low as $3 and $4 per ton, or about one-fifth of a cent per pound. Even with the heavy trimming necessary to let retailers display the desirable crisp, inner leaves, the retail price is low and has held down the new cabbage from the south.

Parsnips are coming out of local storage in large supplies as Illinois producers anticipate spring weather that will force them out of season. New turnips and old turnips are both on the market now. The new purple tops are coming from Texas and Louisiana and are being distributed in Chicago at wholesale prices of $2 to $2.25 per bushel. Green peas, in the pod, are mainly from Mexico with some coming from Florida and the Imperial valley in California.

Smoked Meat Represents Best Buy for Week-End

In its regular weekly report, issued for the guidance of consumers, the committee on marketing information of the Chicago Meat council states: "Smoked meat represents the most economical meat buy for the Chicago housewife over the coming week-end. Ham is available at prices which are sure to appeal to the housewife who is looking for bargains."

CHICAGO RANKS WORLD CAPITAL OF FOOD TRADE

Consumes $500,000,000 Worth Every Year.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Chicago's eminence as an industrial and agricultural capital for the western hemisphere is no less important than its dominance as a railroad terminal.

These factors in turn, together with the rapidly increasing population and wide range of nationalities of this metropolitan area, have served in recent years to make Chicago the largest food distribution center of any in the world.

This stamp of leadership, placed by Col. Robert Isham Randolph, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, has recently been augmented by some "box car" figures issued by the federal bureau of the census and the department of agriculture on the size of this city's eating bill, and the volume of edibles passing through its markets.

Chicago's Food Bill.

The net sales of all food stores in 1929, as the census takers found them in 15,966 retail stores, reached nearly a half billion dollars. To be explicit, the food bill of 3,375,235 Chicagoans was $427,534,870.

More than 202 millions are spent for groceries alone! Other staggering items on the Dearborn family budget include 84 millions spent for meats, and an additional 23 million spent in combined grocery and meat markets. The little matter of 39 millions is spent on dairy and poultry products, and but a paltry 25 million dollars for candies and nuts.

Bakers extoll their wares to ring up sales of over three million dollars, coffee, tea and spice stores about as much more, and the 32 milk dealers of Chicago are paid more than 50 million dollars in such years as 1929.

Only Portion of Claim.

And, could you believe it, the nicknacks and jimcracks to be found at almost any hour of day or night in delicatessen stores, totaled up to $19,243,000.

But these retail sales constitute only a portion of Chicago's claim to supremacy in food distribution. Here have been established central distributing activities in cereal grains, live stock and meat products, poultry and dairy products, fruits and vegetables, harvested by a nation of unequaled facilities for producing quality and quantity foodstuffs as well as distributing them quickly and economically.

"Chicago, with less than half the population of New York, has much more than half of the total arrivals and a greater percentage of arrivals over unloaded cars of fruits and vegetables," declared W. H. Hall, federal market specialist for the department of agriculture.

He has just compiled the shipments of fruits and vegetables in 1930, from all distributing markets, where products are received from almost every state in the Union. New York received 180,000 carloads, while Chicago received 133,000 cars of fresh fruits and vegetables, of which about 75,000 carloads were unloaded here and the remainder reconsigned.

California shipped more produce to Chicago than any other state last year, a total of 43,000 cars. Idaho and Wisconsin each sent over 8,000 carloads, and Washington 7,300 cars. Nearby states supply truckload shipments amounting to over five per cent of the total receipts here.

Strawberries from Louisiana and more northerly states, together with oranges and grapefruit from Florida, grapes and apples constitute the large percentage of trainloads consumed in the Chicago area, Mr. Hall finds. Those largely reshipped to other consumption points include potatoes, lettuce, cantaloupes, and many California products.

The immense storage facilities and railway terminal facilities in Chicago have made this the focal point for not only such fruits as apples, but dairy, poultry, meat, and grain products as well. The wholesale business in foodstuffs here is estimated now to be about two billion dollars annually.

DISPUTE ON HOW TO FRY CHICKEN ENDED; ALL KINDS WELCOME

New York, March 5.—(AP)—"Your true Hoosier takes his chicken when, where, as, and if, he can get it," whether it is fried in batter or in flour.

The adoption of such a resolution by a group of Hoosiers was designed today to stifle a feud over the relative merits of fried chicked a la Indiana and a la Maryland, which threatened to rival the now famous corn pone-potlikker controversy of the south.

The resolution was in answer to members of the Indiana club, dining the other night, who decline Maryland style chicken and sent it back to be prepared the Wabash way. To a skeptical chef, Mrs. Medea G. Wager, head of the club, demonstrated that the former was encased in a batter before frying and the latter sprinkled with flour.

HEAD LETTUCE PLENTIFUL AND LOW IN PRICE

Head lettuce is not only plentiful and of good quality, but it should be cheap in any store in Chicagoland. Crates are being sold wholesale for from $2.75 to $3. Each crate contains from four to six dozen heads, so that the average crate of five dozen sold at $3 means that the wholesale price per head is five cents.

"Ten cents should be the top price for an average size head, for that would allow a 100 per cent margin for the retailer," says W. H. Hall of the Chicago office of the federal government's market service on fresh fruits and vegetables.

TASTEFUL FOOD PROVES AID TO HIGH THINKING

When Conversation Lags It's Time to Eat.

BY VIRGINIA SCHMITZ.

Why parents make mistakes with their children, why a certain bachelor in the group doesn't marry—of course he is allowed to defend himself—why socialism becomes a religion to those down on their luck, and what do you think of modern art? Sunday afternoon.

But when the talk drifts back again on the favorite subject of what's wrong with marriage it's time for mine hostess to start the percolator. For high thinking thrives not on thought alone. And with elbows resting on the tables, and coffee cups fast piling with ashes, the conversation will take on new life and perhaps new subjects.

Sunday afternoon may be a time to sleep covered with the comic section of the paper and recuperate from the inroads of roast beef or spare ribs and sauerkraut. Or it may be a time to pay party calls and sit stiffly with balancing tea on the edge of your lap.

Decide Great Questions.

Or it may be a time to gather with one's best companions and decide questions of great worth and moment under the influence of the gathering dusk. Somehow on a Sunday afternoon if the house is warm and it's cold outside, if one's chair is made comfortable with pillows and footrests, congeniality may give a glow to conversation not to be equaled by fine Rhine wine.

But it is when darkness has finally settled down that remarks may lose their sparkle and circle back to the starting point. That means of course that it is time for supper.

Sunday night supper. For such a group no lobster salads or dainty sandwiches cut in intricate designs. Some thing to lean their elbows on the table over, something to poise on the end of a fork as they punctuate a remark, something to fortify them for the verbal struggles that are to succeed supper and the attempts at the polka if they feel so inclined and some one feels like playing.

Not Tea; Not a Snack.

Not in any sense a snack; not tea by any stretch of the imagination; a mild variety of the Dutch lunch, in fact.

First kalter auf schnitt, cold cutups to you—that is ham and tongue and sliced roast from dinner; perhaps two or three varieties of cheese, cold sausages or perhaps hot frankfurters, potato salad, rye bread and pickles, and for dessert—coffee cake, or nut and date cake, or perhaps fruit jello and store cookies.

Never on any condition anything but store cookies. For the tall blonde who hates to be called a tall blonde insists that store cookies are best. And since she is a tall blonde, store cookies it is.

It's the informal meal at its best because it has not taken all the time and energy of the hostess to make it informal. Slicing the bread, putting the hotdogs in water, making the coffee and setting the table and your meal is ready without necessitating the absence of one from the group for any length of time. And that's the beauty of the Dutch lunch at its mildest.

'Most Anything You Want.

In all its glory the Dutch lunch, however, may be something else again. Then you can have almost anything you want and you're sure to eat more than you want, your first time out, at least. For the Dutch lunch is no relation of the Dutch treat. Who ever libeled the Dutch that way never partook of one of their so-called lunches.

Perhaps, at that, the name is used a trifle loosely. But it saves time. Long experience with these Sunday night suppers that pass for light snacks have convinced me that the sum total of consumption on such occasions is far greater than at any eight course dinner served in these days.

Perhaps the groaning board of our ancestors with their multiplicity of entrees and everything else might bear comparison. But otherwise the full fledged Dutch lunch has no competitor for quantity and variation on one central theme.

It is limited only by the limit of the larder. Almost anything can and often does find its way onto the table. Because of the innumerable plates and containers for food that crowd the table the number of guests must be limited to those who can find room for their plates.

Here the varieties of meats is raised to eight or ten; more sausages from bologna, through summer sausage to salami; Swiss cheese, American, Roquefort, Edam, brick cream cheese, and even the bouquet of limburger is present; German potato salad with its bacon and tart vinegar, sliced tomatoes, five or six varieties of pickles; baked beans; herring and anchovy; cole slaw with two varieties of dressing; coffee cakes, stroisel, and stollen, cinnamon and almond filled; apple cake and plum cake; with maybe to end it all pie, cake and ice cream for desert. Will you go mit?

Free Lunch at Farm Sales Is Epic of Iowa Corn Fields

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Picked up a copy of a home town paper the other day—The Democrat Waukon, Ia.]—just to see how things were going. The editor told me last fall that everything was O. K.—crops, despite the general drought, were pretty decent, business was good. But I wondered whether hard times had penetrated the fastnesses of Iowa—the great corn and hog state with more automobiles than families—by this time. However, I found little to substantiate that suspicion and plenty of evidence that business is not only basically but fundamentally and irretrievably sound.

Granted farmers are getting less for their produce, but these conditions are reflected in retail prices, too. Flour is $1.35 per 49 pound sack according to an advertisement; sugar is $5 per 100, and coffee is a dollar for five pounds. Gasoline is lower than it has been for fifteen years, which enables youngsters to dance anywhere within four counties' reach.

The Lutheran Ladies had a successful bake sale; the Presbyterian aid was about to hold a church supper—or was it the Methodists? The Browning club is studying "John Brown's Body," and Dr. Letourneau, the family doctor 30 years ago, is out for what must be his steenth term for mayor.

Then Comes Real Thrill.

All encouraging, but the real thrill comes on page 4 in a grand advertisement as impressive as a high school diploma, underneath the Sunshine Hill items. Let me conjure up two magical words for all of you who have ever followed a plow behind a pair of spavined bays—"FARM AUCTION." O, what fond memories—gustatory and otherwise—they provoke. I was disappointed to note that Editor Griebel had thrown away his three inch high railroad type. But progress comes, so he now employs an electrotype. But the letters are still big and the ad attracts you.

But the wording of the advertisement itself remains as of old. It was delightful to read the prewar flavored phrases:

"Having decided to quit farming the undersigned will sell at public auction on the old John Ekert farm 6½ miles south of Waukon and one-half mile south of Forest Mills, on Wednesday, March 4, commencing at 10 a. m. the following property:

"5—HEAD WORK HORSES—5"

"22—HEAD OF CATTLE—22"

Then followed more characteristic stuff: "Five milch cows, one fresh, others freshen soon; one two year old heifer; seven calves." The spelling of milch cow is in the most approved Iowa editorial style, for no matter whether a farmer might choose to argue that he was selling milk cows instead of milch cows, milch it remained.

The ad was above criticism: "Sheep—seven ewes and one buck; 80 chickens," and so on through the maze of farm machinery, buggy, cream separator, two bob sleighs, horse collars, fanning mill, three farm wagons, and "other articles too numerous to mention."

Lest any one begin to wonder about the relation of this story to food pages there is the striking last line of the ad:

"FREE LUNCH AT NOON."

This line recalls days of sloshing around through a mixture of mud and melting snow, trailing highbooted Col. George Waters, the auctioneer, the master of thousands of sales, known everywhere in northeastern Iowa. In the bovine belt auctioneers are big and brawny, they're tobacco chewers with an unerring eye, and they crack the whip over bidder as well as bull. The colonel has a rapid fire lingo. He arouses, he chides, he excites, he bullies, he dazzles, he spellbinds bids—and then he sells the little red heifer.

In a couple of hours he gets rid of an amazing amount of stuff, tramping his entourage around from one barn to another, from granary to corncrib, from henhouse to machine shed so that by noon the whole group feels like a pack of starving Armenians—despite the fact that Iowa housewives are liberal with their breakfasts.

Now for the Free Lunch.

With possibly a couple of hundred men to feed—the town bums, courthouse hangers on, and even Iowa bankers—the housewife cannot go in for a Thanksgiving day dinner. Nor can she let this mob into her house. There is always plenty of hot coffee. In fact, it appears and disappears by the washtub full. You drink from shiny tin cups which are dipped into the tub.

Also a mountainous pile of buns with weeners [they weren't hot dogs then] confronted this hungry mob. Sometimes there were sandwiches, possibly other items, but doughnut dunking always rounded out the feast. Farm auction doughnuts are the balloon tires of the doughnut family. And you ate more and more of them until the auctioneer had regained his bark and led you back to the sales corral to finish up the day.

SEE ASPARAGUS GLAD HARBINGER OF SPRING JOYS

But Its Edible Delights Chiefly Enhance It.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Where O where is the householder who does not respond with a degree of pleasurable anticipation to the first spring announcement of asparagus for dinner? Even to our forbears, one hundred or more years in the past, it was a courier of budding fragrance, fat robin red breasts pulling angle worms out of the garden patch, and greening meadows stretching off into dim distance.

Asparagus may not be the fashion it was 2,000 years ago when the old Romans of epicurean taste served the tender stalks or even a short twenty years back when the inferior circles of Russian society regarded lobster and asparagus as the "ne plus ultra" of luxury. But no one vegetable is more of a gastronomical delight to many of us today than these fresh bunches gathered in March, April and May.

How few of us, however, enjoy the supreme satisfaction of the tender and delicately flavored asparagus clipped from a bed close by the kitchen door? To the average housewife it is a matter of going to the telephone and placing an order which comes to her marked "S grass." She goes through the hollow form of asking, "Is it nice and fresh?" and the grocer goes through the equally hollow form of replying, "Yes, madam." She hangs up the receiver thinking if it is not so nice and fresh, plenty of salt and pepper and butter will be the cure.

But Only When It Is Fresh.

But whether you raise or buy asparagus, be sure to use it almost immediately, for much of the delicacy and sweetness of flavor disappears soon after it is gathered. In the market the newly cut stalks will stand straight with the little pointed scales pressed close to the tip when the growth is the newest. When ready to prepare it, wash each stalk thoroughly, trimming away the scales, as they frequently harbor insects or at least some of the garden soil. The next step calls for judgment to avoid unnecessary waste. If the stalks are green, small, and tender, they do not need peeling, but otherwise the skin should be removed by slipping a paring knife under it as far as it is tough, sparing, however, the entire tip or more. Then trim the bottom up as far as it is woody or dry. If you are an advocate of economy in the kitchen these ends may be covered with water and heated to extract the flavor for cream soup or sauce for the vegetable

Preparing for the Table.

In cooking asparagus, it is wise to tie the stalks in bundles for individual service so that they may easily be removed from the kettle. Cook them standing up in the water in order that the thick part of the stalk will have sufficient time to become tender. When this is accomplished the bundle may be placed on its side until the tips are tender, ready to be served. Particularly helpful in making the bundles stand up in the kettle is the use of a tin lid from which the center circle has been removed. The tips will rise up out of the water through this hole.

No definite amount of time may be given for cooking asparagus, as it depends entirely on its age, but caution not to overcook it is necessary. Also remember that the kettle must never be completely covered and that salt should be added, as with all vegetables, when it is half done.

Recipe for Soup.

The recipe for asparagus soup follows:

4 bunches fresh asparagus.
1 slice medium onion.
1 tbsp. chopped parsley.
2 tbsp. butter.
4 tbsp. flour.
2 tbsp. salt.
2½ cups chicken or meat broth (bouillon made from chicken or beef bouillon cubes may be used).
1½ cups milk.

Remove scales and tough outside portions from lower end of stalks. Wash and cut off the tips about two inches long. Cook stalks, onion, and parsley in an open kettle in enough water to cover. Add tips and finish cooking about 10 minutes longer. Remove tips. Press stalks through a sieve. There should be 2 2-3 cups of pulp and liquid. If not add water. In the meantime prepare a white sauce of the butter, flour, salt, broth, and milk. Add pulp and reheat. When ready to serve add asparagus tips. Yield: Six servings. One serving: Total, 107 calories; protein, 123 calories; fat, 58 calories; carbohydrates,

ARTISTIC TOUCH OFTEN UNCOVERS CULINARY FLAWS

Dinners May Not Taste as Good as They Look.

BY BETTY BROWNING.

"Fine feathers make a fine bird," is a saying that applies no less to a good dinner than to a pretty woman, with this difference, that artistic accessories invariably may be depended upon to make the woman more attractive, whereas artistic serving of a dinner merely tends to accentuate its culinary flaws if flaws there are.

This, then, is not for her eyes who still is struggling with the whys and wherefores of cooking. It is intended rather for the creator of succulent chef d'oeuvres o fthe oven and ice box who wishes to present her masterpieces in the most favorable light.

Old Game of Tasting.

The starting point of this plaint for more beautiful repasts is a game which used to create a stir at children's parties not so many years ago. One by one the guests were blindfolded and made to taste such widely different substances as mustard, horseradish, vinegar, sugar, bread, and fruits by the young host, while the mother stood by to se that no undue experimenting went on. The prize was awarded the child who guessed the greatest number of things he had tasted, and that number invariably was small.

Of late the fact that we eat with our eyes almost as much as with our sense of taste has become a matter over which psychologists wax pedantic, but their methods of proof resemble those which used to afford the youth of the land a little harmless amusement.

Appeal to Eye Appetite.

How well this rôle of the eye, gastronomically speaking, is understood by our purveyors of food whose beautifully drawn superhams, cakes, salads, and breakfast cereals greet us from this page, and from billboards, bus and street car placards at every moment during the day is evident. But isn't it perhaps true that many a perfect cook neglects to put her best foot foremost and make her dinners look as good as they taste?

If landscaping the dinner plate ever becomes as exact a science as interior decorating, dress designing or landscape gardening, doubtless the color and topography of the food on the plate will be emphasized as two fundamentals in serving a tempting meal.

Two Tone Uninteresting.

Take color first. No matter how pleasing the single or two tone ensemble may be in dress, in food it is uninteresting. A slice of lamb, mashed potato, and creamed onion, perfectly cooked, perfectly balanced as a repast, none the less are a depressing combination from the color angle.

Add a dash of green mint jelly to the lamb, change the mashed potatoes to Duchesse potatoes slightly browned and with a suspicion of crimson pimento, then add the creamed onion, or better still substitute an ear of golden bantam corn, and color is achieved. Merely compare the effect in your mind and you'll be converted to color in food!

Another example, and no wonder the Christmas dinner hasn't changed in a lifetime! White breast of turkey or golden brown drumstick, crimson cranberries, golden sweet potatoes, green brussel sprouts, or bright green new peas, color enough for any feast, but all of it color that can be duplicated at everyday meals throughout the year.

Suggestions for Topography.

Next, suggestions for the topography of the plate. For the thin slice of meat, fish, or fowl, supply as contrast a fluffy mound of mashed potato or the substantial baked potato, and green beans, or carrots. With creamed or hashed meat dishes try small new potatoes in butter or hominy or potato cakes and spinach, squash, artichoke, or asparagus.

Salads and desserts lend themselves even more readily, perhaps, to topographical experiment. The crisp lettuce leaf that curls about the fruit or vegetable basis can make or mar the salad by its degree of erect crispness. The simple dessert literally attains new heights with a garnishing of whipped cream and a possible touch of cherry or nut.

Whet Diners' Appetites.

Serving the dish, the fashion of bringing it to the table is another way to add color to the meal. The plum pudding borne flaming into the hall, the suckling pig and roast fowl brought whole to the table, exuding the fragrance of tender roast flesh, are traditional methods of arousing festive appetites. Carving the roast before the eyes of the diners, serving the dessert, and cutting the cake at the table are simple devices which stimulate hunger and enliven the routine of the repast.

Lastly, and here we tremble to proceed, there is the matter of lending color to the individual dish. Just how much is gained and how much lost by making a dish fancy or leaving it plain is a moot question. Recipes which camouflage the basic elements of a concoction, sauces which hide the original taste of a food are widely used and widely scorned. Let it be conceded, however, that a little touch can give new charm to many an old standby on the family menu.

BREAKFAST ON A SUNDAY! WHAT MEAL BEATS IT?

Time to Linger Over Sabbath Repast.

BY ANGELA PETESCH.

Sunday morning breakfast is the most enjoyable morning meal of the whole week. Perhaps so because there is time to linger over the tender waffles and crisp strips of bacon and we are not required to snatch a cup of coffee while we're still putting on our socks and eat a doughnut while running for the train. On mornings such as these the coffee is always too hot to drink and the doughnut goes down in chunks.

But on Sunday morning about 11 o'clock, after a good morning sleep, how sociable and intimate it is to have the entire family around the table in comfortable informal attire. Then, if ever, the wage earners have an opportunity to take a bite leisurely and perhaps be even a little more critical. For this reason the cook should always be sure that the coffee is of good strength [put an extra bean in the pot], that the popovers have popped and the oatmeal mush is salted. So far as I'm concerned I am quite willing to dispense with the oatmeal mush entirely, particularly so if there are enough popovers.

By the time we are well into the second popover the table talk will have crept around to the depression and hard times. The request for a new pair of shoes is a pretty sure way of starting it. And under the main head DEPRESSION will be (a) the rumored cut in wages, and (b) the present condition of Amalgamated Razor Blades. After the financial status of the country has been discussed and remedies recommended father will demonstrate, between gulps of coffee, how policemen were chasing him "just all night long" [in his dreams]. But mom's dream, in part, had to do with vacations. And she related how they had bought a crazy little second hand car and had rented a cottage in the country for two weeks. And how all their friends came out to visit them for the week-end—perhaps to enjoy a delicious Sunday morning breakfast like this:

Fresh Strawberries with Brown Sugar and Cream
Whole Wheat Waffles with Butter and Sirup
Strips of Bacon
Coffee Cream

WHOLE WHEAT WAFFLES.

2 tsp. baking powder.
½ tsp. salt.
2 tbsp. sugar.
2 eggs, separated.
1 pint milk.
¼ cup melted fat, half butter.

Sift flour, then measure. Resift with other dry ingredients. Beat egg yolks, add milk and fat. Stir liquid into dry ingredients until flour disappears. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites until well blended. Pour enough batter into a hot waffle iron to cover. Bake to a golden brown. A thin waffle is more desirable than a thick one. The waffle iron may or may not need greasing, depending upon previous use. Yield: Six waffles.

It is matchless

in flavor, aroma and richness because no other coffee is roasted as Hills Bros Coffee is roasted...evenly...continuously

a little at a time

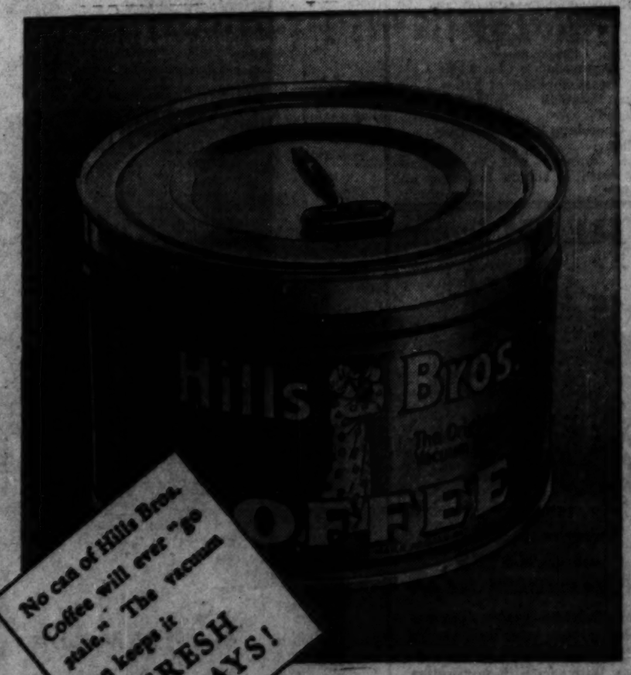
A FLAVOR THAT DELIGHTS YOU EVERY TIME YOU TASTE IT . . . A FLAVOR THAT CAN ONLY BE PRODUCED BY HILLS BROS' PATENTED, CONTINUOUS PROCESS THAT ROASTS A FEW POUNDS AT A TIME—NEVER IN BULK

COOKING food in large quantities is risky business. You know that. You are far more certain of perfect results if you work with small amounts. You control the mixing, the seasoning, the cooking—everything.

Roasting coffee in bulk has its risks also. That's why Hills Bros. roast only a few pounds at a time by their patented, continuous process—Controlled Roasting. By this exact method an even roast is guaranteed. No berries are overdone, none are underdone. Naturally, a perfect flavor, such as no other coffee has, is the result.

As fast as Hills Bros. Coffee comes from the roasters it is packed in vacuum cans. By this process, air, which destroys the flavor of coffee, is taken out and kept out. Coffee packed in ordinary tins, even if air-tight, does not stay fresh. But no matter when or where you buy Hills Bros. Coffee, it is as fresh as when it came from the roasters.

Hills Bros. Coffee is sold everywhere. Ask for it by name and look for the Arab—the trade-mark—on the can.



No can of Hills Bros. Coffee will ever "go stale." The vacuum can keeps it FRESH ALWAYS!

CHOICE CUTS OF MEATS LOWER THAN YEAR AGO

55 Cents to $1 Provides a Meal for Five.

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

The abbreviation, H. C. of L., that not so long ago tumbled from the housewife's nimble tongue every time she did the family marketing no longer shames the butcher, the baker, and the rest of the food merchant category.

While the pennies aren't rattling over his counter in so great a number, the butcher especially greets his feminine customer with a smile these days because his choice cuts of meats are priced 25 to 30 per cent lower than a year ago. And when it comes to cheaper cuts—well, a dinner fit for a king can be built around them by a housewife if she's clever.

Based on February prices, meat dinners with plenty of vegetables can be furnished a family of five from 55 cents to a dollar for Sunday. Although the meat prices quoted are the less popular cuts, they are especially valuable for their vitamin and protein content, and a wise housewife can make them most appetizing.

Some of these economical cuts with their corresponding prices follow:

SERVING RIGHT VEGETABLES IS DAILY PROGRAM

Suitable vegetables in addition to potatoes and dried beans, the old standbys, are hard to select when the housewife has in mind balancing the diet. Lessened income and a lower supply of home canned and stored vegetables is adding to the problem this year, says Miss Ruth Cessna, specialist for foods in the extension service of Lowa State college.

She suggests providing leafy vegetables and canned tomatoes, and as many other vegetables in addition to them as can be suitably placed in budget and menus.

The three most economical of the leafy vegetables, according to Miss Cessna, are cabbage, lettuce, and spinach. Serving lettuce three times a week, cabbage two or three times, and spinach once or twice is, in her opinion, a good division of these three. She outlines some other suggestions:

"Tomatoes should be served at least twice a week, and four times when oranges and grapefruit are not used.

"Carrots, onions, and celery are the most economical to buy because they may be used in a wide variety of ways. Buying a bushel will enable a housewife to save considerable money if proper storage is available. String beans, corn, and peas are canned products which may be purchased reasonably.

"The amount of money to budget for vegetables for five or six people would be $5 to $7, divided as follows: $2 to $3 per month for green vegetables, $1.25 to $1.50 for tomatoes or citrus fruits, $2 to $3 for other vegetables."

FARMERS GET $37,000,000 FOR MILK IN YEAR

More than $37,000,000 was paid in 1930 to 20,000 dairy farmers who supplied Chicago and 16 nearby cities with milk.

This was the figure given out yesterday by Don N. Geyer, manager of the Pure Milk association, in an address before the agricultural committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce at the Great Northern hotel.

"A total of 1,292,259,505 pounds of milk was sold to dealers by farmers at $2.67 for each 100 pounds," Geyer said. "This brought $34,503,328, and was used for consumption as milk or cream. An additional 218,715,433 pounds of milk was sold for $3,193,246, to be used in making cheese, butter, cream or other dairy products. The weighed average price paid farmers in 1930 was $2.49 a hundred pounds of 46 quarts."

FARM BOARD AND GRAPE GROWERS PONDER SURPLUS

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—Methods of handling California's grape and raisin crops this year were discussed today by members of the grape control board with the farm board. No definite conclusion was reached. The conference will continue tomorrow.

While the meeting was held behind closed doors, it was learned a plan for disposing of the surplus, different from that used the last year, was being considered.

The greater portion of the last surplus was bought by the control board and permitted to waste on the vines. It was estimated nearly 350,000 tons of raisin grapes were thus removed from the market, while about 50,000 tons were directed into "grape concentrate" and other by-product channels.

BARBECUE DAY IN SOUTH STELLAR EVENT, BIG FEED

Oratorical Feast Goes with Other Food.

BY EDWARD F. YOUNGER.

Dey powerful p'tickler oveh a teeny bit of stew;

Barbecue day in the south is a stellar event; an occasion for a gathering of the clans; a flamboyant political speech; a renewing of friendships [and sometimes deadly feuds]; a general stock-taking of all the gossip of the neighborhood and, above all, a tremendous feed.

Planters, large and small, their numerous progeny, some of their Negro chattels and their kennels of dogs of high and low degree, assemble upon the eventful day, usually at the plantation of one of the leading citizens. A platform has been improvised for the speaker of the day, for the southerner must have his oratorical feast along with other food.

Here Is the Oven.

A pit, approximately 10 feet long, 4 feet wide, and 3 or 4 feet deep, has been dug and filled with pine knots and dry white oak and hickory, for these produce a hot, lasting fire. Red oak is not favored because of its dense, acrid smoke. Heavy forked saplings are planted at each end of the pit and in these crotches rests a poplar pole about 5 inches in diameter, peeled and rubbed smooth. This is the spit upon which the carcass of the beef is to be turned. It extends 4 feet at each end to enable the Negro helpers to turn it. Yellow pine is not used as a spit because of its heavy content of pitch and turpentine, which would taint the meat.

The ox has been slain and cleaned, the fires are started and fed until the smoke has practically disappeared and the pit is filled with live coals. Then the beef, attached to the spit, is swung into the crotches and slowly turned at frequent intervals by Negro assistants under the direction of the master cook, who is an artist in his line.

It doan 'keel 'roun' wid no persnickety dab of meat,
It roasties a hull steer an' two-three sheep an' hawgs,
An' dey's ba'hls of bread an' 'taters an' ev'thin' t' eat,

The wagons belch forth flocks of children, the women shake the wrinkles and dust from their stiffly starched skirts and readjust their fearful and wonderful hats and bonnets and the cavalcade debouches upon the center of activity.

Meat's Properly Done.

Darkies with long handled dippers are catching the dripping juices of the roasting beef, pork or mutton and pouring it over the carcasses as they are turned, just often enough to prevent scorching. The chief cook is testing the meat with a pitchfork and announces that is it properly done.

Cap'n tes' de cookin' wid a long pitchfo'hk tine
An' tell us black boys t' give h'it one mo' turn
An' ladle on de drippin' juice ontwell he gives a sign
T' rake away de cha'hcoal so de ba'hbecue doan' burn.

The embers are raked to the sides and ends of the pit and bushels of sweet 'taters are thrust into the smoldering ashes, where they will bake quickly. Now the roasted steer is lifted from the crotched standards and placed on a low, heavy platform. Generous slabs of bread have been sliced to serve as plates upon which to deposit the big helping of meat. The feast is ready, but there must be a pause for an important feature of the program.

Say's say he sartain gwine be a preacheh dar.

The Feast Is On.

On a small side table or a convenient log are salt, pepper and other condiments where each diner may flavor his meat to his own taste. Baked sweet 'taters are fished out of the ashes, coffee is dipped from a large kettle in cups, empty cans, gourds or what have you, and the diners dispose themselves on the sward and general mastication and deglutition sets in.

Gristly portions of the meat, too tough for hasty mastication, are thrown to the fringe of dogs, snapping, scratching and circling, hungrily around the perimeter of the assembly.

Now for the Speech.

Everybody has been filled to repletion, most of the children snoozing under shade trees, dogs asleep under the houses and barns. The men stow in a heavy charge of chawin' tobaccer and some of the older women light pipes and all come to attention for the crowning event of the day—the speech! If fortune has bestowed her sweetest smile, the speaker will be a congressman, home on vacation. Lacking this remarkable bit of luck, any officeholder from justice of the peace to township dog pelter or any potential officeholder will suffice. Escorted to the platform with elaborate ceremony, he doffs his hat with a wide sweep that takes in the universe, passes his hands through his hair, hitches up his baggy trousers, and begins the task of remaking this sorry world and all its works.

Orator Works Up Perspiration.

"La-d-e-e-e-z a-n-d gen-el-men—as I am granted the extremely felicitous privilege and pleasure of gazing into the lovely faces of the purest, noblest and most bee-yutiful women and the bravest, most honest, most intelligent and handsomest men . . . the noblest work of God . . . I give devout thanks that it has been my heaven-born privilege to be a part of this vastly superior community; to be identified with these splendid men and angelic women who have made this the fairest and noblest spot upon which the gellorious sun shines in all his course . . . through all the ages the gods have looked down upon this spot and have reared up this perfect people to inhabit it . . . noble sons of illustrious sires, rising mountains high above any ignoble act . . ." and so on and on and on, working up a fine perspiration, flailing the atmosphere with his arms and occasionally hammering home a telling point to be rewarded with the "Yip-yip-yip!" of enthusiastic listeners.

[Perhaps a dozen of his "noble" listeners had poisoned live stock or wells, shot at enemies from ambush, fired barns and homes—but why bring that up?]

More Work to Be Done.

All things must end and the speech finally does. The somnolent and heavily stuffed preacher is called upon to invoke the Divine blessing upon all those present and those who were too "po'ly and pindlin'" to be present. Children are aroused from their slumber, counted and stowed in the wagons, there is a general hand-shaking and the day is done.

Not quite, however; Cap'n Hill is calling over the orchard fence and back of the barns and sheds:

"Hustle out yere, boys an' clean up this yere mess! move lively now befo' I lay a buggy tug on your lazy backs. Tote all this yere meat and bread and taters to the smokehouse. Pick up all them bones and scraps, throw 'em into the ashes and kiver 'em. I aint gwine be pestered all night with a passel of dawgs yelpin' and fightin' over 'em. Step fast there, now, before I bust all of you wide open!"

But dem folkses jes' nachelly ain't nev' bin anywha'h,

Whipped Cream Banned in German Inns on Sunday

BERLIN, March 5.—Whipped cream must be prohibited on Sundays in all German inns and coffee houses, according to a decision reached by Germany's Supreme court. To be quite correct, the original decree prohibiting the manufacture of whipped cream on Sundays does not taboo the "schlagsahne" beloved by Germans. It only states that it is forbidden to work in a German bakery on Sunday and that consequently cream cannot be whipped on Sundays.

This resulted in a regular "whipped cream war" between bakers and coffee house proprietors on the one side and the authorities on the other.

Must Whip It on Weekdays.

One baker, a strong and persevering man, pushed his case way up to the "reichsgericht" or Supreme court. The baker held that in the interest of public health, whipped cream must be whipped on the same day on which it is eaten. The Supreme court sat in pomp and splendor over the whipped cream case and finally pronounced a verdict. Inasmuch as whipped cream is perishable goods, the court ruled, the bakers would be well advised to prepare less perishable delicacies on Saturday, for Sunday consumption. Whipped cream, they said, had to be whipped on a weekday or not at all.

Another German court pronounced a less rigid verdict. Whip your cream on Sunday, it said, but not in the bakery proper—say, in the kitchen. But see to it that not a real trained baker, but, perhaps, the scullery girl whips the cream. In that case, the court held, the letter of the law would not be violated and the German nation would have its beloved whipped cream on Sundays.

Few Heed Decree.

The bakers say that the method suggested by the court may be sound from a legal point of view, but rather complicates the production of large whipped cream supplies for Sunday consumption.

So, in defiance of the law, large quantities of cream are whipped each Sunday throughout the German reich. And the cops on duty are now faced with the hard problem to decide what to do about Germany's weekly "scofflaw whipped cream" and the citizens who enjoy it.

BREAD, BUTTER CONTINUE HOLD ON FOOD THRONE

Fresh Vegetables, Fruits Also Rank High.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Bread and butter continue to occupy the American food throne with three other types of food commodities also receiving homage as the most important edibles. Individual families may disagree, but vast groups of retail stores in Chicago and other large centers of food consumption have come to definite agreement that bread and butter, fresh fruits, and vegetables, coffee, and canned fruits, and vegetables are the substantial things that occupy the minds of most people three times a day.

The "bread and butter" term has become a favorite of the American people to denote a sustaining portion of something to eat. Although dietitians have kept alive the old saying that variety is the spice of life, nevertheless the food throne has seen only a few minor abdications over a period of years in the democracy known as the United States.

Good Butter Necessary.

To ask the retail storekeepers what foods are most important seems a logical method of deriving the relative importance of bread and butter and other foods. They answer that stores may not find their greatest or even any of their profits lying in the sale of butter, and eggs as well, and yet most customers consider butter makes or breaks a meal, while eggs would rate in the list of most important foods if one were to expand the items to six, instead of keeping the list at five.

Butter is so highly perishable that some stores date the packages as they receive them and follow a policy of placing the butter in the hands of the customer within four days.

Bread continues universally to be the "staff of life," according to the retailers, who explain that its cheapness makes it available to every class of buyers, that it always has been in great demand, and "probably always will be." Naturally it is almost synonymous with butter.

Coffee Sets Standard.

Fresh fruits and vegetables keep the storekeeper busy, for they are highly perishable and are sold as seasonable commodities that are bought and retailed in a fluctuating market. Coffee in the grocery store often sets up the reputation of one store from another, consumers indicate. Variations in the roasting processes and the fact that coffee is perishable to some extent often lead buyers in stores to regard the grocer's other foods as having high or low quality, according to the coffee he keeps, or rather sells.

Heavy sales of canned foods and vegetables do not concern the retail salesman quite as much. Although he admits he makes less profit on these items, he also comments that they have keeping qualities and standardization that permit [illegible] handling.

Judge by Displays.

The housewife, or the husband, who is dispatched with specific or vague orders about what to buy for the larder, can determine at a glance the best stores in which to shop by glancing at the displays of fresh fruits and vegetables. If they are fresh and of the right price, the store is a good one in which to trade, according to a consensus among retail store operators.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

If you have a household hint or unique discovery you are willing to pass on to other housewives, send it to Sally Lund, Chicago Tribune. Recipes are excluded.

1 tablespoon salt.
1 tablespoon soda.
1 tablespoon alum.

Mrs. H. N., Wapakoneta, O.

I place my hair brushes and combs in a bowl of hot water and pour two tablespoons of ammonia over them. This loosens all dirt between the teeth and bristles instantly. Rinse in warm water.—Mrs. N. E. W., Berlin, Wis.

My little girl received a small kitchen set for Christmas and, although she plays with it, I find that it is useful to me. The small spatula is so handy when icing a cake, and the pancake turner is just the right size when turning fritters, croquettes, etc. Mrs. W. S.

If I have a great many 'kerchiefs or napkins to iron I wring out half of them in warm water, the alternate with the dry and roll a few minutes and they are exactly right for ironing.—M. A., Taylorville, Ill.

N. U. Co-eds to Learn Paris Dress Secrets at Lecture Tomorrow

That secret something that "only Paris gowns have" will be explained to the Northwestern university co-eds at Harris hall tomorrow afternoon. The hour is 2:30 and no one will be penalized for absence, for the lecture, with some co-eds as illustrations, is not part of a required course. The talk is to be given by Maggy Rouff, a Parisian fashion designer. She will appear as the guest of Florence Robenett, dean of women.

MAGGY ROUFF.

While the visit is solely in the interest of esthetics, the visitor will have two professional models with her, to set an art example for the co-eds.

In private life Maggy Rouff is Mme. Besancon de Wagner, and her American trip, strictly noncommercial, is said to be sponsored by the French government. Recent reports from Paris indicated a serious decline in the exportation of French gowns.

Lent Day by Day

HUMAN RELATIVITY.

Rev. John Rushton Heyworth.
Minister-elect, Unity church.

Jesus dealt with life. That was His main concern. He was not a theologian, nor was he touched by speculative aspects of religion.

Life—just as we know it today, busy, throbbing, palpitating—absorbed His time, and often left Him spent. He opened His great heart; poured out His compassion, uttered His convictions, and completely lived His theory of human relativity.

His great human effort was to teach men how to live. His unerring finger could be counted on to point to the real and often hidden causes of men's restlessness, lack of confidence and impediments in the footpath of peace.

Poised assurance marked every move of Him who said, "I am come that they might have life and have it more abundantly," and whose great program was "to bind up the broken hearted, proclaim liberty to the captive, and the opening of the prison to them that are bound."

His way was, after all, a way of living together which included God in a great fellowship. Loving God with one's total personality and loving neighbors as one's self was his final summary of his religion.

It is small wonder that they crucified Him who was committed to a principle that made prejudice feel its second rate appeal, and that did not recognize race, creed nor social distinction. Of course, they crucified Him. What chance would He have, perhaps even today, should He in the flesh proclaim such an ideal against the selfishness of the self-seeking ecclesiastical politician?

But He lived, and lives on! Human selfishness dies with its possessors.

PRAYER:

O God, we thank Thee that the Galilean taught us man's abiding worth. Help us to live large and worthy lives for His sake.

This Husband Is Still Back in the Dark Ages

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"What do you think of a white, American born, college bred man whose salary is $500 a month, who begrudges every penny he spends on his wife and three children? There are three things I want badly so I can hold up my head with women whose husbands' salaries are less than mine. They are nice clothes, a nicely furnished home, and a little help with my work.

"I own one silk dress and a few cotton house dresses. My living room has a threadbare rug with broken threads everywhere, and it covers only half the floor. My dining room has a worn linoleum rug, and how I do hate a linoleum rug outside a kitchen! I am anxious to have curtains and colorful draperies at my downstairs windows, at least. I am so tired of being ashamed of my shabby home.

"He joined one of the country clubs so he could play golf, but I haven't the time, clothes or money to play. We have no social position because of the three things he denies me. We're not invited to the club affairs to which others of less income are invited.

"His mother is one of those perfect New England housekeepers. Housekeeping is her greatest pleasure. She considers it a waste of time to read anything but the newspaper and cookbooks. She doesn't realize what bad grammar she uses.

"My husband thinks I do not love him because I do not try to be exactly like his mother. I do probably love him more than his mother loves his father. Housekeeping is her great love. But I married my husband, not my house. I want—well, I've said what I wanted. Is it asking too much? UTTERLY DISCOURAGED."

Isn't that a picture of a husband no other woman would want? The letter is printed in its entirety to give the discontented luxury endowed an idea of how the other half of the world of wives is sometimes forced to live. But why, "Discouraged," stick around on such a poorly paid job? I don't mean why don't you leave your husband, I mean why don't you join the wage earners' brigade, entrusting your children to help meanwhile? Earn the necessary things for yourself, for your home and for your children that help preserve a woman's self-respect.

Beside, if housework is distasteful, your talent undoubtedly lies in another direction. Anyway, women do not have to submit to tyrannical and mean home employers any more.

Child Materially Alters the Scheme of Home Decoration

"Short Reading References on Child Management" will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"Lovely," she sighed as she paused at the apple green satin in the book of samples. "When the children are in college I'll have that for a chair covering. And I'll have this for the divan. . . ." Then she laughed at herself. "But I'd rather have the children than the apple green satin."

You know, don't you, how hard it is, if you have a flair for lovely and smart interiors to have to renounce the delicate in color or texture or construction in favor of the durable? Yet you have to do this and many other things when you have children.

People compromise in varying degrees on the matter of houses and gardens. Of course, much depends on how much space [and money] you have. The more of both you have the less you have to compromise, since the children can have their own indoor and outdoor space set aside. When you're limited in both you must choose at least during the early years.

One woman I know won't buy the beautifully finished antique drop leaf table she wants for dining until her children are older. She's afraid she might nag them about it.

I know a man who loves gardens, but he won't attempt to devote his small outdoor space to flowers while his children are young.

When we're in town we have a compromise between a garden and a yard which we call our garden.

One family I know of who live in a small apartment have turned their only room for sociability into a combination living and work room. They have a big table on which almost anything can be done from painting, drawing, and homework to carpentry. Their shelves and cabinets are arranged with the idea that since they have this one room only for the family, it belongs as much to the two children as to the father and mother.

A well known novelist who lives in a suite in one of New York's most luxurious hotels allows his sons to keep their electric trains set up all the time on a large rug before the fireplace.

Each family has to make the compromises that the particular problems of money and space make necessary.

Georgette Carries Off the Paris Style Palm

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—In spite of the rumors of a revival of print chiffons and spotty surfaced woolens, plain fabrics are holding their own and it must be admitted that they have a special chic that is lacking to their often lovelier flowered sisters.

Among the plain fabrics that are being selected by fashion leaders for their afternoon and evening frocks, georgette, in double, triple and even quadruple quality, carries off the style palm.

Semi-transparent effects are chic and that is another reason for the popularity of georgettes—neither as diaphanous as chiffon nor as opaque as crêpe de chine.

Mme. Chiesa, one of Jean Patou's smartest clients, chose apricot georgette for the graceful evening frocks sketched above. By the way, you remember that apricot and golden beige tones are going to be much worn next summer.

Spring Clothes Call for Special Type of Figure

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

One of the tests suggested to prove whether one is properly equipped to carry off the new clothes as the designers intended, and as beauty requires, is to stand back up against the wall, heels ditto, back of fingertips stretched overhead and also flattened against the wall. If you do not make a perfect contact with the wall from heels to fingertips, you're voted out—into a reducing room, no doubt. Anyway, you haven't quite the figure wanted, so the test promoters say.

Now word comes that the waistline is being dropped an inch or so, but the hips have to be fitted into a hipless line. So it looks as if the hips have to go into training, unless you already qualify as a streamline silhouette-r.

Have you ever tried the bicycle pedaling exercise on your hips? Turn on the music and go to it, if you haven't. It'll take the hips down surprisingly. That is, if you will put the right amount of pep into the bicycling. You know the movement, even if bicycles went out while you were in the nursery.

Just lie flat on the floor on your back and make your legs go forward and in as nearly a forward circular movement as you can manage, pedaling away for dear life. One leg at a time is good management, in the beginning. Once in a while during the performance give the working leg a strong shift forward, stretching from hip sockets to toes. That stretching is fine for the hips and thighs and the calves of the legs.

Don't rely on dieting alone for the hipless figure, because it is more than a slim hip that is wanted. It is a supple moving one. And you get that ease of muscle only through limbering up the joints that have become stiff from inaction.

Then, when you get the hips slimmed down and are more agile in movement, watch how our most graceful walkers manage that easy hip stride. It isn't a stride, really—just a smooth sailing movement without any noticeable hip movement at all.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

An Elevated Exposure.

I needed a pair of black net stockings to complete a black ensemble, but they were expensive, so I was delighted when I had a chance to buy a pair at a sale, even though they were much too small for me.

I split the toes at the seam and thought of sewing a toe from another stocking on them. However, I wanted to wear them immediately, so I just wore them that way—with my toes sticking out of the cut end. They were comfortable enough and I was congratulating myself, when as I started to get on an L train at a downtown station the heel of my pump caught on the edge of the car platform. I couldn't step back because of the crowd, and the shoe dropped down to the track below. I got back on the station platform and had to stand there until one of the employés fished the shoe up from below, my foot looking for all the world like one of grandmother's misplaced mittens.

It didn't help any that several of the office employés were in the crowd and got the full effect of my thrifty purchasing. M. O.

Don't let INFLUENZA get the upper hand

gargle with Listerine —reduces germs 98%

NEVER make the mistake of underestimating the menace of a cold, sore throat or influenza. They may develop into serious or fatal complications. You can probably recall such a case among your friends. Statistics show that every year respiratory diseases cause more than a million deaths.

At the first sign of trouble, gargle every two hours with full strength Listerine, the safe, healing antiseptic, and call your physician. If the irritation is mild, Listerine will frequently check it. If it is not, the doctor will diagnose the real trouble and treat it properly.

Reduces mouth germs 98%

Against ordinary colds and sore throat, full strength Listerine is amazingly effective. That is because it is fatal to all germs which cause such infection. Kills them by millions in 15 seconds, the fastest killing time accurately recorded by science.

Repeated tests show that full strength Listerine actually reduces the number of germs on mouth surfaces 98%. And at the same time it stimulates mouth tissue.

Gargle every 2 hours

In time of sickness the gargle every two hours is needed to keep dangerous and swiftly multiplying germs under control.

In time of normal health, however, the night and morning gargle will be sufficient to maintain a hygienic condition in the mouth.

Non-poisonous, Safe

The most convincing proof of Listerine's germicidal strength is its ability to kill Staphylococcus Aureus (pus) and Bacillus Typhosus (typhoid) germs in counts ranging to 200,000,000 in 15 seconds. Staphylococcus Aureus is highly resistant to germicidal action and is therefore specified as the germ by which all germicides are tested.

Keep Listerine handy in home and office and use it full strength for all infections. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

THE SIXTH JOURNEY

BY ALICE GRANT ROSMAN

SYNOPSIS.

John Falconer, a successful architect, returning home to England from Cape Town, meets Hilary Revel, author of travel books, on shipboard. During the journey home their acquaintance grows into a friendship neither wishes to end.

John tells Hilary of his daughter, Judith, born of a café singer while he was a soldier. His wife, John said, had magnanimously adopted the child. His sister, Gertrude, took charge of Judith when his wife died. Hilary suspects such magnanimity.

Hilary had taken her war invalided brother, Hugh, away from home ten years ago to give her younger sister, Christine, and brother, Steven, a better chance. Now that Hugh was dead Hilary was returning home. Hilary is not met when the boat docks and John takes her to her door. Hilary's stepfather, the only sympathetic member of her family, tells her that Hugh left her his possessions in trust, to be settled on her at her marriage or to buy an annuity at the age of 40, if still single.

INSTALLMENT XI.

A WELCOMED INVITATION.

"I did not interrupt that little exhibition at dinner because it seemed better for you to see where you stand, Hilary," said Dr. Ferguson. "They are not entirely callous, but most of us believe what we see and no more. That is the way of the world and perhaps an instinctive sense of self-protection. Don't let their lack of understanding hurt you too much, Hilary, and take an old man's advice and learn to be selfish. Give up self-sacrifice as a fine art."

He smiled, but Hilary, looking at him thoughtfully for a moment, objected:

"I don't believe in the word. There is no such thing. What you call self-sacrifice is sheer inadvertence in a desperate moment. When it isn't scheming for your own ends," she added with sudden heat because she had remembered Falconer's wife.

"Well, you should know," agreed Dr. Ferguson with a twinkle. "However, if you want me to believe you undertook the care of Hugh with a view to extracting this legacy I must say your economics are at fault. It would have paid you far better to stay at home, save your own little income and use your pen."

"Now you are suspecting me of making piles."

"No, my dear, but I know how this vast fortune you are supposed to have amassed has been spent. Steamer fares, hotels, doctors, nurses, eh? O, a merry round!"

Hilary, getting up, went to him and said brokenly:

"Hugh's been writing to you, father."

"Well, why not? We were always pretty good friends and there were certain instructions he had to give me about keeping a firm hand on his legatee." He drew her into his arms. "There, there, my dear, poor chap. . . . He was not really blind."

"Really? The governor is traditional, isn't he?"

"My darling Hugh," she said.

The telephone rang somewhere and Christine, with a perfunctory knock, put her head in the door to say:

"It's for you, Hilary—and a man's voice, too. I suppose you know hundreds, lucky dog!"

Hilary, drying her eyes on the old man's handkerchief, laughed shakily and echoed:

"Hundreds?" Then in confidential apology, "I only know one." She went out to answer John's call.

"Is that Miss Revel? Falconer speaking. Well, how are you feeling now?"

"Better, thank you," she returned.

"I suppose I've interrupted the family rejoicings outrageously by ringing you up so soon?"

"O, no, not noticeably."

"Well, I hope they're glad to see you?" said a dissatisfied voice to this.

"I hope so, too—yes, I think they are."

"But you mean to tell me they haven't said so?" he exclaimed indignantly.

"Of course not; families don't."

"Good God! Well, anyway, that does ease my conscience, for I need have no compunction for them. Will you come in and lunch with me tomorrow?"

"What, already?" inquired Hilary in surprise. "Can you manage it?"

"I can't face lunching without you, so if you want to save me from starvation. . . ."

"I'd love to," she said.

When the meeting was arranged she went back to the study and found Dr. Ferguson buried in an easy chair with a book.

"There! I've promised to go out to lunch tomorrow, my first day at home, without consulting anybody's wishes and convenience," announced Hilary. "Is that selfish enough to please you?"

"Excellent as a beginning. I hope he will give you a good lunch," said the old man tactfully, and was rewarded.

Sitting on the arm of his chair she told him something of John Falconer with necessary reservations.

The room which she was to share with Christine until her mother could turn round had once been Hilary's own, but nothing of hers survived in it. The bed, hastily assembled for her, had almost an air of apologetic surprise at finding itself in such gay surroundings. Christine's bed became a couch by day, and its satin covering of scarlet and green had not a look of inviting to slumber. The pictures on the wall in green and scarlet frames had an artful formlessness about them; the mirror on the low dressing table was doing its best to look like jade.

"Rather chic, don't you think?" remarked Christine.

"I suppose it is. What became of my etchings, I wonder?"

"No idea—unless Nell sold them in one of her commercial spasms. It must have been rum to grow up in your era, Hilary. Don't you often laugh when you look back on it?"

"Laugh isn't the word," said Hilary dryly.

"You know, if you must have things that date like this," Christine remarked, lifting Hilary's mirror and hair brush and looking them over, "I wonder you don't have gold or tortoise shell instead of plain silver."

"That was the family's birthday present when I was 25. Probably you don't remember, but father sent me out the money to buy anything I might want."

"Really? The governor is so traditional, isn't he?" said Christine amused.

"Have birthday presents become traditional then?"

"O, not when the victim is about to remind one. I haven't the foggiest notion when your birthday is, as a matter of fact. I shouldn't remember Steven's if he didn't take jolly fine care to give me a prod."

"Dear me, I'm afraid the presents in my trunks will date me still farther," said Hilary.

"Have you brought presents?" Christine dropped her air of languor and became young, tucking her legs under her on the couch and beaming joyfully. "What's mine, old thing?"

"I'm not sure. I must sort them out."

"Decent of you, anyway. You know, I'm counting on you a lot, Hilary. I want to go and study art in Paris, but the governor's simply rabid on the subject and I want you to back me up. If you do and we pull it off I'll give you this room."

Hilary, ignoring the handsome offer, said:

"I thought perhaps you'd have gone up to Oxford."

"O, lor', no; nothing in that! But I am dashed keen about Paris, and the governor will have to give in. He is probably thinking of the expense. Nell will tell you how skinflinty he is. I want to live my own life. You did, Hilary, and good luck to you. Everybody has a right to live his own life, and you'd think the governor would have discovered that by this time."

"Everybody can't," said Hilary slowly. "I'm not sure that any of us can. I suppose Hugh would have liked to live his, but he certainly never had a chance."

"O, no, but then there was the war. Jolly hard luck on Hugh, of course, but if you permit wars you've got to take the consequences. Not that I mean any disrespect to Hugh," she added kindly.

GOOD MORNING!

Some of the finest acting you ever saw in your lives is taking place on the Punch and Judy's screen, where the German version of "The Trial of Mary Dugan" is being enacted!

Whether you saw the American made cinema adaptation of Bayard Veiller's play, you should not fail to witness this foreign interpretation. It is one of the most perfectly acted and directed photoplays that I have ever seen.

Practically all of the action and conversation takes place in a courtroom—and the picture is a long one. But do you think you get tired? Not for one minute! The film is charged with suspense. It is electric with human interest. The pantomime is so faultless, so vividly revealing, that the film could get by quite well as a "silent." You lose all sense of being in a theater and become one of the spectators in the crowded courtroom where a girl named Mary Dugan is on trial for her life.

This intensely absorbing altalker should prove a boon to drama study clubs and classes. Every player is an artist—perfectly cast. Regarded as a mass production, the film has sweep and power. Analyzed as to detail—try and find a flaw! For example, note the "business" in the courtroom between sessions and during recess. The photography, I grant, could be better, but there's not much the matter with even that.

See you tomorrow.

ARTIST PAINTS HOOVER DRIVING FISH CART IN THIS WEIRD SHOW

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Herbert Hoover driving a fishcart, the interior of a speakeasy, two green snakes watching a monkey hang by his tail from a tree in a forest of magenta and blue, Mona Lisa alongside of Max Schmeling, both facing a large ink splotch in a frame; acres and acres of eccentric nudes—and all in the name of art.

The annual show of the Society of Independent Artists opens at Grand Central palace tomorrow. There was a preview this afternoon, and a disturbing hour passed among the 1,200 exhibits of the 700 young masters of pigment and sculptury revealed that:

The boys and girls of the "isms" school are slipping, for it is possible to recognize the meaning of several of the subjects.

The secret of their more advanced technique is simple—they merely squeeze several daubs of paint on a canvas, fold it, step on it and hang the smear. The hangings will continue until the formal opening.

The exhibits themselves? Well, to begin with Don Dickerman, the Greenwich Villa night club man, offers a piece of sculpture which looks something like a crankshaft picked up after an explosion in a sausage grinder factory. It is labeled with commendable simplicity, "What of It?"

And there among the paintings is "Washington Market," a tender little thing depicting President Hoover up to his knees in a wagonload of fish. It is priced, for no good reason, at $150,000.

John L. Booth Also Will Marry in Copenhagen

COPENHAGEN, March 5.—(AP)—John Lord Booth, son of the American minister to Denmark, will be married on April 25 to Miss Winifred Wessel, daughter of the Chilean minister, it was announced today. His sister was married here yesterday to William Dickerman Vogel of New York and Milwaukee. Mr. and Mrs. Vogel will interrupt their wedding tour in Italy to return here for her brother's wedding.

Headache Oft Sign of Brains, or "Hangover"

'It's Phi Beta Kappa Key Among Pains.'

There have been three months of research into the cause and cure of severe headaches, or migraine, as the scientists call it, at the research hospital of the University of Illinois, 1819 West Polk street. As a result specialists have come to the conclusion that disease is peculiar to the intelligensia, and is induced by fast living and irregular habits.

While the experiments are yet too young to draw final conclusions, it was learned yesterday that the specialists conducting the tests have found that proper hygiene, exercise and diet play an important rôle in the prevention of the disease.

Theodore Roberts, young Lake Geneva electrician, who was selected from among 750 applicants as the candidate with the "worst headache," still is in the university laboratory having headaches from time to time for the benefit of science.

While the headache specialists were reluctant yesterday to talk about the tests until they are concluded, a member of the university staff discussed the nature of the disease and some of the preliminary discoveries that have been made.

"Migraine is a type of severe headache which usually attacks one-half of the head or may occur over the eyes and is often associated with disorders of the vision," he said. "It is a disease of the intelligensia and for that reasons persons afflicted should have a measure of ancestral pride for, like most characteristics, it is hereditary.

"Our investigators are of the opinion that most cases of migraine may be benefited by a simple regulation of the method of living. In this age of jazz, high life, late hours and lack of sleep, migraine is much more common than is generally reported. The headache of the morning after often may be migraine.

"Julius Caesar and Napoleon were victims of migraine. Much of the open as well as the secret lives of these people was far from mid-Victorian. Migraine also is common in the ordinary garden variety of college professor. These men know that it is a badge of distinction quite as honorable as their Phi Beta Kappa key. It indicates to them a fine type of nervous system too refined for the stress and strain of modern living.

"In cases under investigation at the research hospital the attacks are becoming apparently less frequent because of the regulated routine life."

BELGIAN ROYALTY RESENTS RUMORS OF JOSE-HUMBERT ROW

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.

[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

BRUSSELS, March 5. — Princess Marie José and her young husband, Crown Prince Humbert of Italy, may decide to sue the gossip mongers who are spreading rumors to the effect they are unhappy, perhaps about to seek divorce, or at any rate constantly quarreling. For more than six months such rumors have been spread through Belgium and France.

"The honor of a family, whether royal, middle or working class, is entitled to protection," says an official communique to newspaper men today. This communication is considered to have been directly inspired by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth. It continues: "Up to now the Italian crown prince, the crown princess and the Belgian royal family have opposed with disdainful silence all such rumors. But the moment has come when one wonders whether such systematic meanness does not deserve punishment."

That Prince Humbert and Princess Marie recently visited the French Riviera and quarreled so loudly that they were heard all over the neighborhood, is a story recently appearing in the French weekly Aux Ecoutes.

Other French newspapers have declared the young prince is flighty, easily enamored of other women, and that his wife has resented that.

King Albert and Queen Elizabeth's frequent trips to Switzerland this winter, it has been rumored here, were to meet their daughter and attempt to patch up marital difficulties.

Before issuing today's official warning authorized investigators sought to find among highly placed personages in Brussels any grounds for such rumors.

THE TRIBUNE is reliably informed that if any tiffs took place, they were not more serious than in the case of any young married couple, especially royal ones. In all events, no divorce is contemplated. Any such action would be a plea for papal annulment of the marriage.

U. of C. Alumni Dance Tonight; Hutchins to Talk

Trustees, faculty and alumni of the University of Chicago, to the number of more than 1,000, are to gather at the Stevens hotel tonight for the second annual alumni assembly. President Robert Maynard Hutchins is to outline and explain the reorganization program of the institution. Other speakers will include Dean George Alan Works, the university examiner, and Mollie Ray Carrol, head of the university settlement. Prof. James Weber Linn will be toastmaster.

THE STAGE

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

THE THEATER GUILD calls attention to the fact that its use of sound films to supplement the dramatic scenes of its production, "Miracle at Verdun," is a bit of pioneering in stage technique. A few other examples might be cited, but they were too casual to illustrate the value of the screen as an auxiliary of the drama. The Piscator theater in Berlin is the only place where this sort of thing has been done with effective results.

Six times during the performance of "Miracle at Verdun" sound films will be used to portray scenes that could not be adequately visualized on the stage. Three screens will be used—one in the center of the stage, the others on its flanks. This unique arrangement of screens will permit the projection of three sound films simultaneously, to achieve what the Guild calls a "contrapuntal"—or orchestrated—dramatic effect.

The Martin Beck theater, New York, where "Miracle at Verdun" will be staged, is now being wired for sound films. Which means that this play will run up a staggering bill of production costs.

The progressive management of the Blackstone theater is wearing a new and well earned feather in its cap. After "Torch Song" it will offer Frank Craven's play, "That's Gratitude," and the date of the première is Sunday, April 5.

This comedy has an excellent New York record, and is now in the last phase of a long and profitable run on Broadway. Allan Dinehart, who succeeded Mr. Craven in the leading rôle last Christmas, will come here with the other members of the original company. They are: George Barbier, Maida Reade, Myrtle Clark, Ross Alexander, James C. Lane, Gerald Kent, Thelma Marsh, Helen Mehrmann; and George W. Wright Jr.

Incidentally, John Golden, producer of "That's Gratitude," has agreed to stage "Salt Water" at the Blackstone for a late spring or summer engagement.

Out of a clear sky comes an announcement that a revival of "The Student Prince," an operetta which was extremely popular a few years back, will come to the Grand Opera house Sunday evening, March 15. This means that "Flying High," George White's handsome musical comedy, will depart at the end of its third week—a brief engagement for a production with a full season of Broadway popularity in its record. The company will then disband.

"The Student Prince," as nearly every playgoer knows, is based upon the German play, "Old Heidelberg," associated with memories of Richard Mansfield's career. The cast for the revival, which has fared well in New York, contains several veterans of the first production. Among the names on the program are George Hassell, William Pringle, Gertrude Lang, Edward Neill Jr. [in the title rôle], Marion Weeks, Hollis Davenny, and Marie Stoddard.

To prove that he ranks high in the lodge of master magicians, the Great Nicola, now in the final week of his exhibitions at the Studebaker theater, has added a new and surprising trick to his program. The standard process of making a pretty girl disappear in thin air is too easy for Nicola, so now he is proving that he can also cause the disappearance of an elephant.

The vanishing pachyderm happens to be an infant member of his species. An adult elephant—even the late and lamented Jumbo—would be just as easy for Nicola's wizardry, but he would eat too much. This baby elephant, however, is a sizable article, and Nicola has to apply plenty of the occult powers of the east to him before he consents to vanish. He weighs 600 pounds.

Ultra-Liberal Gains Seat in House of Lords

Bertrand Now Is Third Earl of Russell.

LONDON, March 5.—(AP)—Frequently in his many sided career Bertrand Russell, raising the banner of an ultra-Liberal cause, has striven in vain for a seat in parliament.

Today the widely renowned philosopher, mathematician, pacifist and proponent of companionate marriage found himself a member of the house of lords as the third earl of Russell, successor to the title of his brother, John Francis Russell, who died at Marseilles last night.

When only a dozen men understood the Einstein theory of relativity Bertrand Russell ranked well toward the top of the twelve. He wrote a book in 1925 explaining the theory.

When ex-Judge Ben Lindsey of Denver, Colo., advocated a period of trial marriage for young people he found Russell one of his earliest and most vociferous champions.

When Britain was at war with Germany, Russell pamphleteered against British treatment of conscientious objectors and paid a fine for it, and when the American army poured into France in the winter of 1917-'18, Russell was sentenced to six months in prison for averring that whatever merits the Yanks might have as fighting men they probably would be "capable of intimidating strikers, a task to which they were accustomed at home."

As author of a dozen books on subjects ranging from government and German social democracy to modern morals and the problem of China, as a lecturer on mathematics and philosophy in his own Trinity college and in American universities, and as a platform speaker he has won a worldwide hearing.

He conducts at Petersfield, England, an experimental socialistic school with his second wife, Dora Winifred Black, who three years ago was forbidden a hall in Madison, Wis., wherein to advocate companionate marriage to students of the state university.

Russell's first wife was a Philadelphia girl—Alys, daughter of R. Pearsall Smith, Quaker preacher and merchant, and herself a suffrage lecturer. They were divorced in 1921.

The new earl and his late brother came of a father who was a self-proclaimed agnostic, and a grandfather, Lord John Russell, who as secretary for foreign affairs under Queen Victoria, almost involved Britain in a conflict of its own against the United States at the peak of the civil war.

HOW TO KEEP FROM GROWING OLD

Old America to Be Revived for Chicagoans

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 5.—Chicago's 1933 World's Fair will have the most impressive demonstration ever seen of pre-Columbian America. Besides the Mayan structures to be reproduced, Dr. Charles Upson Clark, formerly of Yale and the American academy in Rome, has searched the archives of the Vatican and at Seville for documents concerning culture of the early inhabitants of the American continents. He came to Europe in 1929 as special investigator on the Dawes fund given the Smithsonian institution.

"My investigations have been based on the hopes of turning up reports of the early Spanish friars and conquistadores," Dr. Clark said. "We know all too little of the Incas of Peru, the Aztecs, or the Mayas of Mexico. The Mayas' astronomical calculations and sacred books so astonished the early Spaniards that they thought the devil had written them."

Dr. Clark found in the archives of the Indies in Seville the longest early document known in any Maya dialect, a village account book of the Indian community of San Juan Amatitlan in Guatemala for 1565, with several hundred detailed entries in the Achi dialect.

There was a community fund then and every time money was spent for any purpose, such as bananas or chickens for visiting friars, a banquet for a visiting chieftain, the amount and the use of the money had to be written out.

Dr. Clark found there also the first tax assessment book for Yucatan, made out, apparently, by Bernal Diaz del Castillo, friend and biographer of Cortez, 1549. Diaz is an authority whom Prescott frequently quoted in his history of Mexico.

It gives a complete census of the Maya Indians and the amount in corn, blankets, and honey which each village had to pay to its Spanish feudal lord. In the Biblioteca Nacional of Madrid he came upon a long and interesting letter of the Adelantado Andagoya, associate of the Pizarros, describing his explorations in Darien and the valley of the Cauca river.

The Vatican archives yielded a fascinating account of the system of confession and penance practiced under the Incas of Peru; confessions were made to the priest in public, and checked up by the bystanders, and the penalty for lying was severe . . . the priest hit the guilty penitent between the shoulders with a stone.

The same penalty was prescribed in a full account of their administrative system which Dr. Clark found in the British museum. There he brought to light also a lost history of Yucatan by Francisco de Gardenas.

But his prize finds, Dr. Clark told THE TRIBUNE, were in the Vatican library here. The most beautiful was a medical botany of the Aztecs of 1552; it has 185 charming aquarelles of plants in bloom, each with its Aztec name, and its use in medicine, the latter in Latin, written by an Aztec Indian who had been trained by the Franciscan monks.

The Smithsonian institution hopes to find some donor who will enable it to publish this in colored facsimile, for it is the earliest illustrated work in American botany or American medicine.

Still more dramatic was the discovery of the lost "Description of the Indies," by the Carmelite friar Vasquez de Espinosa, who spent ten or twelve years between Mexico and Chile gathering materials for his magnum opus.

Working over the Barberini manuscripts of the Vatican, Dr. Clark came across an anonymous work of this title, which, the inventory said, would be easy to identify, for part of it was printed. On viewing the manuscript he at once concluded that it was the printer's copy of an unpublished work, with 80 page proofs, and over 500 pages of well written manuscript. It took weeks of effort to identify it, but it proved to be the book which Vasquez was printing in Spain when he died in 1630. "His death," says the great authority of that day, Leon Pinelo, "depriving us of a work which would have been most valuable on America up to date."

The Smithsonian is trying to raise funds to publish that also, Dr. Clark said, since it is full of the most interesting and valuable material on the American aborigines and their customs. Vasquez was, for instance, in a village on Lake Managua in Nicaragua when an Indian woman was devoured by an alligator; her husband and his friends baited stout sticks at the end of ropes with pieces of beef, caught the alligators, cut them open and got the woman's dismembered body together and he said mass over her at burial.

The marriage of Miss Rose Mary Bradley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Francis Bradley of 4827 West Quincy street, to Alexander MacKimm took place last Saturday.

CHAMLEE IS CALLED BEST OF AMERICAN TENORS NOW LIVING

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Mario Chamlee has the best tenor voice of any living American, and he is rapidly becoming a great singer as well. Consequently his appearance as guest soloist with the Swift & Co. male chorus at Orchestra hall last night was an event of considerable importance.

It might have been even more glamorous if his songs had been selected with a little more idea of contrast in tempo and mood. In individual items he was immense; there has been no better singing here this season than he did in Rachmaninoff's "At Night," a bit of fine art to be matched only by the way he did the Dream excerpt from Massenet's "Manon." But too many songs of the same mood should not be grouped together, whatever the vein.

The chorus under D. A. Clippinger's baton was in the best form of its entire history. It has come along so well in exactness, in shading, in handling the English language that it should now be ready to turn loose with some free and easy matters of lightheartedness. Even a little lightmindedness would not be entirely amiss.

The Young American Artists series began its fifteenth season of recitals in Curtiss hall last night with a joint recital by Rudolf Haas, tenor, and Mary Eldredge, pianist. Mr. Haas' part of the program was drawn entirely from American composers, Chicago being represented by Daniel Protheroe, William Lester, Hamilton Forrest, Eleanor Everest Freer, and Richard Czerwonky. He sings well, with a voice of good range and a special aptitude in projecting English words to the audience. Miss Eldredge kept closer to the standard composers, beginning the Bach-Bauer Partita in B flat, which she played with considerable facility.

Returning Chicagoans.

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Homecomers on board the North German Lloyd steamer Berlin, back from a West Indian cruise today, included Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Horton, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Otten, Rudolf Nadel, Joseph C. Prout, Damon G. McManus, Mrs. R. S. Lovering, Miss Lydia Lovering, Jonas Tumen, W. L. Trimbel, Frederick Zerbst, Mrs. William H. Yawkey, Harven Van Brunt, Mrs. Van Loan Whitehead, E. M. Wilcox, and Francis Marling, all of Chicago.

Illinois Mother Solves Problem

"MY little daughter, Elizabeth, caused me many anxious moments," says Mrs. M. Wagner, 830 N. Homan Ave., Chicago. "She was listless, didn't want to play and had very little appetite.

"She suffered a great deal from colds until I heard about California Fig Syrup and decided to give her some. Fig Syrup helped Elizabeth remarkably. She is now strong; able to avoid colds, has a good appetite and digestion; is quite the picture of health as you can see."

For over 50 years, California Fig Syrup has been helping bilious, headachy, weak, constipated babies and children. Doctors by thousands recommend this pure vegetable product. Children love its flavor. It acts gently to open the bowels in colds or children's diseases. It cleanses a child's system harmlessly and in a hurry. Bowels become regular with its use and remain so, because they are toned and strengthened by this wonderful combination of pure fig syrup and elixir of senna.

Roman Newspaper Declares Italy Fails to Keep Stage Moral

VATICAN CITY, March 5.—(AP)—The newspaper Osservatore Romano today resumed criticism of the Italian government for alleged failure to fulfill the Lateran treaty in regard to suppression of immorality of the stage and the press and observance of Sunday in Rome.

The newspaper took issue with Premier Mussolini's aid, Leandro Arpinati, undersecretary of the interior, who, in a speech in the chamber of deputies Tuesday, indirectly questioned the accuracy of the pope's statement to Roman priests that the government was not maintaining the atmosphere of a religious center in Rome, as provided by the treaty.

Osservatore accused Arpinati indirectly of casting aspersions on the pope by using such phrases as "masters of morals," and "professional moralists." It ridiculed his assertions that Fascists had "restored" the family and said his statement that there was no immorality in the theater and press of Rome was untrue.

FARM AND GARDEN

BY PAUL POTTER

Two hundred thousand persons interested in flowers, gardens and landscaping of home or apartment are expected to attend two annual flower and garden shows in Chicago in the next three weeks.

The Chicago Home and Garden show at the Sherman Hotel opening next Monday, is to include finished displays of plant life for which materials are being assembled from the Rocky mountains to the tropics, according to K. W. Bangs, designer in charge.

Word was received yesterday by the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs in Chicago that clubwomen of Southern Illinois were gathering native flowers now in bloom there during the mild winter for a special display of daffodils, jonquils, and other blossoms in their outdoor gardens.

Craftmen were setting up masonry, flowing streams and gigantic vine covered arches for the show, which will have special gardens built by the Lincoln Park, West Park, South Park and Forest Park commissioners.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Little Johanna was quite inquisitive. She heard her mother talk about poultry and asked what that meant.

Mother replied, "Anything with wings, such as chickens and geese."

Johanna quickly asked, "Angels, too, mother?" E. H.

As I was walking along the street with my 5 year old nephew he noticed a dog chasing a car. He then remarked, "What will the dog do with the car after he gets it?" J. J. G.

Too tired for work too dull for play

When you find little pleasure in play, when work, however light, seems hard, when little things look big—something is wrong! It does not necessarily mean that you are ill. You may be just under par—an 80 per center!

What you need is greater vitality. This is supplied by a new resistance-builder—Squibb Adex Tablets!

Squibb Adex Tablets contain the "building up" elements—Vitamins A and D—which have long made cod-liver oil valuable for under par conditions.

Physicians are recommending their daily use as a way to resist colds, to protect against annoying nose and throat troubles that cause so much discomfort.

They know Squibb Adex Tablets can do this because of their exceptional richness in Vitamins A and D. Each Adex tablet contains as much Vitamin A and Vitamin D as one-half teaspoonful of Squibb Cod-Liver Oil. Thus they help to restore the well-being of people under par, the 80 per centers!

Don't be an 80 per center! Ask your physician about taking Squibb Adex Tablets every day to build up. You'll find them palatable and pleasant! Remember the name—Squibb Adex Tablets. All reliable druggists have them.

Society Feels Lenten Calm in This City

BY THALIA

THERE doesn't seem to be anything outstanding in the way of social happenings just now. Everybody's having a nice time in a quiet sort of way—that is, everybody who is left in town.

Pretty soon the people who went away just after the holidays will be coming back, and those who take Easter time vacations will be going away. There are to be quite a lot of post-Easter brides, and, of course, they and their mothers are busy making wedding arrangements, shopping for trousseaux and making such momentous decisions as deciding the silver pattern, and the color scheme for the bridesmaids and what not.

Character Analysis, Pro and Con, Discussed by Expert.

There were quite large crowds at both the Woman's Athletic and Arts clubs yesterday for the morning programs. At the former Dr. David Seabury told about the "Sense and Nonsense of Character Analysis," and afterward there were numerous luncheon parties, Mrs. Raymond C. Dudley having the speaker among her guests, and the other hostesses including Mrs. John J. Mitchell, Mrs. Paul Steinbrecher, Mrs. Britton Budd, Mrs. Henry Veeder, Mrs. William M. Thompson, Mrs. W. B. ReQua, and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney.

Claude Bragdon gave the talk at the Arts club on "Skyscrapers," and there also were many small luncheons. Mr. and Mrs. John B. Storrs had Mr. Bragdon with them, and Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Robert Lee Eskridge, and Miss Alice Rouilier. Mrs. Waller Borden and her daughter, Mrs. Adlai Stevenson, Mrs. John Paul Welling, Mrs. Sam Rinaker, Miss Agnes Foreman, and Mrs. Otis Glidden were others in the dining room.

Junior Leaguer at Ease; Some Chicagoans in Paris.

Fashionable facts . . . Mrs. Philip R. Maher, a bit worn out after six weeks of playing the lead in "Pinocchio" [getting that false nose on and taking it off], set out for California this week for a restful visit with her father and mother, the Albert A. Michelsons. . . . Miss Julianne Doane departed Wednesday evening for Santa Fe, N. M., for several weeks. . . . Betty Scriven and Carlos Drake and the rest of a family box party will "see themselves as others see them" tonight at Burton Holmes' travel talk and pictures at Orchestra hall [they were photographed by Mr. Holmes and his trusty camera last summer in Paris, and are shown "doing the Louvre" and sitting out on the sidewalk in front of the Café de la Paix]. . . . Tom Seyster is going to Hot Springs, Ark., next week for a stay. . . . The Mason Trowbridges and Mrs. Rosecrans Baldwin were registrants at Hotel Montclair in New York the first part of this week.

Also . . . Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter has been in New York City this week, as also have the Orville Babcocks, who had evidently been up to visit their boy at St. Mark's because they came in from Concord. . . . One of the wisecracks that the Ernest Byfields brought back from New York was the title of the hatchet murderer's theme song, "Give Me Something to Dismember You By." . . . The University of Chicago's Quadrangle Players and the University Dramatic association are giving their annual playfest in Mandel hall next Friday and Saturday evenings for the benefit of the U. of C. settlement back-of-the-yards [the Walter Bullocks, the Horace Williatons, Mrs. Walter Paepcke and Mrs. Quincy Wright are among those to play in Shaw's "The Great Catherine"; James Weber Linn, Mr. and Mrs. Dunlap Clark and Mrs. H. B. Horton are playing Milne's "The Man in the Bowler Hat," and students will play "Tables for Ladies," by John Bobbitt].

And still more . . . Marion McFadden will be meeting the train that Mme. Chanel is on when she comes through on her way to Hollywood next week to get an interview by the famous dressmaker for "Fashions of the Hour." . . . The Arts club galleries have been reserved for the 24th for a meeting of the Friends of China. . . . Mrs. J. Hamilton Lewis, president of the Alliance Française, is giving a reception on Sunday for Robert Lee Eskridge in the Alliance rooms in the Fine Arts building. . . . Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson had a luncheon party yesterday, afterward taking her guests to Francis Neilson's lecture at the University of Chicago, with Claire Dux singing.

The Junior league provisional members ask us to remind people that they are looking for cast-off clothing for their charity rummage sale to be held next Thursday at 233 North Michigan avenue. The donations received thus far in response to their solicitations have been so few as to lead the girls to suspect that all available worn garments were gathered up in the drive engineered recently by Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank for Gov. Emmerson's relief commission.

The committee, headed by Miss Ghita Watson, has opened rooms adjoining the league office at the Drake, and any garments sent there will be most welcome.

On and on . . . The Julius Rosenwalds gave a Washington's birthday dinner at the Royal Hawaiian hotel in Honolulu, their guests including Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Ochs of New York City, the Robert Mandells of Chicago, the Clarke Howells of Atlanta, and several other Americans and some members of Honolulu's élite (there were 22 in the party and the table was decorated with Cups of Gold, a delicate and fragrant Hawaiian flower). . . . There's to be another tea to stimulate interest in the forthcoming flower and garden show at the Merchandise mart at the Shoreland hotel next Thursday, with south side women managing the arrangements and Mrs. Frederick A. Dow of Hinsdale giving a "garden talk." . . . The annual Madonna Center benefit dinner-dance is to be at the Hotel Sherman ballroom on April 25, the same night that Fort Sheridan is to have its second annual military ball.

Smith and a member of Delta Upsilon from the University of Chicago. They will leave after the ceremony for a wedding trip in the south.

PALM BEACH SOCIETY

Palm Beach, Fla., March 5.—[Special.]—The annual costume ball at the Everglades club was formally opened tonight with a grand march led by Rear Admiral Richard Byrd and Mrs. Byrd. More than 400 persons attended the supper dance, the proceeds of which were given the American Red Cross.

Among the dinners preceding the ball was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Chadwick, whose guests were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hudson Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Larsen, Mr. and Mrs. Rollin Allyne, Mr. Edmund E. Allyne, and Count Perdicaris. Mrs. Chadwick wore a directoire gown and headdress of pale pink satin. Mr. Chadwick attended as a work house character.

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Bode were also dinner hosts at the Everglades preceding the dance. Their guests included Mrs. Bode, who wore a period costume of pink lace, with pink roses in her hair, Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Randle, Mr. and Mrs. W. David Owen.

Mrs. Elmer Rich wore a handsome costume representing a macaw. The chiffon frock was of a half dozen brilliant colors. The head dress was particularly amusing, a close fitting red felt cap embroidered in gold, on one side of which perched a green parrot whose long celophane feathers rached to Mrs. Rich's waist. Mr. Rich wore a yellow and black satin Pierrot costume. Mrs. James B. Long attended as a Spanish grande dame, in dress, wig and mantilla of white.

Mrs. George A. Eddy's costume was representative of a paper doll. Mrs. Frank Vernon Skiff was a Romany gypsy, while Mr. Skiff was a courtier in white satin knee breeches and a white coat lined in cerise.

Lady Henriette Davis wore a cubist costume of white and silver. The prizes for the best costumes were awarded by a committee composed of Princess Alexandria Victoria of Schelswig Holstein, who is the house guest of Mrs. George Rasmussen; Mrs. George A. Dobyne, Mrs. George L. Mesker, Lord Lionel Tennyson, and Mr. George De Benneville Keim.

Why we spend $2,000,000 to put CAMEL cigarettes in the new HUMIDOR PACK

WE have been in the tobacco business a long time down here at Winston-Salem and we take a lot of pride in the quality of the cigarettes we make.

While we have spent a good many million dollars advertising Camels, we've always held to the old fashioned idea that the thing that really counts is what we put into our cigarette and not what we say about it.

If we know anything about tobacco, and we think we do, Camels contain the choicest Turkish and the mellowest, ripest domestic leaves that money can buy.

In fact we have every reason to be proud of the quality of Camels as they come from the factory, but the remark of an old friend of ours from Denver some time ago emphasized a point that has been the problem of the cigarette industry for years.

As he inhaled the smoke from a Camel we gave him in our offices one morning, he sighed with very evident enjoyment and then asked jokingly, "What is this, a special blend reserved for Camel executives?"

"Certainly not," we told him. "This package of Camels was bought at the corner store this morning."

"Well," he said, "I've been a dyed in the wool Camel smoker for a good many years, but upon my soul I never got a cigarette as good as this in Denver. If you would give the rest of the world the kind of Camels you sell here in Winston-Salem, you ought to have all the cigarette business there is."

THAT statement simply emphasized again the cigarette industry's most important problem. The more we thought about it, the surer we were that he was dead right, and that somehow, something must be done.

Denver wasn't getting a fair break. Neither in fact was any other town. The only people who really knew how good Camels could be, were the folks right here in Winston-Salem.

That was due to a factor no cigarette manufacturer had ever been able to control.

Naturally there is no difference whatever in the quality of the tobacco in Camels, whether you buy them in Winston-Salem, Denver or Timbuctoo. But up to now there has been a very real difference in the condition of the cigarettes by the time they reached the smoker.

The flavor and mildness of fine tobacco depend upon the retention of its natural, not added, moisture content which is prime at about ten per cent.

In spite of our great pains always to make sure Camels left the factory with just the right amount of natural moisture, no cigarette package had ever yet been designed that could prevent that precious moisture from drying out.

THERE are three things about a cigarette that can sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat.

(1) Cheap tobaccos.

(3) A parched dry condition of the tobacco due to loss of natural moisture by overheating or evaporation.

Always certain of the quality of our tobaccos we had already made Camel a "dustless" cigarette by the use of a specially designed vacuum cleaning apparatus exclusive with our factory.

Now, if we could perfect a package that would actually act as a humidor and retain the natural moisture content, then Yuma, Arizona, could enjoy Camels as much as we do here at Winston-Salem.

We knew what we wanted. We tried many things. We asked the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory to help us

After many experiments and humidity tests covering all methods of packing cigarettes came the detailed report of which this is the net:

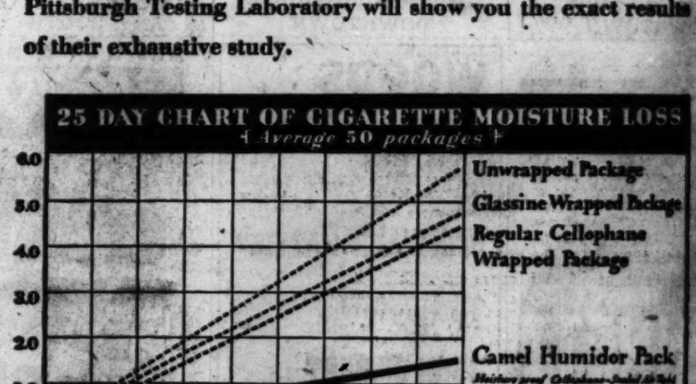
(A) No existing cigarette package, including those wrapped in glassine paper or ordinary cellophane, gives anything like adequate protection against evaporation.

(B) All cigarettes so packed tend to dry out rapidly from the day they are released from the factory.

(C) Only a waterproof material with a specially devised air-tight seal could give the desired protection.

(D) This measure, while costly, could be relied on to keep Camels in prime condition for at least three months in any climate.

If you have a technical bent, the graph below made by the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory will show you the exact results of their exhaustive study.



Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory chart above graphically shows you that only the Camel Humidor Pack delivers cigarettes to you in prime condition

YOU may be sure we gave this report a lot of careful study. We checked it and re-checked it and then we went ahead. We tried this device and that. At last we met success. The air-tight wrapping involved the designing of special processes, special machines.

That costs a lot of money, more than $2,000,000 the first year, but after you have tried Camels packed this modern new way we are sure you will agree it is a fine investment.

We have said nothing about it until now, to make sure your dealer would be able to supply you when the good news came out.

Camel smokers of course have already discovered that their favorite cigarette is better and milder now than ever before.

If you aren't a Camel smoker, try them just to see what a difference there really is between harsh, dried out tobacco and a properly conditioned cigarette.

You can feel the difference, you can hear the difference and you certainly can taste the difference.

Of course we're prejudiced.

We always have believed that Camel is the world's best cigarette.

Now we know it.

FRANCE SENDS CHAMPIONS TO BOX IN CHICAGO

INTERCITY GOLDEN GLOVES WINNERS WILL BATTLE INVADERS

CARNERA WHIPS MALONEY, HIS OLD CONQUEROR

20,000 See Italian Turn Tables.

Miami, Fla., March 5.—[Special.]—Primo Carnera outpointed Jimmy Maloney of Boston in their ten round bout here tonight before approximately 20,000 spectators. Referee Elmer McClelland of Cleveland raised Carnera's hand at the end of the fight and the crowd greeted this gesture with mixed cheers and jeers.

There was no great complaint about the justice of the decision. The spectators simply were disapproving of the contest as a whole. Primo was crude and Maloney was outweighed by 12 pounds. The Italian giant lumbered through most of the evening and Maloney was forced backward by the extra tonnage and longer reach of his huge rival. Neither fighter showed anything to make Max Schmeling, Jack Sharkey, or Young Stribling tremble in their shoes.

Carnera's Ribs Taped.

The gate receipts were estimated at $70,000, but these figures will be checked tomorrow.

Carnera was first into the ring. His lower ribs and his right side were taped. There was an argument about the gloves to be used. The pair provided by the Florida boxing commissioner were alleged to be too small for the huge hands of the Venetian. Carnera's handlers produced a pair of their own, but these were rejected by Maloney's manager. After a squabble, Louis K. MacReynolds, chairman of the Florida boxing commission, produced a third pair and ordered Carnera to don them, which he did in a submissive manner.

Carnera carried the fight to Maloney through the early rounds, but it was at a slow pace. The Italian lumbered ahead and Maloney retreated, firing light blows as he went.

Neither Close to Knockdown.

The Boston boy slipped to the floor once during the fight and Primo toppled over once when he missed a right swing, but there was nothing approaching a knockdown.

Maloney had more bruises and bumps when the bout was over. This victory for Carnera squared his account with Maloney, who got the referee's decision in their previous fight last October in Boston. Judging from the silence with which the spectators watched the contest and the jeers that came at the conclusion, there will be no great clamor for a return match in this area. The fight fans seemed ready to let the whole matter drop.

After the main bout, James J. Braddock stepped into the ring and flattened a stranger named Jack Roper of California with a short right cross in one minute and eight seconds in the first round.

CANADIENS LOSE BUT REMAIN IN TIE FOR FIRST

MONTREAL, March 5.—(AP)—The New York Rangers beat the Montreal Canadiens, 2 to 1, in a hard fought National Hockey league game tonight. Although defeated, the flying Frenchmen were assured of finishing in a tie for first place in the Canadian division as the second place Toronto team also lost. The Canadiens are ten points ahead.

Paul Thompson, rangy substitute wingman, scored the winning goal for the Rangers early in the second period on an unassisted play. Howie Morenz, Canadien center, scored early in the first period, but one of the famous Ranger three man passing plays tied the count eight minutes later. Frank Boucher scored the tying goal on passes from the two Cooks. Summary:

Third Period—No score. Penalties—Peters, F. Cook, Lepine, Burke.

MAROONS WHIP LEAFS.

TORONTO, March 5.—(AP)—The Montreal Maroons scored three goals in the first period of a wide open National Hockey league game tonight and lasted to beat out the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6 to 5. It was the Maroons' first victory over Toronto this season and cost the Leafs their last mathematical chance of taking first place in the Canadian division.

Rothert Hurls Discus for New Zealand Record

WAIMAITE, New Zealand, March 5.—(AP)—Harlow Rothert of Stanford, touring the antipodes with George Simpson of Ohio State and Rufus Kiser of Washington, today broke the Australian-New Zealand record for the discus with a throw of 144 feet 6½ inches, 5 feet 4½ inches better than the old mark. Simpson won the 100 yard dash in 9 4-5 seconds, equaling the local record.

MIAMI BEATS SHELBY AS SITE OF FISTIC FLOPS

Carnera-Maloney Bout Is Added to Long List.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 5.—To the great flops of history may now be added the Carnera-Maloney flop in Miami, a financial mishap in some ways reminiscent of the one at Selby, Mont.

Frank Bruen, a horse track man, who had a year's experience at Tex Rickard's job at the Garden in New York, overestimated the customers' capacity and their willingness to pay by about $130,000 when he based his plans and expenditures on a theoretical gate of $200,000. Mr. Bruen's sojourn in Mr. Rickard's office was comparable to that of a high school cartoonist who visited a syndicate office and sat for a moment in a great comic artist's chair before the great comic artist's drawing table.

"Now," the young man said, "I feel as though I could draw great comics myself."

But it didn't do the young cartoonist any noticeable good, and Mr. Bruen was no Tex Rickard, either, when he finally left Tex Rickard's office, even though he had sat at Mr. Rickard's big bronze desk, in Mr. Rickard's chair, for a year.

Reminds You of Shelby.

Unless Mr. Bruen had some secret arrangement or angle whereby any deficit incurred in the affair might be regarded as an investment for future returns, he has been even more dogged than Mayor Jim Johnson of Shelby was generally supposed to be when Jack Kearns and Jack Dempsey took out of circulation all the cash resources of Shelby and the surrounding country, including the assets of a couple of one story banks. Shelby was governed under a very liberal policy policy at the time of the Dempsey-Gibbons gathering, and it is well known to one and all that when questionable characters come in from the outside to set up as dealers of questionable sports and amusements they generally pay their union dues at the city hall.

At one stage of the proceedings Mr. Johnson produced one quarter, one dime, and a pocket corkscrew after a thorough inventory of his clothes and offered them to Mr. Kearns in lieu of an installment of $100,000 cash, due that day. Mr. Kearns naturally declined and Mr. Johnson then said:

"Well, then, I have got about 20,000 head of sheep off yonder way. Will you take them?"

"Twenty thousand sheep?" Mr. Kearns exclaimed. "My dear sir, I live in a flat. The lease might permit me to keep one sheep, but 20,000 of them would be quite excessive."

Miami Wins Flop Record.

The city of Miami is now well in the lead in the matter of conspicuous financial flops in the prize fighting trade, with a score of three busts, one standoff and one success in about six years. The first and most spectacular flop was scored by a Mr. Jesse Baugh of Indianapolis, Ind., whose only real fault was that his timing was bad.

Mr. Baugh happened into Miami with a week's room rent and an idea one year too late. The big boom was just about to blow up. There were still four or five afternoon newspapers in the town, and, judging by the congestion of the newsstands, Mr. Baugh figured that he had happened into the winter quarters of the city of New York. Then, discovering Gene Tunney and William Stribling on the ground, he engaged them to fight ten rounds for him for some ostentatious sum, and set about building an arena and selling tickets. As each ticket was sold Mr. Baugh would buy a few more feet of pine lumber or a few more pecks of nails, and everything was going well until the time came for the posting of the fighters' guarantees.

Mr. Tunney was spending his time

Griffith to Pit Skill Against Levinsky's Power Tonight

BY WILFRID SMITH.

King Levinsky and Tuffy Griffith. That's the Stadium's offering, long awaited, which will be presented tonight.

Chicago's most popular heavyweights, certainly the center of west side conversations whenever fighters are a topic, will decide once again whether a good boxer can whip a puncher. This attraction, however, by its uncertainty, promises large attendance in addition to the impetus of neighborhood rivalry.

It requires no experting to advance the opinion Griffith will outpoint Levinsky or that Levinsky will knock out Griffith. The King is not a clever boxer. He is not a boxer at all, while Griffith's record against the big boys is not embroidered with one punch victories.

Loughran and Slattery, superior boxers, have beaten Levinsky. Lomski, and others who cannot duck, weave, and jab with equal cleverness, have failed to keep away from Levinsky's fanning right hand.

It's rumored Levinsky is an improved fighter, but that story was ballyhooed before his return match with Slattery. Even so, there's no reason why Levinsky should try to improve. As an earnest, if extremely wild, glove thrower, he's highly regarded in Chicago.

Needs Longer Wind Supply.

Tuffy admitted yesterday he is in splendid condition. He attributed this to a lot of healthy exercises these last days. He expects to set a fast pace for ten rounds.

Levinsky has been indulging in the same set of routine preparations. Notwithstanding, he possibly will be short winded by the seventh round, providing there is a seventh round, for that seems to be the limit of his endurance. Obviously one can't maintain such tremendous exertion as the King does without rewinding.

If Levinsky and Griffith go ten rounds the bout may become a bit boresome. However, they will have excellent support from the other professionals on the card to offset tedium. Battling Bozo and Lou Scozza of Buffalo, whose labors were increased from eight to ten rounds by special dispensation of the ring commission, well may steal the show from the Chicago boys. Scozza is highly regarded in the east and these light heavies may develop a worth while battle.

Bozo a Ring Clown.

Bozo has been labeled the "Levinsky of Alabama." He rates to beat Scozza along the general lines that Levinsky hopes to whip Griffith.

Baxter Calmes, once of Wichita and now using Chicago as his address, meets Mickey McFarland, an expatriate of Oklahoma. Nate Lewis, Stadium matchmaker, believes Calmes' cleverness will offset McFarland's harder hitting.

The former Golden Gloves boy, Paul Dazzo, is matched for six rounds with Ernie Dugan of Toledo. Solly Schuman and Georgie Stokes are booked for another six sessions bout in which Schuman should be the victor. Joe Corbett and Knute Dane, heavyweights, open activities in a four round battle.

SEE CHICAGOLAND'S CHAMPIONS CROWNED!

The eight toughest and gamest boys in Chicagoland will win Golden Gloves next Wednesday night in the final bouts at the Stadium. Four are still standing in each weight division after having battled their way through sectional meets and through the tournament of champions at the Coliseum. Only the best and the bravest have survived, and boxing fans have one more chance to see them in action.

There are still some good seats available at the Tribune Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn street, and orders are being filled by mail, as well. Applications should be addressed to the Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves Tournament, The Tribune, Chicago. They must be accompanied by money orders or certified checks.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Eight thousand hockey enthusiasts went to the Stadium last night to see a hockey game between the Chicago Blackhawks and the New York Americans, but they stayed to see an old fashioned melodrama in its place. The Americans were struggling for a place in the Stanley cup playoffs, but the Hawks frustrated them by a score of 1 to 0, thereby strengthening their own chances to compete for that battered relic. By their victory they are still three points ahead of the New York Rangers, and practically assured of a position in the final competition.

The leading characters in last night's thriller were Goalies Roy Worters and Chuck Gardiner, with all of the defense men on both teams in supporting rôles. Gardiner made 29 stops against Worters' 28 for one of his best games of the season, but the little New Yorker gave a performance that elicited the cheers of even the home following. He cannot even be held responsible for that one goal which Frank Ingram scored on a pass from Art Somers in the second period.

Hawks Use Three Fronts.

Each team opened the first period with the particular brand of play for which it is famous, the Blackhawks concentrating on three man forays, while the Americans, defense and forwards both, arrayed themselves in a they-shall-not-pass formation.

The Hawks dispatched three separate forward lines into action within the first seven minutes of the game, but the last stand tactics of the New York defense, ably supported by the smallish Worters, kept them too busy trying to keep the puck for effective shots.

The Cook-March-Adams scoring trio started for the Hawks, but shortly was replaced by Gottselig, Romnes and Couture, with the Somers-Arbour-Ingram line following. The second of these teams was the most effective with Gottselig's brilliant skating.

Hawks Play Frantically.

The Hawks came out for the second period apparently determined to fight it out on a front line basis if it took all winter, sending out first one and then another. After five minutes and 30 seconds of incessant hammering at the Americans' defense, their attack produced the first goal of the evening. Ingram took a pass from Somers near the net and had no trouble in lofting over the prostrate frames of Worters, Simpson, and Brydge, the latter two having come almost into the cage.

The same style of play which had colored the first two periods was presented when the third act began. The Hawks seemed almost frantic in their efforts to add to that one goal.

French Accept International Bouts with Golden Glove Team

BY ARCH WARD.
[Other Golden Gloves news on page 31.]

Announcement from Paris that France had accepted an invitation to send its amateur boxing champions to Chicago concluded negotiations for the greatest international match in ring history.

The bouts will climax THE TRIBUNE'S fourth annual Golden Gloves tournament. They will be held at Chicago Stadium May 12.

The Chicago team will be made up of the winners in the intercity match between New York and Chicago, scheduled for Madison Square Garden on March 30. The New York boys who qualify for America's international team will come to Chicago two weeks in advance of the battle to train with the Chicago winners.

Boxing Federation Approves.

The match has been sanctioned by the foreign relations committee of the Amateur Athletic union and by the French Boxing federation. Profits will be donated to Chicago charity.

The French party, comprising eight champions, four alternates, and trainers, will sail on the France April 29. They will land in New York May 5 and will come immediately to Chicago, where they will have five days to work off their sea legs before entering the Stadium ring.

This will be the first time a team of amateur boxing champions has come from a country across the sea to meet a team of Americans. There have been other international bouts, but never between two nations. Previous foreign invaders were made up of representatives of two or more countries.

Next year there may be another international foe for the Golden Gloves team. THE TRIBUNE plans to bring a team of Germans, English, and perhaps other foreign boxers to Chicago for the World's Fair in 1933.

How the Tournament Grew.

The match between France and the United States Golden Glove champions is an expansion of the most pretentious sports promotion attempted by any newspaper. THE TRIBUNE held its first Golden Gloves meet three years ago. A similar tournament had previously been promoted by the New York News. THE TRIBUNE arranged in the spring of 1927 for the 16 leading fighters in each meet to come together in intercity rivalry. The contest caught the public's fancy immediately and every New York-Chicago match has been a sellout.

Last year THE TRIBUNE invited other newspapers in the central states to coöperate in the tournament. Thirteen accepted. This year 15 out of town centers held Golden Glove tournaments and sent their winners to Chicago. These preliminary rounds drew 1,200 contestants and furnished entertainment for thousands. Eight hundred boys entered the Chicago sectional meets, which were held on the north, south and west sides. The survivors of these eliminations met the out of town battlers in the tournament of champions at the Coliseum, which was concluded Wednesday night.

French Consul Pleased.

Nineteen of the 32 boys who have earned their way to the final round at Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night are from outside Chicago.

Charles de Ferry de Fonnouvelle, French consul in Chicago, last night said he was pleased negotiations for the match had been completed.

"It is of great interest and pleasure to me to learn that the amateur boxing champions of France are coming to America to compete with your Golden Glove winners," he said. "It is my hope that such relationship between our athletes will bring us even closer together in the spirit of good sportsmanship and fellowship."

France for years has sent strong professional fighters to the United States. The first of the late Tex Rickard's million dollar spectacles brought together Georges Carpentier of France and Jack Dempsey. Andre Routis, who has appeared in Chicago several times, and Eugene Criqui were among the ring's most popular performers. Both have held the world's featherweight championship.

A capacity crowd is certain to see the finals of the Chicago tournament at the Stadium Wednesday night. The eight champions, eight runners up and eight alternates will make up the Chicago team which will fight New York March 30.

Clinnin, Brundage Welcome Word of French Invasion

Gen. John V. Clinnin, president of the National Boxing association, and Avery Brundage, president of the Amateur Athletic union, when informed last night of the international bout between France and America, said it was the biggest boost the sport has had in years.

"It is a splendid thing to bring about international competition in sport," Gen. Clinnin remarked. "It is a greater moral force than all the peace conferences that have been held. If nations would send their athletes against one another more often there would be less need for standing armies to preserve peace.

"The world needs sportsmanship. The rules of fair play and clean play must be read into international politics and economic relations if universal peace is to come and to stay.

"Sportsmanship has been the outstanding development of the Golden Gloves tournament. I watched most of the bouts in this year's meet and I have seen no display of temper. The boys have themselves under control. They are ready to shake hands with the fellows who beat them. You can see what this spirit would mean if applied internationally.

"Never have I seen finer sportsmanship than was shown by Walter Cappel, Milwaukee heavyweight, who knocked out Marion Youngstafl of Vincennes at the Coliseum Wednesday night. Cappel and Youngstafl were boyhood friends in Milwaukee. After knocking out his pal, Cappel rushed over to the Vincennes boy's corner and said, "Sorry, kid, that I had to do it."

Mr. Brundage commented as follows:

"International amateur sport adds to the manifold benefits of athletic competition the further opportunity to establish mutual respect, friendliness, and good will among nations of the world. There is no more potent influence toward peace and understanding.

"THE TRIBUNE, which has done so much for amateur boxing in this community, is to be commended for its enterprise in arranging this series of bouts between the champions of France and the Golden Gloves winners."

NEW YORK HAILS IDEA.

Arrangement to bring the French champion to Chicago is a brilliant move on THE TRIBUNE'S part and we congratulate them both for the idea as well as for their sportsmanship in opening the defending American team to winners in both cities.

"THE TRIBUNE'S move is the beginning of a back to amteurism movement in boxing that will see crowds of 50,000 and 60,000 enthusiasts gathering outdoors to witness such international matches. The News hopes to promote such a set of international bouts as THE TRIBUNE is inaugurating in alternate years.

"It will be a wonderful thing next May to see the boys who will fight one another so bitterly in the intercity matches in New York on March 30 standing shoulder to shoulder as teammates against the French."

Batted Ball Injures Detroit Tigers' Manager

Sacramento, Cal., March 5.—(AP)—Manager Stanley R. Harris of the Detroit Tigers joined his own casualty list today when a batted ball struck him on the leg and he had to be carried from the field. Although X-ray reports will not be available until tomorrow, the attending physician said he did not believe a bone was fractured. Harris will not be able to leave the hotel for several days.

PARIS VICTORS FACE AMERICA'S BEST ON MAY 12

Two Countries Hail Amateur Bouts.

BY HEROL EGAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 5.—Eight boys, the gamest and cleverest boxers of France, chosen in the annual French national amateur boxing tournament, will invade Chicago on May 12 to battle the champions of the intercity Golden Gloves contests.

M. Paul Rousseau, president of the French Boxing federation, after weeks of negotiations, today accepted the invitation of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE to send France's best to America to engage the team of champions to be chosen at the Golden Gloves contests in New York on March 30. M. Rousseau was first approached by a representative of the Paris edition of THE TRIBUNE more than a month ago and he and other officials of the French federation have been considering the project since that time.

Tonight he gave his decision. The step was immediately hailed by the sport writers of Paris as one of the greatest steps ever taken in the development of international sport.

Twelve on French Team.

France's champions—eight of them, who, with four alternates, will make up the French team on its invasion of America to battle the champions from the cornfields of Iowa, from the east side of New York, from the stockyards district of Chicago—will be chosen at the national tournament in Paris on April 12 and 13.

To the French tournament come the sturdiest battlers of the republic—Basques from the slopes of the Pyrenees, chasseurs from the Alps, sun browned peasant lads from the southern provinces, husky young fishermen from the ports of the Mediterranean, boys reared in the shadows of Notre Dame and the Reims cathedrals, youthful vintners from the valley of the Rhone, Picards and young seamen from Calais.

Modern Musketeers.

From all corners of France they trek to Paris to this great carnival of fisticuffs, and from it emerge the bravest and the hardiest that make up the republic's younger generation. The flower of France, they might be called, these valorous Gauls, but there is nothing flowerlike about these boys who will carry France's gloves across the sea.

From flyweights to heavyweights they represent all that is strong and brave in French history. The team they will constitute on their American invasion will epitomize the virtues of those symbolic heroes of France, the Three Musketeers: the daring skill of D'Artagnan; the wisdom and cunning of an Athos; the strength and courage of a Porthos.

The fame of the Golden Gloves tournaments in Chicago and New York long ago spread to France, and with the goal of a trip to America before them, contestants in this year's tournament are expected to put forth even greater efforts to attain the coveted championships, which have been the acme of sport endeavor in this country for years.

Sail for U. S. April 29.

The French party, besides the eight champions and four alternates who will represent the nation in the international contests, will be made up of coaches, trainers, and representatives of the French Boxing federation. They will sail on the liner France April 29 and will be escorted to Chicago by representatives of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, who will accompany them across the Atlantic.

The national tournament of France for years has been one of the outstanding athletic events of Europe and the French people, with their characteristic enthusiasm, have come to regard its champions as the greatest of all boxers.

Announcement tonight that their heroes were to go to America as representatives of France to battle a representative group of American amateurs immediately struck the public fancy and the coming bouts already are regarded as a movement that will strengthen the friendship of the people of France and of the United States.

Dawson, Bernice Wall Win Mixed Doubles Golf Meet

Ban Johnson Sinking Slowly; Condition "Low"

St. Louis, Mo., March 5.—(AP)—Ban Johnson, former head of the American league, was sinking slowly and his condition was described as "low" tonight. Johnson was weaker this morning than he had been at any time previous.

BIG 10 TRACKMEN TO SEEK INDOOR HONORS TONIGHT

Michigan and Wisconsin Lead Title Quest.

Madison, Wis., March 5.—[Special.]—The twenty-first annual Western conference indoor track and field championship meet will open tomorrow night in the University of Wisconsin fieldhouse with preliminary heats to be run in track events. Track finals and all field events will be held Saturday night.

There will be twenty-three races tomorrow night, including six heats in the 60 yard dash; six in the 60 yard high hurdles; four preliminaries, and two semi-finals in the quarter mile, three trials in the half mile, and two in the mile.

Michigan has entered the largest team, forty-three, and Purdue the smallest, twenty-two, with the others nominating from thirty to thirty-eight. There will be about 200 actual competitors.

Michigan, Badgers Favored.

Track enthusiasts here believe the fight for the championship will be between Michigan and Wisconsin. The Badgers won last year with 21 points and have, in Capt. Bill Henke, quarter miler. Sammy Behr, shot putter; Ted Shaw, high jumper, and Mac Thompson, miler, men who won 16 of their points last year.

Greg Kabat, who had been counted on to put the shot around 45 feet, may be out of the meet with a sore arm and Vernon Goldsworthy in the half mile or two mile, will be ineligible to compete.

Badger supporters are waiting anxiously for Michigan's arrival to learn whether Brooks, shotputter, will compete. He has not been eligible until now. The Wolverines are conceded high places in the half with Turner and Braden, the 440 with Russell, the vault with Pottle and Tolan is considered a sure winner of the short dash. Austin is also regarded as almost a sure thing in the two mile.

Indoor Records Perilled.

The fieldhouse track, which is eight laps to the mile, is in fine shape and it is believed that Henke in the 440, Letts of Chicago in the half and mile, and possibly Austin or Leas of Indiana in the two mile, may set new conference indoor records.

CHICAGO STADIUM ADDS NATE LEWIS TO DIRECTORATE

Nate Lewis, matchmaker, has been elected to the Chicago Stadium board of directors, it was announced yesterday by Sidney N. Strotz, president. Other new members of the board are Joseph Triner, 1333 South Ashland avenue, and J. W. Snyder, 307 North Michigan avenue.

Lewis has spent 30 years in the fight game as manager, promoter and matchmaker. His election gives him a greater latitude in handling the business of his department and brings the directors in closer contact with this important part of the Stadium's activities.

The addition of Lewis, Snyder and Triner brings the board of directors to 16. Other members retained their seats in the election yesterday. This move on the part of the board is a tacit denial of rumors that the Stadium was dissatisfied with Lewis and was planning on replacing him. His election was brought about through his merit alone, Strotz pointed out.

Yacht Club Prizes to Be Awarded Tomorrow

Prizes won in the thirty-ninth annual Michigan City race of the Columbia Yacht club last summer will be distributed at a banquet tomorrow night at the Steuben club. Commodores of all clubs in the Chicago district have been invited to attend.

CIGARS AS FRESH AS WHEN NEW-MADE

Approach to "Cold-Treatment" room where Dutch Masters have fresh-made flavor and mellowness sealed in by this secret process.

AMAZING "COLD-TREATMENT" PROCESS DOES IT!

AT LAST a way has been found to give you that greatest of smoke-thrills—a cigar that is as fresh and fragrant when you light it, as it was at the minute it was made!

If you've ever smoked an absolutely fresh-made cigar, you know that no other smoke can compare with that one. And now you can have that thrill every day. Dutch Masters' new "Cold-Treatment" makes it possible.

This process takes a Dutch Masters cigar at the moment it comes from the machine—just when the fine, mellow tobaccos are at their fresh Peak of Perfection . . .

And then, by the exclusive "Cold-Treatment" process, that fresh-made fragrance and flavor are sealed within the cigar itself! So when you smoke a Dutch Masters, you'll find as much difference between it and an ordinary cigar, as there is between a fresh apple and a dried apple!

Try a Dutch Masters "Cold-Treated" cigar—to-day! Manufactured by the Consolidated Cigar Corporation, New York.

CUBS' REGULARS SCORE 5 IN NINTH TO BEAT GOOFS

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 5.—Uncle Jess Petty, a kindly old soul, allowed the Cub regulars five runs after two were out in the ninth inning this afternoon and thus deprived the ambitious Goofs of the joy they were about to derive from achieving two victories in a row. The score, after Uncle Jess' sad demise, was Regulars, 9; Goofs, 6.

All of the Goofs' scores except one were the result of four homers—one by Zack Taylor, one by Cliff Heathcote, and the last two by Vince Barton. Bob Osborn yielded the Taylor and Heathcote smacks while Barton got his off Hermann, whose stuff he remembered from the 1930 season in the International league.

Forgetting for the time being that Uncle Jess was in a state of collapse, the garrison finish of the Regulars was remindful of those big windups that north side bugs love so well.

Hornsby Starts Rally.

Hornsby doubled with one out in the ninth and a run needed to tie. Wilson furnished the second out with a fly to center, but Stephenson came along and drove home Rog with a single to center. Campbell walked. Then Bell singled on a three and two count, sending Stevie home. Grimm knocked a homer, scoring Campbell and Bell ahead of him. Petty Ben concluded it was high time to settle down, so he struck out Hermann.

While there was heavy action in the latter half of the game, the first part of the enterprise was more significant, perhaps, if you want to peep at the future. Blake and Osborn, who will be with the Cubs all year, pitched the first five innings and did right well. The Sheriff allowed only four hits, no two of which came in the same inning, and struck out five, including two sinkings of Hack Wilson. Bob had plenty of deception except on the occasions when Heathcote and Taylor knocked the ball over the right field screen.

Prepare for Angels.

Tomorrow will be spent in preparing for the two game series here with the Los Angeles team Saturday and Sunday. Hornsby has said that he expects his boys to win every one of their exhibition games, or at least all they play against minor leaguers. With this in view, he will present his best wares in the exhibition season opener. Root and Malone will do the pitching for the Cubs.

SOX PITCHERS BEAR DOWN

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

San Antonio, Tex., March 5.—Older boys among White Sox pitchers got around to a little serious work today. Having seen the young fellows cut loose yesterday, and with a hot sun to encourage them, Ted Lyons, Al Thomas and Garland Braxton took turns putting speed and hooks on exhibition for the edification of Donie Bush's prospective regular hitters, and of Owner Charles A. Comiskey, who hadn't seen his Sox in training since 1919.

Thomas turned loose with abandon and with no unfavorable results, thereby eliminating all doubt as to the complete recovery of the arm which was almost a total loss last season. Tommy bore down harder than the others, possibly because he himself was curious about determining just how well his splintered right elbow would behave.

Two more near casualties developed during batting practice. While Moore was working on the mound, Luke Appling, who is expected to develop into the regular shortstop, hit one straight back and caught Moore in the pit of the stomach. Moore promptly was removed to the dressing quarters, not injured, but slightly ill. A line drive from another hitter caromed off the junior Lou Barbour's left ankle and he immediately decided the quitting whistle had blown.

The squad was augmented for the first time by the presence of Smead Jolley, who is large enough to attract attention at any time. The gigantic left fielder arrived from the coast this morning and immediately slipped into uniform for hitting practice.

Comiskey watched practice from the front seat of his transcontinental limousine. He didn't offer any comment as the possibilities of his rookies but he did express himself as highly pleased with the training field. He expects to remain a member of the expedition for another week.

INVADING TEAMS QUALIFY 19 OF 32 FOR FIGHT FINALS

BY FRENCH LANE.

Boys from Chicago who whipped their country cousins from Chicagoland in the Golden Gloves tournament a year ago have nothing to snicker about as the 1931 tournament moves on toward the championship battles in the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday night.

For the troops from Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Michigan fought noby. They were in the thick of the battle at the first tap of the gong. They continued their furious bombardment for three nights. Then they climaxed their performance when their heavyweights began climbing into the ring.

The big fellows—the heavyweights from the country—made a complete sweep in their division. They knocked the aspiring Kilranes, Sullivans, Corbetts, Fitzsimmons and Dempseys from Chicago all over the Coliseum. They won every bout with a kayo punch.

19 Chicagoland Survivors.

As a result the boys from Chicagoland are sending 19 warriors into the battles at the Chicago Stadium next Wednesday. Their cousins from the big town have only 13 left to fight for the Golden Gloves.

The amateur leather swingers from Rockford made the most spectacular showing of any of the invading forces. They finished second to Chicago with three tough youngsters qualified for the semi-final and championship matches. Peoria, Milwaukee and Gary ran the Rockford team a close race each with their two finest fighters carrying on toward the championships.

The cities to qualify one boy for next week's coronation ceremonies were Springfield, Fort Wayne, Danville, Cleveland, Geneva, Davenport, South Bend, Streator, Lafayette, and Kokomo. The only sectional Golden Gloves centers which failed to get a boxer past the quarter finals were Benton Harbor, Michigan City, and Vincennes. Unfortunate in the draw, the boys from these cities went up against rivals of championship caliber early in the tournament.

Visiting Heavies Clean Up.

Chicago boys held their own with the lads from the country in all the lighter divisions. But when the light heavyweight and the heavyweight struggles came along they retreated on all fronts. Dick Monty was the only Chicagoan to survive in the light heavyweight fighting. Adam Smith of Rockford, Walter Cappel of Milwaukee, John Long of Gary, and Don Beattie of Kokomo took care of the heavyweights from Chicago with their old "Mary Ann's."

Chicago boys made their finest showing in the welterweight division. Three of them qualified. They were Johnny Phagan, Joe Fontana, and George Keenan. The other lad to qualify was Billy Celebron of Rockford.

There are two Chicago flyweights left. A pair of 118 pounders, two lightweights, and two middleweights from Chicago still are in the running. The boys from out of town dominate the 126 pound division with Ed Metz of Danville, Don Gonzales from Cleveland, and Bruno Kalvenoni of Rockford lined up against Tony Muscarello of Chicago.

Two Colored Boys' Win.

The colored troops, which numbered around 100 in the three Chicago and 15 Chicagoland sectional tournaments, did not fare so well. Johnny Phagan, the welterweight, was the lone Chicago Negro to get past the quarter finals. Billy Edwards, the Fort Wayne bantamweight, was the other colored lad to sail on toward the championships.

Encouraged by their showing, which was nearly 100 per cent better than it was in 1930, the boys from the country lost no time yesterday in picking up their training work for the title struggles of next week. Several of them remained in Chicago. They will work with some of the best professional fighters here as they go along through their final training rehearsals.

KWARIANI WINS OVER ROMANO IN STRAIGHT FALLS

Kola Kwariani, Russian heavyweight wrestler, won two straight falls last night over Mike Romano of Italy at the Rainbow Fronton. Kwariani required 20 minutes and 35 seconds to score the first fall, and 3:40 for the second.

George Zaharias tossed Hans Bauer in 17 minutes 4 seconds. Frank Brunovicz won his sixth match here when he downed Rudy Laditsi, Hungary, in 12 minutes. Pat O'Shocker and Fred Grobmier wrestled to a 20 minute draw. Jack Aarnos defeated Wild Bill Nelson in 8 minutes 22 seconds.

South Suburban Tank Teams Meet at University High

The annual South Suburban league swimming meet will be held next Wednesday in the sunny gymnasium pool of University High school. University High and Kankakee are favorites to win the meet.

Skill, Stamina Help Caserio Toward a Golden Glove

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The tumult has died and the Tournament of Champions is over, but there's no real rest yet for the boys who have set out in quest of Golden Gloves. A group of them was found yesterday at Kid Howard's gymnasium, keeping in trim for the final test of skill and courage, which will come next Wednesday at the Stadium.

Among the boys was Fred Caserio, who hammered his way through the south side sectional and through the Coliseum bouts with such dispatch that he has become one of the prime favorites to win the middleweight place on the team which will represent Chicago in the intercity fights at New York.

This is the second time Fred has made a bid for a Golden Glove and he expects that his added experience will make this attempt a successful one. Last year his march through the tournament was halted in the last bout at the Coliseum, but he made it a point not to let that happen again. This time all of his six engagements were won impressively and he was extended only once.

One Extra Round Bout.

That happened in the third bout of the sectional meet when he was forced to go an extra round against a Cleveland boy named Phillips, but even in that case there was little question of who was the winner at the end of the fourth frame. Then he proved his stamina by coming back after a few minutes of rest to stop another opponent in two rounds.

In four years of fighting Fred has climbed to the Central A. A. U. championship and now he is at the threshhold of further fame which will be his if he wins a place on the Golden Gloves team. While he was still attending the James Otis school over on the west side, he began going down to Kid Howard's gymnasium to watch the workouts of his brother, Johnny, who is a professional.

Presently Fred put on a pair of gloves and began doing a little shadow boxing on his own hook. They liked his style and offered him a chance to fight on one of the weekly amateur shows held at the gymnasium. Fred grabbed at the opportunity and ever since has been climbing steadily in the fight game.

When he's not in the gymnasium, he's to be found over in the financial district, marking stock market quotations on the blackboard in a broker's office. Fred's been mixed up in high finance for the last three and a half years.

Started as a Wrestler.

He comes originally from Madison, Pa., but moved to Chicago's west side when ten years old. At the James Otis school he went in for nearly all athletics and earned particular prestige as a wrestler. His school team won the district championship in this sport and Fred himself took the 120 pound title. He was beaten, however, in the finals for the city crown.

In addition to his accomplishments on the wrestling mat, Fred is a baseball and football player. He distinguished himself in both sports with the Seneca Athletic club, of which he has been president, and he has also performed on the gridiron for the Mugler A. C.

on Miami Beach with a good book, but he sent his agent, Uncle Will Gibson, over to see Mr. Baugh about the matter of the guarantee.

"What about a little gravy for our bread?" were Mr. Gibson's very words, and when Mr. Baugh said, "Certainly; I will send you a check," Mr. Gibson replied, "The boxing exhibition is off."

Mr. Gibson Explains.

This aroused great anger among the Miami business men, some of whom were pioneers of more than two years' residence. When Uncle Will refused to listen to logic, the sheriff of Palm Beach appeared on the scene, snapping a rubber check, which he claimed Mr. Gibson had bounced at a sterling citizen of Palm Beach a year before. Uncle Will had a lot of early foot and he opened up a good gap on the sheriff of Palm Beach, reaching a secret rendezvous in a hotel, where he explained that the blowout patch which the sheriff was waving around town had been obtained under gross misrepresentation.

"This sterling citizen of Palm Beach who is now trying to harass a fine clean boy into fighting for nothing for the good name of Miami approached me with a business proposition last year," Uncle Will said. "He wished to establish a playroom where people could amuse themselves playing little games with cards and dice, and asked me to take a half interest, which I did, giving him my check. He assured me that he had paid the ice bill down at the city hall and the county seat, but when the playroom opened up, who should come crashing in but a lot of gallant officers to destroy our furniture and arrest our instructors, who were teaching the patrons these diversions with the dice and cards? I then discovered that he had not paid the ice bill either at the city hall or the county seat, and I was so incensed at this dishonest conduct that I stopped payment on my check by wire."

The sheriff of Palm Beach bowed a tendon going through a beer store on a false scent of Uncle Will, who was not drinking beer, and did not catch him. So the fight remained off.

Stymie Beats Miss Van Wie on 18th Hole

St. Augustine, Fla., March 5.—(AP)—Upsets, which have marked play in the Florida east coast women's golf tournament from the start, continued in the second round today with two favorites, Diana Fishwick, British champion, and Virginia Van Wie, Chicago, the titleholder, going down to defeat.

Miss Van Wie lost her match when Mrs. Stewart Hanley, Detroit, laid the Chicago star a dead stymie on the 13th green, preventing her from squaring the match. Miss Fishwick was eliminted, 4 and 2, by Mrs. H. D. Sterrett, Hutchinson, Kas.

Miss Van Wie's long game was decidedly off form on the outgoing nine, where she became four down. She staged a great comeback on the incoming route, however, starting on the 12th hole to become only one down at the 18th. Miss Van Wie had a short putt for a win to square the match, but Mrs. Hanley, playing for the cup, putted a dead stymie and the match was over.

Maureen Orcutt, Englewood, N. J., had the toughest battle of the day in eliminating Kathleen Garnham, another English player, one up.

BONUSES PAID TO BANK FOR LOANS NOT ON RECORDS

Who Got Money? Inspires New Inquiry.

New York, March 5.—[Special.]—Huge bonuses were paid to the Bank of the United States by two real estate men who obtained building loans from that institution and no record of these payments appears on the bank's books Harry Gordon, special deputy attorney general, was told today by the two builders.

Mr. Gordon examined the two real estate men privately, but later told what he had learned from them. He said he will endeavor to find out what individuals in the bank finally received these bonuses and how the transactions were apparently hidden from the bank examiners.

The two witnesses were David M. Oltarsh, head of the Oltarsh Construction company, and Saul Birns of the B. & B. Holding company and the Saul Birns Construction Co., Inc.

Mr. Gordon said that Oltarsh testified he paid the bank a bonus of $155,000 on a $445,000 loan obtained by him on the Public Jewish theater, Second avenue and Fourth street, in addition to a 6 per cent interest charge and various clerical fees.

Birns, Mr. Gordon said, obtained six loans totaling $1,305,000 from the bank and two of its subsidiaries between 1926 and 1928 and paid back in bonuses $107,587. The bank received $43,837 of this, the City Financial corporation, one of its affiliates, $22,000; the Sun Holding corporation, a subsidiary of City Financial, $40,000, and Joseph Ravitch, the bank's appraiser, $1,750.

No Trace in Bank's Books.

In October, 1927, Mr. Birns was loaned $100,000 by the City Financial corporation on the building at 65 Second avenue, and he paid back $22,000. In February, 1928, he borrowed $175,000 from the Sun Holding corporation on 170 Second avenue and paid $35,000, and from the same company in March, 1928, he received a loan of $25,000 on 206 East 10th street and paid $5,000.

"Neither the books of the bank nor the reports of the bank examiner show any trace of this money," said Mr. Gordon.

As a result of recent disclosures, Max D. Steuer, special deputy attorney general in charge of the inquiry, intimated today that the indictment of all directors of the bank may be sought.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Thinking Things Over

HUNDREDS PAY LAST TRIBUTE AT COOPER RITES

Racine, Wis., March 5.—(AP)—Constituents of Henry Allen Cooper, who represented the First Wisconsin district in congress for 36 years, paid homage at the bier of the "dean of the house" in Memorial hall this afternoon.

Shortly after the arrival of the funeral train from Washington, where the congressman died Sunday morning, the casket was taken to Memorial hall and placed on a dais flanked by countless flowers and ferns. Hundreds filed through the hall. An official escort, representing both the house and the senate, accompanied the body from Washington.

Funeral services were at 4 p. m. A brief sermon was delivered by the Rev. H. R. Hogan, pastor of the Plymouth Congregational church, and the congressman's two favorite hymns, "Lead, Kindly Light" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," were sung by the 75 voice Philharmonic chorus.

Burial was in Mound cemetery, where the body was interred on the crest of a hill overlooking Washington park.

FLAGSHIP BOYS TOOK HER RENTED PIANO, SHE SAYS

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—When Mrs. C. J. Wright, 2220 Bagby street, Houston, Tex., went to California last fall she rented her home, including the player piano.

The flagship Houston of the Asiatic fleet visited her namesake port and two daughters of the renter, Mrs. Wright says, introduced a group of sailors to the piano.

The instrument made such good music the boys simply couldn't leave it, so when the Houston sailed for China the piano went along.

Now Mrs. Wright is demanding her piano and it is up to Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the navy to get it. But he doesn't know just how he's going to do it unless he sends another ship to China.

"And," mused Mr. Jahncke as he read Mrs. Wright's letter, "I wonder if it won't turn out Chinese music when we get it back home?"

FRANCE REFUSES TO LET GERMAN LEAD CONCERT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 5.—Chief of Police Jean Chiappe today ordered the Pas de Loup Symphony orchestra to cancel the engagement of Felix Weingartner, German Beethoven specialist, to conduct two concerts on Saturday and Sunday. Chiappe acted on instructions from the government following a conference between Premier Laval and Foreign Minister Briand and upon a protest from several patriotic organizations alleging that "Weingartner is a German who has never stopped showing hatred for France."

Leading the fight on Weingartner's appearance in Paris is Deputy Pierre Taittinger, Nationalist leader and chief of the Fascist Youth organization. Yesterday M. Taittinger printed an open letter to Premier Laval recalling that Weingartner, who was popular in Paris before the war and was decorated as a knight in the Legion of Honor, "returned the honor with a letter insulting France."

Left wing Paris dailies deplore the cancellation of the concerts, attacking Taittinger's "vainglorious patriotism." This incident comes close on the heels of the closing of the German play "The Dreyfus Affair," which had been adapted into French. The management of the theater announced that nightly rowdyism by young French Nationalists had grown so serious that they decided to stop the play.

WILL OPPOSE BILL AFFECTING EXCHANGE HERE

Officials to Appear Before Wisconsin Legislature.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Officials of the Chicago stock exchange will appear next Tuesday at the committee hearing of the Wisconsin legislature to oppose the bill pending before that body which asks the removal of the exemption which securities listed on the exchange now have in the state. Under the present system issues listed on the exchange can be sold in Wisconsin without further qualification.

The bill would also remove the exemption on securities of the Boston stock exchange. In addition to R. Arthur Wood, president of the Chicago exchange, and Harvey T. Hill, executive vice president, it is expected that the heads of the Wisconsin chamber of commerce and the Milwaukee chamber of commerce will testify at the hearing.

Would Qualify Individually.

At the present time only New York, Chicago, and Boston stock exchange issues are exempt from the blue sky laws in Wisconsin. If the present measure is adopted, only securities listed on the New York exchange get a clean bill of health without further qualification. Corporations whose securities are listed elsewhere would be individually required to qualify their issues under the stat. security laws.

At the present time securities listed on the Chicago exchange can be sold in 40 of the 48 states. Exemption from the blue sky laws is granted either specifically or by implication in these 40 states. In some states, however, they can be distributed only by qualified registered dealers. New York stock exchange securities are exempt in approximately the same number of states.

Utility stocks led an advance in the trading on the exchange yesterday. The threat of federal legislation affecting utilities to which the recent heaviness in the stocks has been attributed was removed as an immediate possibility when the session of congress ended.

Follow Utility Trend.

Shares in other sections of the list followed the trend of the utilities, but the trading was comparatively light. Transactions amounted to only 120,000 shares, the smallest turnover in several days. North American Light and Power was outstanding among the utilities. The issue, which is ordinarily quiet, pushed forward to 69 on a volume of sales exceeding 6,000 shares. Its closing price of 68¾ was 1½ above its previous quotation.

U. S. Radio was active at higher prices, reflecting the results shown in its semi-annual earnings statement. American Radio and Television Stores sold below a point following the filing of an application for receivership in the Federal District court.

At a hearing yesterday afternoon the suit was dismissed by Federal Judge Woodward for want of jurisdiction. The firm is a Delaware corporation organized to do business in Illinois. Counsel for the company asserted that the bill of complaint was based on false information and the allegations made were not substantiated.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Chicago curb stocks finished steady to slightly higher yesterday. American Superpower ran up more than a point to a new top for the year at 18, and Harrison's and Canadian Marconi were fractionally higher. Corporation, Selected Income and Corporate Trust Shares were steady. Bond prices ranged higher, Cudahy 5½s moving up 2 points, and Cities Service 5s adding half a point.

The exchange admitted to listing 90,000 shares of no par common stock of Hendrick Ranch Royalties, 185,670 shares of no par class A common stock of National Short Term Securities corporation, 100,000 additional Cumulative Trust Shares, and an additional 3,025 Republic Trust Shares. Arnold B. Dibley was elected to membership.

BELL SYSTEM IS NOW 5 BILLION DOLLARS IN SIZE

Gifford Tells of 1930 Expansion.

BY O. A. MATHER.

Fifty-five years ago an American inventor, Alexander G. Bell, brought out the telephone. From that invention has grown the greatest corporate enterprise in the world. Last year the Bell system became a $5,000,000,000 organization and the American Telephone and Telegraph Bell system, company, nucleus of the grew into a $3,000,000,000 corporation.

WALTER S. GIFFORD.

These and other data are set forth by Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone, in his annual report, issued yesterday. From the report it would appear that the telephone industry is virtually depression-proof. For example, the Bell system last year made a net gain of 122,500 telephones in service, while local telephone conversations increased 2 per cent and long distance talking rose 1 per cent over 1929.

Will Spend $450,000,000 in 1931.

And, despite depression, the Bell system expended about the same amount in 1930 as in 1929. Expenditures for additions, betterments, and replacements totaled $585,000,000, in addition to more than $15,000,000 for development of research for future improvements. This year approximately $450,000,000 will be expended. The total of wages paid in 1930 was the largest in history, although the number of employés declined from 364,045 to 324,343. But the number of stockholders increased from 469,801 to 567,694.

"The depression which affected business in general during 1930 inevitably affected the telephone business, but not in a way or to an extent to disturb the fundamental objectives of the Bell System," Mr. Gifford sums up. "It has been able to continue to improve and extend the telephone service. Since Jan. 1, 1930, service from the United States has been opened to some 1,350,000 additional telephones in eastern and southern Europe, to more than 450,000 telephones in Australia and to about 400,000 telephones in South America and Mexico."

The final report o nearnings varies little from earlier estimates. Net income for 1930 was $165,544,707, equivalent to $10.44 a share on the average of 15,856,696 shares outstanding during the year. After paying dividends of $9 a share, surplus was increased by $26,306,633 to a total of $322,369,476. Net income in 1929 was $166,389,757, or $12.67 a share on an average of 13,113,746 shares.

On Dec. 31, 1930, total assets of the Bell System were $5,000,195,801 and those of the American Telephone and Telegraph were $3,182,926,191.

Brokers' Loans Drop.

The five day decline in the stock market which ended yesterday with an upturn resulted in a decline in brokers' loans for the last week after three weeks of expansion. The decline was $8,000,000 for the week ended Wednesday and therefore does not reflect the effect of yesterday's recovery in stock prices.

Brokers' loans now stand at $1,790,000,000, compared with $3,583,000,000 a year ago, according to the weekly report of the federal reserve board. This marks a decline of $1,793,000,000, and therefore the current total is almost exactly half that of a year ago. The New York banks increased their own loans to brokers by $49,000,000, but interior banks withdrew $50,000,000 and nonbanking lenders, including corporations, drew down $7,000,000.

Little change in the general credit situation is shown in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system. Borrowings of the member banks increased $729,000 to a total of $190,876,000. The reserve banks sold $5,762,000 of bankers' acceptances but maintained their holdings of government securities. Deposits gained $3,201,000 and note circulation expanded $11,411,000.

Borrowings Increase.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 2 per cent rediscount rate. Its report showed member bank borrowings at $38,834,000, an increase of $812,000. The reserve bank disposed of $13,673,000 of bankers' acceptances but maintained its government securities. Deposits dropped $21,093,000. Reserves declined $1,762,000, but the reserve ration rose to 87.6 per cent, compared with 87 per cent a week ago.

The Chicago reserve bank reported a decline of $1,047,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $16,877,000. Government securities were unchanged. Bankers' acceptances increased $1,347,000, but government securities held stationary. Deposits rose $9,899,000. Reserves increased $11,190,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 85.1 per cent, compared with 84.8 per cent last week.

Rails Lower Auto Freight Rates to Regain Traffic

New York, March 5.—(AP)—In an effort by the railroads to regain some of the traffic lost to water and highway transportation systems in recent years, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce announced today that lower freight charges on automobiles and trucks would be put into effect early in April.

Following a study of several months by a special committee representing the automobile industry, the chamber announced that lower freight rates would become effective next month in what is known in railroad circles as "the official territory"—east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio river, embracing the states in which there is the greatest density of population.

Additional Inducement.

In addition to an actual reduction in rates, the chamber said motor companies will be offered an additional inducement to ship by rail. Minimum car load weights will be lowered so that motor companies will be able to effect a saving, as the reduction will necessitate less care in loading and packing automobiles and trucks into the freight cars. This expense has been one of the principal reasons for the diversion of business to transportation on the highways either through driveaways or hauling on great motor vans capable of carrying as many as five cars.

J. S. Marvin, traffic expert of the chamber, said that similar action probably will be taken by carriers serving automobile factories or assembly plants in other sections of the country. Roads in California already have acted on their own initiative and application has been made to the interstate commerce commission to reduce tariffs in the southwest.

Whether the ultimate consumer would benefit from the reduction was difficult to determine now, he said, pointing out that all automobiles are shipped f. o. b. factory.

On Point to Point Basis.

No one yardstick has been used in fixing the new rates, Mr. Marvin said, and it was therefore impossible to form an adequate estimate of the average reduction.

"These rates are competitive rates, made to get business and not according to any scale. They have been established on a point to point basis. The railroads believe that these reductions will enable them to regain some of the business that has been lost to competitors in recent years."

A comparison of the traffic figures of the automobile industry for 1925 and 1929 gives an idea of what has been taking place, Mr. Marvin said. Whereas the number of automobiles and trucks transported by boat and those driven overline, meaning driven away or hauled by truck, showed a large increase between 1925 and 1929, the total transported by railroads remained almost stationary. It is estimated that the 1,500,000 motor cars and trucks sold in 1929 and not shipped by rail represented potential freight business of $56,000,000.

TOTAL SALES OF NINE CHAIN STORE SYSTEMS GAIN IN FEBRUARY

New York, March 5.—(AP)—Gross sales of the first nine chain store companies reporting for February, exclusive of mail order and chain combinations, amounted to $33,657,801, compared with $33,092,694 for the month last year, an increase of 1.7 per cent.

For the first two months the aggregate sales of the nine companies were $67,011,196, an increase of 5 per cent over the total for the first two months of 1930.

F. W. Woolworth company reports February sales of $19,385,584, a decrease of 3.2 per cent, compared with sales of $20,030,307 in the corresponding month of 1930. For the first two months Woolworth sales aggregated $38,627,929, compared with $38,435,467 in the like period last year, an increase of 0.5 per cent.

H. T. Parson, president, pointed out that in the first two weeks of February sales were off $540,026, compared with 1930, while in the last two weeks of the month the drop was only $104,697, indicating improvement in sales in the last half of the month. Four districts of the company's operations covering 510 stores showed an increase in February.

Edison Brothers stores report February sales of $353,523, compared with $286,432 in the month last year, an increase of 23.4 per cent for the first two months the sales were $717,393, compared with $522,795 in the 1930 period, an increase of 37.2 per cent.

Sales of McCrory Stores corporation in February amounted to $2,945,912, compared with $2,906,937 in the month last year, an increase of 1.3 per cent for the first two months sales were $5,848,415, compared with $5,601,474 in the period last year.

J. J. Newberry company reported increased sales for February, as compared with the corresponding month of 1930. Sales last month totaled $1,696,717, against $1,633,433 reported for February of last year.

Westinghouse Covers Its Dividend by Small Margin

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 5.—Westinghouse Air Brake company, $70,000,000 maker of air brakes for railway and automotive vehicles, today reported net of $2.05 a share, compared with an earlier prediction of $2 a share made in December. In 1929 net was equal to $2.78 a share. The essential point is the company covered its $2 dividend rate by a small margin. Through subsidiary companies the interests of the group are linked with both Westinghouse Electric and Bendix.

SWAMP UNCLE SAM WITH OFFERS TO LEND FUNDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 5.—When Uncle Sam wanted to borrow a little this week the whole country deluged him with money. Last Monday Secretary Mellon announced that the treasury would like to sell about $1,400,000,000 of new securities in order to pay off $1,109,000,000 maturing obligations and provide for soldier bonus loans.

The subscriptions rolled in so fast that the books were closed Wednesday morning. Tonight Secretary Mellon announced that the federal reserve banks had reported total subscriptions exceeding $3,734,000,000 and that belated reports will swell the total still further. In other words, Uncle Sam was offered nearly three times as much money as he wanted, although the new securities bear the lowest average interest ever fixed for a major treasury financing operation.

Holders of the maturing securities were allotted about $593,000,000 of new 3¾ per cent 12 year bonds and $72,400,000 of new 2 per cent one year certificates on an exchange basis. About $527,600,000 of the one-year certificates and $300,000,000 of new 1½ per cent six month certificates were allotted to cash subscribers. Total subscriptions for the bonds were $2,111,000,000—for the one year certificates, $1,223,000,000, and for the six month certificates, $400,000,000.

United Chemicals Reports Decrease in Net Profits

The previous report, which covered the period of Feb. 8 to Dec. 28, 1929, showed a net profit of $899,950 or $6.22 a common share.

The 1930 net given above is before minority interest. After deduction of minority interest, net available for dividends was $476,151, or $4.13 a share on 115,150 shares of $3 preferred outstanding.

INT. T. & T. AND RADIO CORP. ABANDON PLAN TO COMBINE INTERESTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 5.—The Radio Corporation of America and the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation have dissolved the accord they reached in March, 1929, for the consolidation of their respective communications interests when the law permitted, it was announced late today in a joint statement by Gen. James G. Harbord, chairman of the board of the Radio corporation, and Sosthenes Behn, chairman of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation.

"This decision was necessitated by the fact that despite the increasing influence of communication mergers in foreign countries and the obvious advantage to American communications interests from consolidation of their services, no legislative action has been taken to eliminate these handicaps or to facilitate the consolidation," the statement said.

"The managements of the two companies have, however, in no way altered their sincere conviction, announced in their public statement of March 30, 1929, that the unification of American record communication services would be to the interest of our country and people."

In the absence of comment by officials of either company, it could not be ascertained whether the subject of consolidation of the R. C. A. Communications, Inc., with the cable and radio system of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation ever will be reconsidered by the two corporations.

O'NEILL RESIGNS AS OFFICIAL IN BENDIX FIRMS

William L. O'Neill has tendered his resignation as president of the Bendix Stromberg Carburetor and first vice president of the Bendix Aviation corporation, it was learned last night. No reason was advanced by Mr. O'Neill for his withdrawal from the companies. He is understood to be a substantial stockholder in both firms.

The resignation was presented to Bendix directors at their meeting in New York last Monday. While it is understood Mr. O'Neill wished that he be relieved immediately he was prevailed upon to continue in both positions until April 1.

Urge National Conference on Oil Industry's Ills

Washington, D. C., March 5.—(AP)—A national conference of oil operators, state representatives, and federal agencies to seek a remedy for the ailments of the petroleum industry was urged today upon Secretary Wilbur.

The interior secretary, chairman of the federal oil conservation board, declined to say whether he would urge such a meeting, but asserted proposals from the producers or the states would be considered carefully.

His statement followed a series of telephoned appeals from petroleum operators of the southwest, who called upon him to clear a path for a conference at which the problems of the industry might be considered.

The oil men, Wilbur said, had advised him informally the governors of Oklahoma, Kansas, and Texas were considering requesting the government to call a conference.

Central Cut Seen Disastrous.

The oil men appealed to Wilbur as the result of the crude oil price cut to 67 cents per barrel, posted in the midcontinent field by the Sinclair company. They notified the interior secretary other companies were threatening to meet that figure.

They told Wilbur a general cut would be disastrous to independent operators whose costs of production were more than that figure.

Indications were that a conference, if called, would deal primarily with continuation of domestic proration and Secretary Wilbur's recent recommendation to the senate commerce committee that imports be prorated on the basis of domestic curtailment.

Proration, Wilbur said, "was the finger in the dike, holding back the flow of oil," chiefly at home.

President Hoover late today notified the governors of Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, New Mexico, and California that Secretary of Commerce Lamont was negotiating with America's leading oil importers to see if imports could be arranged in relationship with domestic production.

Lower Price Schedules.

Tulsa, Okla., March 5.—(AP)—Sharply lower price schedules for crude oil in the midcontinent area were becoming general today, following action of the Stanoline Crude Oil Purchasing company, a subsidiary of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, in posting reductions averaging more than 32 cents a barrel.

Five additional companies, the Standard Oil of Kansas, the Continental Oil company, Tidal Refining company, Midcontinent Petroleum corporation, and Tidal Western Oil company, had met the Standolind prices and other purchasing companies were expected to follow suit.

The Standolind schedule, containing a top price of 67 cents a barrel for high gravity oil, met the one price of 67 cents offered by the Sinclair Refining company recently for 50,000 barrels daily of Oklahoma City production.

Protests Price Cut.

Austin, Tex., March 5.—(AP)—Gov. Ross S. Sterling today telegraphed President Hoover and John D. Rockefeller Jr. protesting against the "drastic" crude oil price cut of the Standard Oil company of Indiana.

Gov. Sterling said he feared the price cut would upset the entire oil conservation program and defeat all efforts to save from ruin the oil industry and the "hundreds of thousands of our people directly and indirectly engaged therein."

Will Buy "Distress" Oil.

Topeka, Kas., March 5.—(AP)—Gov. Harry H. Woodring announced late today after a conference with represenatives of major oil companies in this region that a group of the companies had agreed to buy 4,300 barrels a day of the estimated 6,300 barrels of Kansas "distress" oil on a permanent basis.

Under the agreement expected to become effective next month the Standard Oil Company of Indiana will take 2,000 barrels a day, the Standard Oil Company of Kansas 300 barrels, the Sinclair Oil company 1,000 barrels, the Skelly Oil company 250 barrels, and the Cities Service organization, 750 barrels.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 5.—The Studebaker corporation's anual report, issued today, shows a net profit for 1930, after depreciation, taxes and dividens on the minority stockholders' interest in the Pierce-Arrow Motor Car company's preferred class A stock, of $1,000,216, equivalent, after Studebaker preferred dividends, to 27 cents a share on the 1,095,405 shares of Studebaker common stock.

This compares with a net profit of $11,346,028 in 1929, equivalent to $5.53 a share on the Studebaker common stock. Sales were $86,083,939 in 1930, compared with $145,303,833 in 1929.

Commenting on the report A. R. Erskine, president, said the company had made several progressive moves, despite the fact that the year "was a very poor one for profit making in the automobile industry." Studebaker registrations at the close of the year, he said, were the fifth largest in the country, whereas, at the end of 1929, they had been the twelfth largest.

As the result of the payment of common stock dividends amounting to $7,355,298 last year, an dother charges, the company's surplus was reduced from $30,561,767 to $18,512,494.

BASLE, March 5.—The monthly statement of the Bank for International Settlements issued today shows the bank's books balanced on Feb. 28 with deposits of $357,892,566. Continental Oil Reports 1930 Profit of $255,598

Continental Oil company and subsidiaries had net profit in 1930 of $255,598 after all charges. These earnings equaled 5 cents a share on 4,694,062 common shares which will be outstanding when all stock of the Continental Oil company of Maine has been exchanged. In 1929 the company reported net earnings of $9,028,660, or $1.90 a share, on 4,743,103 common shares. Included were the operating results of Marland Oil for the full year, and those of companies formerly owned by Continental Oil of Maine for the final six months of the year.

New York, March 5.—The bulls got their feet in the stock exchange feed trough once more today, and what a picnic they had! American can, with a net gain of 4½ points on the day; Eastman Kodak, up 4; Consolidated Gas, 3; Atchison, 3⅛; Allied Chemical and Rye, 3⅜; Public Service of New Jersey and American Telephone and Telegraph, 3½ each; Sears-Roebuck, 2⅛; United States Steel, nearly 2 points.

It was just such a rally as the downhearted bull element needed after the five day reaction, which had erased a good 14 average points of the January-February runup. True, the public participation was not what it might have been, the volume falling off to around 2,500,000 shares, but this was to be expected after the discouraging performance of the last week.

After the shakeout it has received many believe the marret it now entitled to a sizeable rebound, and some were venturing to predict another extended advance, now that positions have been put through the purging process which the sharps are wont to refer to as "consolidation."

Groom American Can.

There were reports abroad, in fact, that some of the same speculative forces which marshaled the recent advance in such splendid fashion were grooming American Can and a number of other old line leaders to set the pace for a new rally. Can certainly did its stuff in great shape today, snapping back to 124, as against its year's high of 129¾, recorded a fortnight ago.

According to this forecast, Can is to take the place of Auburn Automobile as the favorite of the professional bull element, Auburn and the other volatiles used in such spectacular fashion to spur up sentiment in the late advance being sidetracked for the time being.

Virtually all groups took part in today's recovery, although some of the rails were still limping over the dividend cuts and earning bruises they have been receiving. Lackawanna and Norfolk and Western were among the F. W. Woolworth Company.

What is your opinion of Woolworth as an investment proposition?—C. A. W.

F. W. Woolworth company, largest of the five-and-ten chains, reported sales last year 4½ per cent below the record set in 1929. An increased profit margin was shown, however, net income being only 2.6 per cent lower than the year before. Unemployment in the larger cities and lower buying power in smaller communities were responsible for the reduced sales volume.

Sales had increased steadily up to the beginning of 1930, although the rate of advance in profits had slowed down somewhat in 1928 and 1929. Experiencing increasingly brisk competition in the domestic field the company has in recent years carried on much of its expansion in foreign countries.

Sales in 1930, including domestic and Canadian subsidiaries, were $289,288,605, against $303,047,172 in 1929. Net income was $34,736,250, which was equal to $3.56 per share earned on 9,750,000 capital shares [par $10]. This compares with net of $35,664,252 or $3.66 per share in 1929.

The already strong working capital position was further improved in 1930. On Dec. 31 quick assets were $55,672,794 and current liabilities were $3,843,875, leaving a net working capital of $51,828,919, against $48,467,521 a year before. Surplus increased from $61,304,130 to $72,009,972. There is only one class of stock. Funded debt consists of $3,437,500 of purchase money mortgages.

The amount of stock outstanding has been increased several times since 1924 by stock dividends and splitups. The present dividend rate is $2.40 per annum. The stock is considered high grade.

Georgian Hotel.

Will you be kind enough to give me information in regard to Georgian hotel first mortgage real estate bonds? I enclose stamped envelope for reply. —W. A. H.

A $1,300,000 issue of 6¼ per cent first mortgage bonds was put out in January, 1926, against the Georgian hotel [Evanston, Ill.]. They are maturing serially from 1928 to 1940.

We are informed by the underwriter that for the eleven months ended Nov. 30, 1930, net income, after deduction for operating expenses and taxes, amounted to $132,485.

Interest requirements for the period totaled $74,162 and principal and amortization equaled $17,000. There was a surplus after charges of $41,323. All payments of interest and principal have been made to date by the mortgagors. Of the original issue there has been retired by serial payment $445,000 par value of bonds.

BULLISH FEELING RULES ON CORN; PRICES EDGE UP

Wheat Trading Largely of Local Character.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

While the corn market held within narrow price limits yesterday, bullish sentiment was still apparent in many quarters and as a result the finish was at net gains of ⅝@⅞c, with the March showing the most strength. The latter closed at 62c, while May was 64⅝@64¾c; July, 67⅛@67¼c, and September, 67c. Selling against offers was a factor in checking the advance.

There was little in the general run of the news to account for the buying, which was attributed largely to local shorts, but sentiment has become more favorable to the buying side in the last few days. At the same time the market is easily influenced and erratic fluctuations are frequent. Shipping demand for cash corn was less aggressive with the basis in the sample market unchanged to ½c lower.

Traders are paying some attention to the relatively small visible supply of cash corn, which is around 19,000,000 bu, or nearly 16,000,000 bu less than the 5 year average at this season of the year. The premium of around 3c on September corn, as compared with the same delivery of wheat, has a tendency to temper bullish sentiment, while the July is around 3¼c over wheat. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to ⅛c higher, with March showing the most strength, being quoted at 32⅝c at the last.

Wheat Prices Lower.

Trade in wheat was largely of a local character, with fair support appearing on the breaks, but at no time was the market active and prices held within a range of 1c on the deferred futures and closed ½@⅝c lower, with July and September at 64@64⅛c. March was ¼c higher at 79¼c, and the May, ⅛c lower at 81½@81¾c.

Late easiness in Winnipeg had some effect on the market, with the close there ⅝c lower, July being 60⅜c, or 3⅛c under Chicago. Liverpool reported Argentine shippers had reduced the weight of wheat offerings ½ lb per bu, which was taken as confirming poor quality, and futures finished ⅛@⅜d higher, with the July 64¼d.

To Move Out Cash Wheat.

It was the gossip of the trade that the stabilization corporation had cancelled over 200,000 bu hard winter wheat for shipment out of Chicago during the day, and the action of the government agency in making an effort to prevent congestion of grain due to lack of storage room here received favorable comment. The belief was expressed that further amounts would be shipped out if necessary. No. 1 and No. 2 grades of winter and spring wheat sold at March price to ¼c under in the sample market, but receipts were smaller than of late.

Foreign demand for both domestic and Canadian cash wheat was disappointing, although some No. 1 hard was reported to have been sold to France for March shipment. Russia was said to be offering wheat abroad on a somewhat larger scale than of late, and shipments from the Black sea for the week were placed at 1,168,000 bu, against 616,000 bu the previous week. Buenos Aires closed unchanged to ¼c higher, with May at 50⅛c.

Farm Board Sells Wheat; Gets Cash on Delivery

"We are not selling cash wheat to foreigners or domestic buyers except when we get the cash on delivery," said George S. Milnor, president and manager of the Grain Stabilization corporation, in reply to an inquiry regarding a rumor from New York that farm board wheat was being sold abroad on credit. "There is nothing in such stories," declared Mr. Milnor. "We would not sell wheat to any one on credit. We get the cash for all our wheat. We are selling wheat for export to Europe every day. The wheat is at the gulf, at the Pacific coast, and in other positions. New Orleans is beginning to clean up."

Shipping orders were sent to Chicago elevators yesterday to load out 400,000 bu of farm board wheat to be removed from Chicago to create storage room for other grain. An Omaha elevator man is said to have shipped 200 cars of corn to Chicago for March delivery for which elevator room has been secured. Sales of March wheat have been made by elevator people the last few days to bring the grain here for delivery this month. Three boats have been chartered here of late for loading 750,000 bu of corn to go out at the opening of navigation, one of which has already been sold.

LARD MARKET WEAKENS

Lard prices were off 2¼@5c at the close yesterday with trading throughout the day moderate. Selling was scattered and hogs were lower. Bellies were traded in sparingly at unchanged prices. Liverpool lard advanced 6@9d. Export clearances of lard from the seaboard were 300,849 lbs. and of bacon 192,000 lbs. Hog receipts were smaller than a week and a year ago. Prices follow:

BULLS GET AT PROFIT TROUGH IN MARKET AGAIN

Leading Issues Register Healthy Advances.

weaker members of the group, the former easing off nearly 3 points and the other piling another 1½ points on top of the column of losses it has been running up.

New York Central did considerably better, advancing more than 2 points. From a fraction to nearly 2 point recoveries were negotiated by Erie, Canadian Pacific, Rock Island, Union Pacific, and others.

Steels Perform Ably.

The utilities made the best showing of all, as was to be expected in view of the impetus they received from the failure of congress to enact any of the harmful legislation threatened earlier in the session. North American, American and Foreign Power, Brooklyn Union, and Electric Power and Light United corporation were all conspicuously active on the upside, their gains averaging 1 to 3 points.

Steels also performed ably, Gulf State recovering 4⅝ of the loss it suffered yesterday and Bethlehem clawing its way back to 65½, a net gain of 2⅝ points on the day.

Amusement issues were somewhat brighter, although the demand was not the feverish affair it might have been with the public more show minded. The coppers had their difficulties in the early trading, but braced up as the rally got under way, and the motors held their own.

Todays session on the stock exchange was marked by the first change in the official money rate since Jan. 3 last, when the rate went to 1½ per cent from the 3 per cent figure at which standing loans were renewed over the year-end. A heavy call during the morning depleted the supply to a point where new funds commanded 2 per cent in the final hour.

COTTONSEED OIL.

GENERAL FOODS INCOME STEADY DESPITE SLUMP

New York, March 5.—(AP)—Further evidence of the stability of the package food industry in a period of depression was given today when the General Foods corporation reported net income for 1930 only slightly less than the record year of 1929.

Its report shows net earnings of $19,085,595, equal to $3.63 a share, of common, against $19,422,313, or $3.68 a share, in the previous year. The 1929 report did not include profits of subsidiaries prior to acquisition.

"More effort on the promotion and sale of general food products will be exerted in 1931 than in any previous year," it was stated. "Benefits may be expected to accrue from our centralized research activities, resulting in new ideas and new products."

Assoc. Gas & Electric Co. Has $47,016,761 Net Income

Associated Gas and Electric system reports gross earnings for 1930 of $110,884,880 as compared with $91,480,896 in 1929. Net earnings were $47,016,761 against $41,382,760 in 1929. A balance of $17,501,068 for 1930 remained after deductions for underlying dividend and all interest. This compared with $16,645,984 in 1929.

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today, but the undertone was easier and sugars were available at last paid prices of 3.25c for spots duty paid, but refiners showed little interest.

Reflecting the inactivity in spots and easier London cables, raw futures closed at net losses of 1 point on the spot month and 4 points on all other deliveries. Approximate sales, 23,300 tons. Prices follow:

NEW YORK, March 5.—(AP)—Cotton goods held firm today, with demand for finished goods improving. Wool goods were steady. Agents expect openings for new fall season will begin before the end of next week. Raw silk was firmer on reports of large consumption in February. Broadsilks were selling at low prices. Rayon demand was holding up steadily, with more call noted from knitters. Burlaps were steady.

POSTAL OMITS DIVIDEND; SHOWS NET OF $96,769

New York, March 5.—(AP)—Directors of the Postal Telegraph and Cable company today omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the preferred stock, due at this time. A statement said that while gross earnings so far realized this year are slightly better than in the last quarter of 1930 and reductions have been made in operating expenses, the estimated results for the present quarter do not justify declaration of a dividend.

Postal Telegraph dipped heavily into surplus in 1930 to meet its dividends on the 7 per cent noncumulative preferred stock, its annual report disclosed.

Net income for the year amounted to $2,630,234 before payment of bond interest. After deduction of interest on collateral trust 5 per cent bonds and debenture stock net income was $96,769. Net income for 1929 was reported as $2,972,671. The report said that to the extent to which earned surplus was insufficient for the purpose, dividends for 1930 on the 7 per cent noncumulative preferred stock were provided from the paid-in surplus. Dividends on that stock for last year totaled $2,137,064.
